UNFPA Poster Contest 2002 to witness award distribution ceremony in the city today

CULTURE DESK

A poster depicts a pregnant mother being taken to a health complex; at the corner of it is seen the sun emitting beaming smile that symbolises the safety and care for the mother as well as her soon-to-be-born child. Another poster presents a vivid picture of a poultry farm flocked with colourful healthy fowls, all surrounding a house-wife, who obviously is their owner - the whole picture is thus a representation of the woman's self-dependency. Still another upholds the necessity of education by showing a group of adults attending a lesson. These are only three instances from a large number of posters designed by children for the UNFPA Poster Contest, 2002.

A bunch of children and youngsters came to Bangladesh Shishu Academy on 29 June 2002, to participate in the contest. The contest is generally held in five age-categories: Category I includes participants from 6 to 8 years, Category II from 9 to 12, Category III from 13 to 15, Category IV from 16 to 18, and Category V from 19 and above. The winners of the contest are awarded by the UNFPA Bangladesh, while the first place winning posters in different categories are sent to the Headquarter in New York for contesting in the international level. The winners will be awarded today at the Shishu Academy, and the first place winning posters will be sent to New York for contesting in the International Poster Contest, 2002.

The first place winners in the contest are Sadat Ahmed Dipro, Reshad Mansur, Sharmin Haque Lazi and Sumon Wahed from the first four Categories respectively. No one, however, could accomplish for the first place in Category V.

Keeping 'Poverty, Population and Development' in the focus of all its activities, the UNFPA has been sponsoring the poster contest in Bangladesh since 1992. The UNFPA believes that the contest provides a creative forum for the young minds to explore the impact of poverty and development issues on their lives and in the lives of others. It also establishes the platform from where these tiny artists can give voice to their ideas and demands as regards development of the human condition. Indeed, the colourful posters their subject and the treatment of the subject, their motivational unfold the cravings and yearnings in the inner-world of these children. Although participants are given demonstration on the subjects of the posters before the contest, they are always highly encouraged to infuse their own creative talents in their work.

The subjects of this year's contest were: Education Builds the Future, Health for Success and Working Together for Equity. Participants had to choose one and present their composition on it. Hundreds of children from many different schools in the city came to take part in the contest. Aamra Kunri, a local cultural organisation, shouldered the responsibility of campaigning the contest in these schools. What is notable is that a few mentally and physically challenged children were also among the competitors.

Erratum: A story published in this page on July 7, titled, 'Of peace and harmony' contained a photograph, caption of which mentioned the venue as 'Rapport Seminar Hall', instead it should be read, 'auditorium of the Iranian Cultural Center'. The page regrets for the inadvertent error.
