

McKinnon for globalisation of democracy

BSS, Dhaka

Commonwealth Secretary General Donald C McKinnon yesterday called for continuing efforts to globalise democracy, saying democratic values, good governance and the rule of law offered the best environment for development.

He was addressing a seminar on "The Commonwealth in the 21st Century" at the Bangladesh Institute of International and Strategic Studies (BISS) as the chief guest.

The seminar was also addressed by Foreign Minister M Morshed Khan as special guest. McKinnon said the Commonwealth was making efforts to chart a path to the future -- to strengthen democracy, tackle poverty and underdevelopment and build a world of tolerance, stability and prosperity for all the peoples.

He said the international body has already demonstrated its capacity for conflict resolution and peace building, and its ability to build bridges across racial, political and economic divides.

Referring to Commonwealth activities in member countries, including Lesotho, Tonga, Cameroon, Solomon Islands and Guyana, he said the body was also engaged with the government of Pakistan to help secure free and fair elections and the restoration of democracy there.

In Bangladesh, he said, the Commonwealth projects over the last five years focussed on the promotion of exports, the diversification of the jute industry and the training of nationals in priority areas of need.

Referring to globalisation, he said in the Commonwealth, there were many who do not benefit from its opportunities.

He said, "Rich countries must start practising what they preach. They must open their markets to developing countries' exports."

Foreign Minister M Morshed Khan expressed the hope of working together with a vision and renewed commitment to realise the full potentials of the Commonwealth.
