An entertainment restaurant of the city stages 'Teen konnya-r loha-r bashor', a recital drama against acid violence

CULTURAL CORRESPONDENT

SPARAGUS, a restaurant located at Gulshan Avenue in the city, arranged a recital play, 'Teen Konnya-r loha-r bashor', -- Three maids behind iron bar on June 14 evening. The drama that revealed biographical narration from three girls of dreadful experience of acid violence was held as part of a routine monthly schedule of cultural entertainment organized by the management of the hotel for their valued guests. The restaurant management, in the past, had arranged live musical event, magic show and mini jatra performance before guests to provide them with some complimentary gift, as they dined. Sonar Tori Sangskritik Charcha Kendra, a TSC area-based students' forum involved in cultural and literary activities, was invited at Asparagus on the evening to present the narrative composition. The restaurant had arranged a buffet dinner along with the cultural event.

Three girls who were currently staying at a rehab center in the city were narrating their miserable condition and incidents through letter to their fathers, back at village homes.

As the synopsis got unraveled from the first narrator's speech, the audience heard with awe and sorrow, some unbearable and horrifying tale of torture and repression inflicted upon a girl named Mollika. The girl wrote a letter to her father narrating some fateful incidents of her life.

Bangladesh Bird Club and Dalchut, a little magazine, goes to Barguna's Aga Thakurpara to hold a bird fair among Rakhain community

CULTURE DESK

T would be a memorable trip for the members of Bangladesh Bird Club and for those of Dalchut, a little magazine, when the large group would reach a tribal village, named Aga Thakurpara at Barguna on June 29 to observe a day-long bird fair. The fair would comprise of bird watching through binoculars and mini telescopes, an exhibition of bird photographs by Enam, display of bird-related books, quiz competition, painting and rhyme contest among children on birds. Enam UI Haque, a reputed bird and portrait photographer who is also the chief convener of Bangladesh Bird Club, would lead the tour party.

Aga Thakurpara is a small village that has a total of 20 families who live in wooden huts. A temple of Buddha lies nearby where the pious villagers visit frequently to complete ritualistic services. Fifty huge trees remain scattered across the valley with a rich and diverse community of various kinds of birds and other forms of wildlife.

The bird fair of the city dwellers will be held inside the complex of the only proper
