Health sector now plagued with corruption: Hasina

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Leader of the Opposition in the Jatiya Sangsad Sheikh Hasina has accused the four-party alliance government of destroying health sector by slashing budgetary allocations for it, massive transfers and influencing admission to medical institutions. Health sector is now plagued with massive corruption, transfers for harassment and promotion of incompetent health professionals just because of their allegiance to the ruling coalition, the Awami League chief said. Hasina was addressing doctors at a special council of the Swadhinata Chikithshok Parishad (SCP) at the Jatiya Press Club auditorium yesterday. The former prime minister said her government had tried to reach healthcare to the doorstep of the common man and taken a number of steps for development of the sector. "Our government had increased budgetary allocation for health, introduced community healthcare system and we were able to declare Bangladesh as a country free from polio in 2001," Hasina said to the cheering doctors. She said her government had allocated seven per cent of the national budget for health sector and Tk 15,000 crore for the Health and Population Sector Programme (HPSP). The present government has downsized the HPSP on the plea of financial constraints, she said, asking how then it maintains a council of ministers comprising as many as 60 members. About today's countrywide dawn-to-dusk hartal, the AL chief said she did not want to call hartal but she had to 'concede to a demand of the repressed people, a spontaneous demand of people' when police did 'excesses' during the hunger strike programme of her party recently. "We have called the hartal to protest continued torture and repression, distortion of history, price hike and move to dishonour the father of the nation," she said and called upon the people to make it a success. "Unrest is prevailing in the country, people of all professions and all strata of the society are living with a sense of insecurity due to a spurt in terrorist activities and kill- i n g s . Organised gangs smuggle motorbikes from India

Known as 'tana party' in Satkhira and Jessore, they also change brand, forge documents

SHAIKH NAZRUL ISLAM

An organised syndicate called 'tana party' in Satkhira and Jessore is engaged in stealing and smuggling motorbikes from India. On an average, its gang members bring in 50 such motorbikes in a month and sell those at prices between Tk 25,000 and 50,000 per piece. The price depends on quality and supply. Their target is new motorbikes. They do not touch bikes running over 1000kms, people in the border areas alleged. They are capable of converting a motorbike of one brand into any other brand by making necessary changes. They can dismantle and reassemble any bike, change the chassis number and emboss new number on it. They also give fake registration numbers and papers for these bikes. For this, duplicate copies of genuine licences and papers of motorbikes registered in far away districts are used. For example, for a stolen motorbike to be registered in Khulna, genuine papers of a motorcycle registered in Chittagong or Cox's Bazar are forged. The syndicate comprises several gangs, each having specific task. The groups work under the protection of law enforcers. A section of motorbike traders in bordering Ctg AL barred from holding rallies UNB, Ctg Awami League could not hold rallies in support of today's hartal as the authorities deployed police at all key points in the city yesterday. districts are also allegedly involved, some members of the syndicate told this correspondent. Members of one gang go to Kolkata and steal motorbikes with the help of their men there. They can cut the iron grills of a garage with specialised equipment called 'fighters' and steal a bike in minutes. They hand over those to another gang stationed in bordering Baghachra in Satkhira district and some other points in Jessore. The two-wheelers are then smuggled into the country through another gang, members of which are called 'carrier'. A carrier gets Tk 2,000 for each motorbike. "We pay Tk 3000 to BSF men, Tk 5,000 to BDR and police and the owner of a ghat in Bangladesh", one syndicate member said. A 'ghat' is a point through which the smuggling takes place. ASM NURUNNABI

Dhaka city's main roads measure approximately 2,300 kilometres, out of which only 165 kilometres are reportedly accounted for footpaths. By and large, the pedestrians are unable to use a large part of the footpaths for various reasons. Besides the large-scale encroachments by hawkers in all commercial areas of the city we find a continuous process of encroachment on footpaths in new areas. For example, the footpaths of Panthapath have been occupied by traders of so-called 'foreign ships furniture' at the same time, building materials, rent-a-car stands have taken up much space of the footpaths. The footpaths on the Sonargaon Road are largely occupied by businessmen dealing in tiles and mosaic materials. In the New Paltan area, there are some instances of encroachments on footpaths from overflow of stocks from the several car shops. The city footpaths attract a large number of people as these places serve as venues for sales of a wide range of commodities at comparatively low prices. The problem is admittedly a difficult one. The number of people seeking a living on the footpaths is always on the increase. The police authorities sometimes launch raids to clear the encroachments but the encroachers always reappear with uncanny resilience. It has been lately observed that while the government is planning an end to illegal occupation of footpaths by hawkers, a large portion of footpaths at Bijoy Sarani in the Tejgunipara area is found to be used as a parking lot by some leading business firms. More than a dozen business establishments are alleged to have used the footpaths on the eastern side of the VIP road as a parking lot. The parked automobiles cause a lot of inconveniences to the pedestrians and the local residents as they are often compelled to step into the busy road side taking risks. A pedestrian's steps are also beset with hazards when he tries to cross a road from one side to the other. The so-called zebra-crossings offer no guarantee of safety to the pedestrians. Moreover, zebra-crossing marks are not found at all important road-crossings. This situation places pedestrians at a grave risk when road crossing is necessary at such points. Many vehicles either through ignorance or carelessness are seen encroaching on the supposedly safe zones for pedestrians, where such markings exist. A serious threat to the safety of pedestrians is posed by the existence of open manholes in many SEE PAGE 11 COL 3

10 'listed criminals' in KCC polls race

STAFF CORRESPONDENT, Khulna

April 25 polls race include Molla Abdus Sattar from ward-21, Mohammad Hossain Mukta from ward-31, Taslimuddin Khan Babul from ward-15, Shamsur Rahman from ward-21 and Anis Biswas from ward-16. Police records say Golam Mawla Shanu is a professional killer. But he always evaded arrest due to 'blessings' of the successive ruling parties since 1985. Although he went underground in 1996 and remained so till January this year, he was involved in several murders as a hired killer. Litu was expelled from Jubo League after he was suspected in the murder of Shamsur Rahman. Several 'operations for arresting him' were simply viewed as eye-wash because he was found moving freely. At present, he is reportedly being 'blessed' by a ruling BNP lawmaker and this encouraged him to contest the KCC polls. There are also reports that the party has 'secret deal' with Litu, Shanu and such other terrorists centring the KCC polls. Shanu and Litu are now allegedly threatening voters in their respective wards to vote for them. Litu's father Muslim League leader Abul Khair was stabbed to death near Khulna Collectorate building in 1970 and his uncle Jatiya Party leader Abul Kashem was gunned down in front of Khulna thana in 1995.
