SA rebuts rumour

REUTERS, Cape Town

South Africa has not been formally approached to host Zimbabwe-Australia matches next month, the United Cricket Board of South Africa (UCBSA) said on Tuesday

Australia are due to tour Zimbabwe for two Test and three one-day internationals, but there are fears over security following the disputed presidential election in the country earlier this month.

The UCB said that contrary to rumour neither the International Cricket Council (ICC), the Zimbabwe Cricket Union (ZCU) nor the Australian Cricket Board (ACB) had made a formal approach.

"Rumours that Willowmore Park and Supersport Park have been earmarked to host Test matches between Zimbabwe and Australia are unfounded." UCB chief executive Gerald Majola said in a statement on Tuesday.

"The UCB has not asked any of its affiliates to be on standby to host 7imbabwe-Australia matches

New Zealand coach Denis Aberhart wants his batsmen to be more patient in the second Test.

Apart from Nathan Astle's stunning fastest double-century in Test history, three batsmen -- Mark Richardson, Fleming and Craig McMillan -- were out in the first over of a bowler's new spell with McMillan attacking Caddick first ball.

"We've got to be more patient and the same goes with the bowling -- that was too inconsistent -- so this Test is all about doing the basics well," he said Tuesday. The other major concern is the state of the Basin pitch.

The ground has hosted a series of low-scoring matches this summer and is unlikely to change its spots at this late stage. Only 1,869 runs have been scored in three first-class matches at 17.15 a wicket. The highest score so far is 210 for three. Wellington has been blustery and cold this week ahead of the Test.

Mongia zaps Zim

Mongia, 24, put India on course for a big total with a brisk 52-run stand for the opening wicket with Ganguly, who elected to bat on an easypaced pitch at the Nehru Stadium. Mongia looked in excellent form from the first over, gathering runs comfortably to dominate a six-man Zimbabwean attack with a wide range of attacking shots.

He reached his first hundred in 15 one-day internationals in style, firmly driving seamer Friend through the covers for a boundary.

Ganguly (28) fell just as he had started hitting out, edging an awaygoing delivery from seamer Streak to wicket-keeper Tatenda Taibu who dived to his left to bring off a low

The Indian captain went for his strokes after a subdued start, hitting Douglas Hondo for two fours in an over and then taking two more off Streak in the next.

Zimbabwe came back into the match for a brief spell when Hondo dismissed Rahul Dravid (26) and Mohammad Kaif (five) in the space of eight runs before Mongia and Yuvrai took control. India and Zimbabwe both made one change from the teams that contested the previous day-night match at Hyderabad on Saturday. The hosts brought in all-rounder

Viiav Bharadwai in place of left-arm spinner Murali Kartik, while the tourists replaced seamer Mpumelelo Mbangwa with Gary

Jennifer, Lleyton top seeds

Tennis

AFP, Key Biscayne

Australia's Lleyton Hewitt and new World No. 1 Jennifer Capriati were named top seeds for the ATP Masters Series and WTA tier one combined hardcourt tournament that begins here Wednesday.

The 6.435 million-dollar event traditionally features the top field outside the Grand Slams.

Hewitt comes here after having defeated Britain's Tim Henman in Sunday's men's final at Indian Wells, where the men's and women's stars also gathered.

The Aussie star and US Open champion has a bye into the second Ninth seed Andre Agassi, the defending champion, seeks his fifth title here after earlier triumphs in 1990, 1995 and 1996. He will open with a second-round match against either Armenia's Sargis Sargsian or Britain's Greg Rusedski.

Pete Sampras could face a quarterfinal against Hewitt, who beat him in a semi-final at Indian Wells. But the 11th-seeded American might have to get past Russia's Marat Safin in the fourth round just to book that date.

Russia's Yevgeny Kafelnikov is the second seed, followed by Spain's Juan Carlos Ferrero, Germany's Tommy Haas, Henman, Safin, France's Sebastien Grosjean and Sweden's Thomas Johansson.

On the women's side, Venus Williams dropped from the top of the rankings after several weeks off but returns here with an eye to reclaim-

She could face sister Serena, the eighth seed, in a semifinal and Swiss star Martina Hingis, the third seed, in a quarterfinal. And a title showdown with Capriati is also a possibility, with the top ranking potentially at stake. Capriati finds herself on the same side of the draw as fifth seed Monica Seles, a possible semi-final foe, as well as Belgian stars Kim Clijsters, seeded fourth, and Justine Henin, seeded sixth.

An Afghan cricket team is to play a side assembled from the International Security and Assistance Force (ISAF) in Kabul on Wednesday, a spokesman for the peacekeepers said. "A cricket match will take place

Age-gp cricket Norwegian appeal

CITIUS · ALTIUS · FORTIUS

AFP, Lausanne

Norwegian athletes and sports officials have called for doping cheats from the Salt Lake City Winter Olympics to be stripped off all medals they won, including those prior to being caught.

The Norwegian appeal was made to the Lausanne-based Court of Arbitration for Sport (CAS), which acts as a final arbiter on matters of international sports disputes.

A CAS statement said that it came jointly from the Norwegian Olympic Committee and Sports Confederation and several skiers including Olympic gold medallists Ole Einar Bjorndalen (biathlon) and Bente Skari (cross country). It said they asked "in particular that the athletes Johann Muhlegg (Spain), Larissa Lazutina (Russia) and Olga Danilova (Russia) be disqualified from all cross-country skiing events" in which they took part at Salt Lake City. All three athletes tested positive for banned endurance booster darbepoetin on the final day of competition and were promptly disqualified. However they were allowed to keep medals won in previous events.

Norway also asked for the International Olympic Committee (IOC) to amend the results in those events and for medals to be awarded on the basis of the new Muhlegg, an estranged German cross country skier who has competed for Spain since 1999, was stripped of his 50km gold medal after he tested positive after the race. But he was allowed to keep the two gold medals won in the opening men's 30km freestyle race and the 10km pursuit.

After initially being congratulated by Spain's King Juan Carlos, in the wake of the scandal Muhlegg has now reportedly retired from the sport and has lost his job as a German customs officer. However in an interview with a Norwegian newspaper Muhlegg has threatened to shed more light on current practices in his sport. "I have a lot of information which has not been published," said Muhlegg last week "For me it would be easy to talk.

Very easy. I could create choas in the cross-country skiing world if I tell all I know but I don't want to." Danilova had won a gold in the women's 5km pursuit and a silver in the women's 10km classic won by Skari but she tested positive after the women's final 30km classic race, where she did not medal

However perhaps the most talked about disqualification was Lazutina. A nine-time Olympic gold medallist. Lazutina would have become the most decorated female cross country skier in the history of the Olympics had she not been stripped of her gold medal in the the start line.

After returning abnormally high haemoglobin (red blood cell) levels an hour prior to the Russian women's bid to win a fifth consecutive relay title, prompting the bitter withdrawal of her team, Lazutina returned days later apparently

However suspicions were confirmed when her urine sample tested positive for darbepoetin after the 30km race, casting a black cloud

If the CAS accepts the Norwegian appeal, all medals won by all those athletes would be taken away which could propel Norway into first place in the overall medals
