An evening apart

As the rebel poet's death anniversary knocks at the door, Suborno Kazi's melodious Nazrul-lyrics enthralls the audience at Kochi Kanchar Mela in the city

SAIFUL ISLAM

🗖 UBORNO Kazi, the grandson of the rebel poet, Kazi Nazrul Islam, came very close to the heart of the audience, through his earnestness and devotion in the works of Nazrul, particularly the ageless lyrics. This was at a soiree, presented by Central Kachi Kanchar Mela on August 21. at its auditorium at Segunbagicha in the city. The ninety-minute session with the singer passed away at a stretch, smoothly. The listeners lapped up song after song.

Suborno struck one as resembling Nazrul Islam, in his features and smile. Only the eyes were different. Nazrul's eyes were more dreamy, as if caste upon a distance. Suborno's are more of a direct and sharp nature. His eyes touched the audience as well as his voice, which fitted Nazrul's timeless lyrics.

Suborno started with a patriotic song, chal chal chal, which created a vivacious atmosphere, the elan of the singer seemed to be transmitted into the listeners. The audience ioined hands echoing the rhythms of the moving song. From then on the voyage with

For the first time in Bangladesh such an event was organised by the PhotoJournalists' Association, and at its inauguration, the State Minister for Youth and Sports Fazlur Rahman Potol was present. In his speech the minister praised the photographers and the newsmen for their sincerity in delivering news to the people. He expressed his gratitude for the 'positive news coverage' on the sportsmen who took the opportunity to flee away during the Commonwealth Games.

At the apparently informal opening of the exhibit the members of the association discussed various important issues with the minister that has been making the job of the photojournalists difficult for so long. The minister said that remedy for these would be sorted out soon. The atmosphere of the occasion was intimate as the minister remembered the days of trouble when the journalists were beside him. Among the other photos some of them are featured on the tour of the World Cup in Bangladesh. The jubilant moments of cricket players, which is perhaps the most popular game in Bangladesh, were also showcased in the exhibit.
