Kallis punched Lee through midwicket for another boundary and the scoring rate picked up when legspinner Shane Warne came on and was punished for nine runs in his first over by the left-handed Prince. SCOREBOARD

New Zealand selectors are cautious about risking key bowler Daniel Vettori for the make-or-break second cricket Test against England starting here on Thursday.

The talented left-arm spinner will undergo a fitness examination in the nets at training on Tuesday.

Coach Denis Aberhart said selectors were most likely to take a cautious approach with the injurytroubled spinner, who wants to play in the Test despite back trouble.

Experienced all-rounder Chris Harris was called into the squad on Sunday and will play if Vettori is

The final call will rest with the selectors after the net session.

"We'll have a serious look at him tomorrow, but we've got to balance our decision with the fact it's a long season and there's a lot of cricket ahead," Aberhart said Monday. "He's only 23 and he has a long career ahead of him."

unresponsive pitch in the 98-run first Test loss to England in Christchurch.

He bowled in the nets on Sunday and team physiotherapist Dayle Shackel said it was encouraging.

"He shaped up really well yesterday so he's keen to have another bowl, have a field and then make a decision as to his level of comfort." said Shackel Monday.

"He's been sore for a while, but it flared up more through diving in the field than bowling (in Christchurch)." If there is more pain after Tuesday's session, Vettori will have another scan to see whether the injury is muscular or a more serious problem in the bone.

Vettori's back injury first surfaced two years ago at the Basin Reserve here against Australia when he was just 21, and the latest flare-up is a big concern after he came through the three-Test series in Australia pre-Christmas without incident. Harris was selected to provide batting strength at number seven in the absence of the injured Chris Cairns and bowl his slow-medium pacers if Vettori is ruled out. Pacemen Chris Martin and Daryl Tuffey are likely to vie for 12th man duties. Martin's back injury is on the mend and he is likely to be consid-

"The specialist spin bowlers have had opportunities to put their hands up in domestic cricket, but no-one's really done that," said Aberhart. "The Basin might seam, so there are opportunities for the quicker bowlers.

The most pressing concern is whether pacemen Ian Butler and Chris Drum, with backup from either Martin or Tuffey, can knock over an in-form England batting lineup twice to square the series.

Young Warwickshire batsman lan Bell is expected to arrive here on Tuesday as cover for England pair Mark Butcher and Nasser Hussain. Butcher has been ruled out of the Wellington Test after he cracked a bone in his right hand in the first Test Hussain hopes to play despite jarring the middle finger of his right hand attempting to take a catch. Bell, who has played only 13 firstclass matches, made a big impres-

Australian Test captain Steve Waugh said he hoped his battered Australian cap would still be worn again following his team's fivewicket defeat in the third and final Test against South Africa at Kingsmead Monday.

World Test champions Australia won the previous five Tests against the second-ranked South Africans.

"We're disappointed to lose the final match but if someone had said four or five months ago, take fiveone, we'd have been pretty happy with that. South Africa played well and they have some good young players but we played very good cricket for most of the summer. Waugh, 36, deflected speculation about the future of himself and twin brother Mark, who were both dropped from the Australian oneday side that will play seven limitedovers internationals against South Africa in the next three weeks. Australia are scheduled to start a two-Test series in Zimbabwe on April 25 and Waugh admitted he was not certain whether he and Mark would be back in Africa following moderate performances at home and away against South

"I was pleased with the way I batted in the second innings and Mark played pretty well in both innings. We're trying our best, the rest is up to the selectors. Waugh wished new captain Ricky Ponting good luck. He said he would enjoy spending time with his family, but added: "I'd rather be playing the one-davers. It'll be nice to have a break but hopefully I will be back for Zimbabwe.

The Test side for Zimbabwe is expected to be announced later this acting captain, who clinched the win when he hit off-spinner Mark Waugh over mid-wicket for six, said he was proud of the way his team had come back. "We've been through some tough times," he said Boucher revealed he received a good luck call from former president Nelson Mandela before play resumed on the fifth day, with South Africa still needing 71 runs with six wickets standing. "I was a bit astounded to get the call," he said. "He wished us well and told us to keep our spirits high."

Boucher said the turnaround had been a collective effort. "Having been beaten so badly in Australia it was up to each guy to look at him-self. The guys needed to perform and to get that pride back. It wasn't me or the management, it was the guys themselves.

Boucher said he would be happy to hand the captaincy back to Pollock, who will return for the oneday series. He said Monday's win was important.

"We're a young side and we've taken a lot from these guys (Australia). We haven't come up against that sort of intensity before and hopefully we can make it part of our cricket in the future.

US Open champion Lleyton Hewitt added his first elite Tennis Masters Series title to his resume here Sunday with a dominating victory over Tim Henman in the Indian Wells final. Hewitt, who finished 2001 as the youngest player to hold the yearend world number one ranking, dispatched the ninth-seeded Briton 6-1, 6-2 in one hour and 21 minutes. "Dominating, that's a big word," said the top-seeded Australian, who wasn't quite ready to apply it to himself. "I wouldn't say dominating. "I give myself a chance every time I step on the court. I have been playing strong in the big matches

when it counts. It gets to a big match, a big-time, show-time match, and I go out there and play with no fear." Despite Hewitt's generous remark that the match was tighter than the scoreline suggested. Henman won just one service game throughout, his serve and volley
