Carnival

Of fun, frolic and fairy tales

Private book shop holds a two-day grand summer festival at a school premise in the outskirts of the city

TUDENTS, teachers, guardians and general visitors relished fascinating hours of fun and excitement at the STM Hall of Scholastica School at Uttara Model Town in the city during the last couple of days where Etcetera Bangladesh (Pvt) Ltd, a commercial book outlet and an associate of the Scholastica Group, held a unique festival, The Summer Carnival.

The carnival, organised by a management committee of the organisation of Etcetera and first of its kind in the country, featured various events of competition like the Race Day, a radio-controlled car race contest, Barbie Dolls' fashion show, yet another competition, Fisher Price Baby model contest, a photo session for children under the age of twelve and the Blue Mountain Greetings Card competition, one in which participants got a chance to compose their own card designs.

The 'Race Day' event was a contest of racing cars owned by participants who fought to win the top position while racing against time. A total of over hundred children and youth who were divided in three age groups competed to earn the best lap time. Models of realistic racing tracks with miniature hilly environment all around were laid out upon the spacious floor of a hall at the carnival venue of STM Hall.

'This sort of car racing is probably first of its type in Bangladesh and Etcetera is a pioneer in this matter', informed the stall manager of the Race Day contest. The racing cars' club that is managed by Etcetera in Gulshan has so for been able to hold two official racing contests at its club premises with participation of over 400 enthusiastic members and new Young visitors expressed their great joy and admiration at the appearance of Prince Ashu and Princess Lia, two popular characters who had arrived all the way from their kingdom at Ashulia to meet all, at the muchtalked carnival! Magic shows were being held throughout the two days of the carnival at STM in which magician Ali Raaj, a popular figure among the kids of Dhaka, displayed some enchanting magic performances to the delight and amazement of the young viewers. Some of the finer and more sophisticated events like the Barbie Dolls' Fashion Show, Fisher Price Baby model contest and the Blue Mountain Greetings Card competition were introduced at the carnival by Etcetera authorities with promotional purpose for their future dealership and trade. All of these items are soon to hit the racks of the Etcetera book shop for sale to general clients.

were set up inside the airconditioned hall rooms on ground and first floor of STM, dedicated in memoriam of a late founder of the Scholastica Enterprises, Syed Tanvir Morshed. Garments, handicrafts, gift items and toys were displayed in and sold from the stalls located on the first floor. A food court was too, seen at a corner on the ground floor where a wide variety of mouthwatering meals and delicacies were kept for the visiting clientele. A stall sold Chinese dishes and sweets.

Interior of the hall and the first floor were decorated in gorgeous style with tasteful selection of floral and paper garlands all around the stalls. The first day of the carnival remained open to the visitors from afternoon till late evening while the second day's proceedings spanned right from morning till night. Of course, due to Friday prayers, majority of the guests arrived after lunch on the second day. The organisers had also arranged special transportation service throughout the festival period for visitors to arrive at the venue, especially from downtown Dhaka.

Amer Ahmed, an Executive Director of the Scholastica Enterprises seemed quite delighted and satisfied about the response of the visitors who, as he felt, had shown tremendous interest. 'We have organised several events of competition in this carnival where young ones are taking part and as I strongly feel, children of our country, through this sort of events and fairs, can easily help themselves in
