Acute water crisis at DU

UNB, Dhaka

An acute water crisis has been prevailing on the Dhaka University campus.

Sources said four pumps, out of 11, remained inoperative while the other seven cannot meet the total water demand of the campus dwellers. Around 20 lakh gallons of water is needed per day.

A competent source in the Engineering section of DU told the news agency that the water layer went down in an alarming rate over the last few years due to excessive withdrawal of under-ground water.

"The students, teachers and other residents waste huge quantity of water everyday," the source added.

"Water layer went 140 feet deep in comparison to 30-40 feet a decade back."

The pumps at Zahurul Huq Hall (including one tubewell), Jagannath Hall, TSC and Botany Department are now out of order. Some pumps also could not run in full scale due to fluctuation of voltage.
