'War on terror' helps boost Pak growth

AFP, Karachi

Pakistan expects economic growth to rise 3.3 to 3.5 per cent in 2002-2003, boosted by a pick-up in manufacturing and an inflow of aid as a reward for its backing of the US-led "war on terror," Finance Minister Shaukat Aziz said on Mondav

"We expect 3.3 to 3.5 per cent growth in GDP in this fiscal year as our large-scale manufacturing has picked up during the last two months," Aziz told a press conference in this southern port city of Karachi.

Last year economic growth, hit by the country's worst drought, plunged to 2.6 per cent against a forecast of 4.5 per cent.

The government and business community had feared this year the economy would be hit by the September 11 attacks and the resulting war in neighbouring Afghanistan.

However healthy export orders would boost gross domestic product (GDP) growth, Aziz said.

"We are now getting export orders for textile, garments and leather goods, which may lead us to attain the new GDP growth level," Aziz said.

As a reward for Islamabad's backing for the "war on terror," Pakistan is also expecting a multi-billion-dollar inflow of aid and grants until 2003, he said

"Pakistan will receive 1.7 billion dollars within two years and it already has received 673 million dollars from the US," Aziz said, adding that 350 million dollars was expected from Japan and 300 million dollars from Britain and the European Union.

Taliban and sided with the United States after the September 11 terrorist attacks on New York and Washington, blamed on Afghan-based Saudi dissident Osama bin Laden's al-Qaeda network.

US President George W. Bush pledged to write-off one billion dollars of Pakistan's 2.8-billion-dollar US debt during President Pervez Musharraf's visit to Washington last week.

Pakistan may enjoy further write-offs of loans from Britain, Canada, Italy, Germany and the United States Aziz said, adding that western countries had already written off another 500 million dollars of debt.

The United States has since September 11 promised Pakistan an aid package worth more than one billion dollars, 600 million dollars of which has already been delivered.

Pakistan is also to begin charging the United States about 60 million dollars a month for logistical support it has provided for US forces in the war in Afghanistan.

Aziz said Saturday Pakistan was "in the process" of billing Washington 300 million dollars for support through the end of January.

The United States was considering enhancing market access for Pakistani textile exports but Islamabad was pushing for better trade terms.

"We could not get the desired commercial benefits from the US but negotiations (with the US) would continue to settle (subsidised) tariff, quotas and shipment issues," Aziz said.

Foreign banks see increased acquisitions in India AFP, Bombay

Leading foreign banks will soon be on the prowl as acquisition opportunities emerge in India after a central bank decision to allow increased foreign equity participation in private banks, analysts said Monday.

The Reserve Bank of India said Saturday that foreign banks including those with a branch presence in India -- could make foreign direct investment (FDI) of up to 49 per cent in the equity of Indian private banks.

The ceiling of 20 per cent FDI in state-owned banks was left unchanged.

Analysts said international banking giants such as HSBC, Citibank, ABN Amro, ING Baring and others are now expected to make proposals for fresh acquisitions in the domestic banking industry by targeting small and medium sized private banks.

Pakistan expects privatisation drive to attract foreigners

Pakistan hopes the ongoing privatisation of its state-owned telecom, oil and gas sectors will attract much-needed foreign investment, a minister said Sunday. Privatisation Minister Altaf Saleem said this year's ongoing privatisation of state oil, gas and telecommunications firms would offer plenty of opportunities for overseas investors, state-run Associated Press of Pakistan reported.

The government was ready to sell majority shares in state-owned Pakistan Telecommunication Co. (PTCL), Pakistan State Oil (PSO), Karachi Electric Supply Corp. (KESC), and Oil and Gas Development Co. (OGDC), he told an investment conference organised by the International Chamber of Commerce in the southern port city of Karachi.

The local interbank foreign exchange market was active Monday. Demand for dollar was steady Demand for BDT for overnight borrowing at call was still higher than usual.

Yen was subdued as talks between US President and Japanese Prime Minister failed to account for any specific actions on both parts. The market was expecting that Japan would come up with fresh steps to tackle their deflation and bad debt. Dollar rose against yen as the traders misheard the word deflation for devaluation and thought Bush was indicating his tolerance of a weaker yen, but bounced back to the earlier levels after the clarification

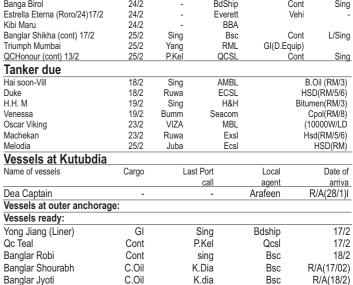

At 1440 hrs on Monday, euro traded at 0.8730/35 against dollar, pound sterling at 1.4331/33 and yen traded at 132.62/67 against US dollar.
