

Juve must win and pray

AFP, Paris

Europe's three-way tug of war for Champions League glory could leave one of the continent's most famous names on the season scrapheap as two-time continental kings Juventus prepare to fight for their lives.

The Turin giants have not managed to find the key to success in Europe's premier club competition since 1996, losing consecutive finals in the two following years.

On Tuesday their fate may prove not to be in their own hands, even if they can win at German league leaders Bayer Leverkusen.

That's because Arsenal and Deportivo La Coruna have been making the biggest waves in the group, the English and Spanish hopefuls both on seven points from their four matches to date.

Arsenal host "Super Depor" in a match of two sides who could conceivably land a treble of league title, Champions League and domestic cup this season and were the Spaniards to poach a draw in London they would be favoured to wrap up their safe passage with a home win over Leverkusen in their final game.

Juve would then be left to play catch-up with the Gunners in the Delle Alpi stadium hoping that they could take full advantage of Arsenal's poor record on their recent European ravels.

Arsenal, who perversely can do little wrong in the Premiership away from home, know that a win will guarantee a place in the last eight - vital if they are to keep their galaxy of stars happy by commandeering a place at Europe's top table and making a real challenge for silverware.

Arsene Wenger's side may be on a current hot streak but their failure to lift a trophy since their 1998 league-FA Cup double has caused some itchy feet with stars such as Patrick Vieira constantly linked with a move to the likes of Real Madrid.

Deportivo beat Arsenal in Spain earlier in the campaign and having won at Old Trafford on their travels this season Javier Irureta's side cannot be underestimated - still less so after winning the Spanish Cup at the Bernabeu stadium last week to wreck Real Madrid's centenary celebrations.

Delirious Depor fans sang "Feliz Cumpleaños" (Happy Birthday) all the louder Wednesday as they cocked a snook at Madrid's finest and lifted the Cup for only the second time - prompting an inevitable response from Irureta.

"Perhaps now people should start to talk about us doing the treble," he said after puncturing Real's dreams of doing the same.

Deportivo's wasteful draw against Rayo Vallecano at the weekend - albeit with a team-ful of reserves - means they are facing a struggle to get back into the Champions League if they fail to lift the trophy and they now trail leaders Valencia by five points.

The Galicians are hoping not to suffer the same fate as Valencia, who missed out this time round despite having made the last two Champions League finals.

Wenger knows equally well that the title of 'nearly men' could become one just as easily associated with his own men, a point behind Manchester United in the Premiership with a game in hand - hence the importance of the three points Tuesday.

Veteran defender Lee Dixon says the team will not be found wanting.

"From a team point of view, when everybody is fit and available we have got the best chance of winning this competition this season," he told the club's official website.

"The squad is well adapted for it, we've got cover in all positions and lots of experience."

But Deportivo defender Lionel Scaloni warns that the Spaniards' autumn win at Old Trafford and the Spanish Cup success over Real were no fluke.

"We believed in ourselves because we beat Manchester United at Old Trafford earlier this season by playing in the same way."

TUESDAY FIXTURES

Group C
Real Madrid (Spa) v Sparta Prague (Cze)
FC Porto (Por) v Panathinaikos (Gre)
Group D
Arsenal (Eng) v Deportivo La Coruna (Spa)
Bayer Leverkusen (Ger) v Juventus (Ita)

Arsenal are thus forewarned.

Juve have the greater pressure, however, with their three points to make up on the leading pair.

Although they swamped Leverkusen in Italy they will be destabilised by the loss with a thigh strain of French defender Lilian Thuram suffered in Saturday's draw with Inter Milan.

Coach Marcello Lippi may further have to shuffle the pack up front as Alessandro Del Piero has a damaged ankle and freescoring Frenchman David Trezeguet has a twisted knee which makes him doubtful.

Leverkusen are a point clear of Dortmund in the Bundesliga after seeing off Cottbus 2-0 on Saturday and coach Klaus Toppmoller insisted before the game that "for this club the match against Cottbus is even more important than the Champions League match against Juventus."

Yet his side are level on points with the Italians and thus everything is still to play for even if the Germans are bottom of the group on goal difference.

In Group C, Real, going for a ninth continental crown, are already through ahead of facing Sparta Prague of the Czech Republic.

Vicente del Bosque's men won in Porto with several first-teamers out and the reserves - although they would no doubt walk into most other sides - are set for another outing as Real look to make it five wins out of five ahead of meeting Barcelona in the Liga next week.

That could mean a rare start for England winger Steve McManaman.

Porto, chasing a first win, host Panathinaikos with the Greeks currently enjoying a four-point lead over Prague ahead of hosting Real in their final game.

4-STAR MONTELLA: AS Roma striker Vincenzo Montella celebrates in trademark fashion after completing his hat-trick against Lazio at Rome on March 10.

Serie A Montella massacre

AFP, Milan

A superb display of goalscoring by Vincenzo Montella saw champions AS Roma thrash Lazio 5-1 in the Rome derby at the Olympic Stadium Sunday to move joint top of the Italian First Division with Inter Milan.

Italian international Montella bagged four as his team routed their arch-rivals to move level with Inter, who had shared a 2-2 draw with Juventus on Saturday night at the San Siro to stay a point clear of their visitors from Turin.

But Inter are now joined at the summit by a Roma side who lead by a goal on goal difference although that is a purely academic advantage as any two teams who finish the season level on points at the top will play off for the Scudetto.

Montella's magic night began with a first-half hat-trick - two headers and a rebound - which gave Roma a 3-0 interval lead.

Yugoslav midfielder Dejan Stankovic briefly raised hopes of a Lazio comeback when he scored early in the second period but then Montella killed the match with a well-taken fourth before Francesco Totti rounded off the scoring.

Roma boss Fabio Capello said: "We played exceptional football especially in the first half. In my time with Roma I have rarely seen us play like that, we hardly put a foot wrong throughout the match. I am absolutely delighted with them all."

Lazio coach Alberto Zaccheroni, who sidestepped questions about whether his job was in jeopardy, said: "We just have to put this game behind us and congratulate Roma who were a formidable side tonight."

Elsewhere Sunday Bologna beat AC Milan 2-0 to consolidate their grip on fourth place and a possible berth in the preliminary round of next season's Champions League.

First-half goals from Salvatore Fresi and Julio Cruz saw Bologna distance themselves from sixth-placed Milan.

After just three minutes of a match at Bologna delayed by traffic problems Fresi headed home a rebound after Giuseppe Signori's deflected freekick struck the bar to give the hosts a flying start.

And Bologna doubled up when in-form Argentinian Cruz rounded Milan goalkeeper Christian Abbiati before scoring.

"We are not in the Champions League yet," warned Bologna coach Francesco Guidolin. "But it is in our own hands now and if we keep our nerve and our concentration we will obtain our reward."

"To say it's a catastrophe is an exaggeration," said AC Milan coach Carlo Ancelotti.

"It's not over yet but we can't afford any more mistakes."

Fifth-placed Chievo also lost ground on Bologna although after having Christian Manfredini sent off they did well to get a 2-2 draw against Torino at the Stadio Delle Alpi.

Manfredini was dismissed for a petulant swipe at Gianluca Comotto shortly after Bernardo Corradi had put Chievo in front.

Experienced Torino striker Marco Ferrante squared the match and after Corradi bagged a second for Chievo it was Riccardo Maspero who netted Torino's second equaliser from a freekick.

Piacenza boosted their hopes of staying up with a 2-0 victory over Perugia.

Defender Eusebio Di Francesco opened the scoring and victory was sealed by Dario Hubner's 21st of the season, a goal that extends his lead at the top of the division's goalscoring charts.

At Verona it was a tale of two penalties. Parma's prolific striker Marco Di Vaio had his early effort saved by Verona goalkeeper Fabrizio Ferron while Verona took full advantage when their Romanian forward Adrian Mutu converted his for a 1-0 win.

Bottom club Venezia's plight looks hopeless after a 2-1 home defeat by fellow strugglers Brescia.

Uruguayan midfielder Federico Magallanes gave the Venice-based outfit the lead but after the interval a Federico Giunti penalty and a goal from Chilean player Jimenez Salgado gave Brescia the points.

Brescia coach Carlo Mazzone was far from satisfied, saying: "We are in big trouble and if we want to get out of it we will have to play better than we did today."

Fausto Rossini and Alex Pinardi gave Atalanta a 2-0 first-half lead at Bergamo against fellow strugglers Lecce.

Lecce defender Bruno Cirillo pulled one back but the 2-1 defeat leaves the southerners in big trouble.

Fiorentina drew 0-0 at home to Udinese, a result that leaves the Florence club looking doomed while the visitors from Udine are themselves perilously close to the drop zone.

Saturday's clash between Inter and Juve at the San Siro proved a thriller with Inter's Dutch midfielder Clarence Seedorf the star performer.

After Seedorf's spectacular opener goals from Frenchman David Trezeguet and Croatian substitute Igor Tudor looked set to give Juventus top spot before Seedorf levelled the scores at 2-2 in injury time with a fine 30-metre shot.

Primera Liga Valencia stay on course

AFP, Madrid

Valencia will not win many awards for entertaining football this season, but they have a bigger prize in mind, and moved a step closer to their first Spanish championship since 1971 with a 2-0 win over Sevilla on Sunday.

Valencia took the initiative against a dour Sevilla side content to defend, but their patient fans had to wait until the 66th minute before Juan Sanchez almost leapt out of his boots to connect with a Kily Gonzalez cross, and find the net with a header.

Sanchez, at a mere 1.72 metres, was dwarfed by his partner up front on Sunday, the giant Norwegian international striker John Carew, who is 22 centimetres taller.

The scrappy game saw both teams end with 10 men.

Ten yellow cards and two reds were dished out, the last one to Valencia midfielder Miguel Angel Angulo, who scored Valencia's second goal two minutes into injury time and then only moments later was given his marching orders for his over-zealous celebrations.

Valencia coach Rafa Benitez voiced his disgust with the dismissal of Angulo.

"The referee showed how much feeling he had for this game, doing something like that in injury time," said Benitez.

The victory gives Valencia 53 points from 29 games, one more than Real Madrid, who maintained their position in second place with an emphatic 3-0 victory over Villarreal on Saturday.

Celta Vigo kept up their challenge for a place in European next season with a 4-2 win at Valladolid to move up to sixth, helped by a hat-trick from their Brazilian-born Spanish international Catanha.

The Galician visitors took an early lead through Sergio Fernandez, before his namesake Fernando Fernandez equalised for Valladolid after 32 minutes, heading home a Tote Lopez free kick.

Catanha then struck twice before Celta were reduced to 10 men after 68 minutes, when defender Fernando Caceres was sent off after getting his second yellow card.

A minute later, Fernando got his second goal from the penalty spot after Celta defender Sebastian Mendez had handled the ball.

However, Valladolid dreams of salvaging a point from the match were to be short-lived as Catanha got his third goal from close-range, 16 minutes before the whistle, bringing his total to 14 for the season.

Malaga were two ahead in 10 minutes, thanks primarily to their Dutch midfielder Kiki Musampa, but then had to hang on desperately to their lead for the rest of the game,

Nesta sorry for horror show

AFP, Rome

Lazio defender Alessandro Nesta admitted Sunday night's Roman derby with AS Roma had been the worst performance of his career on the day that it was reported that he had come under the scrutiny of Manchester United manager Sir Alex Ferguson.

Nesta was replaced by coach Alberto Zaccheroni at half-time during the 5-1 thrashing by Roma after being responsible for all three first-half goals by Roma striker Vincenzo Montella who ended up with four goals.

For the first and third goals Nesta allowed Montella to beat him to head goals while for the second - although he had a big head start - he seemed to freeze, allowing Montella to make up yards of ground to stab home a rebound.

Nesta admitted he had lost the plot, saying: "I want to apologise to all of Lazio's fans. This evening my mind was just not on the job. I was all over the place and this was the worst game of my life."

"It was good that I was taken off. We decided it together, myself and the coach. But let's not make a drama of it: it won't happen again."

Zaccheroni felt the player had been unsettled by the transfer talk, saying: "The transfer rumours did not do Nesta any good even though it is something he will have to get used to."

Italian international Nesta is, barring injury, a certain starting member of Giovanni Trapattoni's Italy World Cup team in a three-man defensive unit that features Nesta in the centre, Parma's Fabio Cannavaro on the right and AC Milan's Paolo Maldini on the left.

Press reports earlier Sunday said that Sir Alex had identified Nesta as the man to fill the defensive void left at United by Dutchman Jaap Stam, ironically now Nesta's team-mate at Lazio.

Stam's United replacement Laurent Blanc, who is French, will quit football at the end of the season.

Club skipper Nesta has spent his entire career at Lazio and, as a native Roman, is idolised by supporters but recently club president Sergio Cragnotti admitted the club's need to balance the books may force him to sell him with United, Juventus and Real Madrid thought to be among the candidates.

French Cup Monaco join PSG on way out

AFP, Paris

Aristocrats Monaco were dumped out of the French Cup by Second Division strugglers Nimes on Sunday, the minnows winning their quarter-final on penalties after a 1-1 draw.

That result came hot on the heels of Paris Saint Germain's shock 1-0 home defeat to Lorient on Saturday.

The two shocks left three modest top-flight sides - Bastia, Sedan and Lorient - and Nimes in the semi-final draw.

Didier Deschamps' Monaco side will now almost certainly miss out on European qualification for a second consecutive year after a previous 26-year spell of always qualifying.

And PSG must hang on to third place in the league if they are to achieve their minimum target of a Champions League berth.

eventually running out 2-1 winners over Real Zaragoza.

Real Mallorca eased their relegation worries with a 4-2 win over Osasuna but had their supporters sitting on the edge of their seats throughout the match.

The island side threw away a two-goal lead, provided by Cameroon international Samuel Eto'o, who got both of Mallorca's early goals, before making their superiority tell in the final ten minutes.

Osasuna drew level early in the second half thanks to goals from Leonel Gancedo and Cesar Palacios but Miguel Angel Nadal and Paco Soler got late goals to enable Mallorca to put some distance between themselves and the relegation zone.

Tenerife and Real Sociedad are still mired in the last three but it was the Canary island side that won the relegation battle between the two, getting a 2-0 victory in San Sebastian.

Espanyol notched up their seventh unbeaten game when they beat Athletic Bilbao 2-0, their fourth consecutive win in the Montjuic Olympic stadium.

FA Cup Chelsea return compliments!

AFP, London

Rampant Chelsea joined Middlesbrough and Fulham in the last four of the FA Cup Sunday after thumping neighbours Tottenham 4-0 in a bruising London derby at White Hart Lane.

Frenchman William Gallas' first goal for Chelsea set the Blues on their way and a double strike from Iceland's Eidur Gudjohnsen sandwiched former England international Graeme Le Saux's effort to complete the rout.

Victory was sweet for Chelsea who in January were knocked out of the League Cup by Spurs at the semi-final stage after losing 5-1.

Le Saux turned from hero to villain 13 minutes from time in front of England coach Sven-Goran Eriksson who was watching from the stands.

The tenacious defender may have scuppered his slim World Cup chances as question marks were once again raised over his temperament following a needless 77th-minute dismissal for the use of an elbow.

Chelsea's reward was a local derby semi against west London neighbours Fulham on April 14.

away win over First Division West Bromwich Albion at the Hawthorns.

A Steve Marlet goal headed Jean Tigana's side into the next round, the French international striker leaping high to nod home a freekick from compatriot Steed Malbranque on 47 minutes.

Fulham's victory leaves them on course for a repeat of their 1975 FA Cup final appearance, when they were beaten by West Ham.

Earlier Sunday, Middlesbrough booked their semi-final place with a comprehensive 3-0 win over fellow Premiership strugglers Everton at the Riverside Stadium.

That win threw up a possible northeastern derby against Newcastle - if the Magpies can first beat Arsenal in their quarter-final replay at Highbury following Saturday's 1-1 draw at St. James' Park.

But the performance of the day belonged to Chelsea, who ran riot at White Hart Lane.

Goal hero Gudjohnsen admitted Chelsea had been keen to settle a score against Spurs following their League Cup humiliation earlier this season.

"I think everyone knew we wanted revenge," said Gudjohnsen. "The first-half was especially competitive."

"We got 1-0 up but in the last 15 minutes of the first-half we came under a lot of pressure. It was important to go in ahead at the interval."

Gudjohnsen's striker partner Jimmy Floyd Hasselbaink said the 5-1 drubbing at Spurs was all the motivation Chelsea needed.

"We were well prepared and we were up for it," he said. "We were prepared for everything."

Chelsea drew first blood with Gallas firing home from close range after 12 minutes.

Hasselbaink's inswinging corner from the left was only palmed away by Spurs' goalkeeper Neil Sullivan and Mario Melchiot knocked the ball back across a crowded six-yard box for Gallas to tap in.

Gudjohnsen doubled the visitors' advantage three minutes into the second half. Le Saux launched a long ball forwards and Gudjohnsen cleverly broke the offside trap for a clear run at goal, drawing Sullivan and knocking the ball through his legs and into the net.

Six minutes later Le Saux fired home the third after Tim Sherwood got caught in possession, the Chelsea man drilling home into the corner.

Gudjohnsen grabbed his second and Chelsea's fourth in the 66th minute after Jesper Gronkjaer touched Le Saux's clearance into Gudjohnsen's path and he ran the length of the Spurs half before slipping the ball under Sullivan.

Petrov gave Celtic a first-half lead but Arthur Numan levelled the scores for Rangers after the break with a blistering long-range drive.

The draw maintained Celtic's 10-point advantage and three more wins from seven matches will see Martin O'Neill's men retain their championship crown.
