"Arise, Shine, Thy light is come".
— Ecclesiasticus

He did not rise but the light returned and went out of his eyes in a flickering shine. Obaidullah Khan, who lived and died as a quintessential poet left the world on this day in 2001 after nearly a year of semicomatose incommutability from a massive brain haemorrhage.

The creative, sensitive and emotive inner being in him always stood taller than the enviable high positions he had held in national and international civil service, Bangladesh cabinet, ambassadorial assignment and other highly structured occupations at home and abroad. That is why poet Abu Zafar Obaidullah will live on in the legends of poetry. Amen.
