HARUN UR RASHID

KAWSAR Chowdhury, a reputed maker of alternative film and documentary, holds a three-day show of his documentary film 'Shai Raat-er Katha Bolle Eshchhi' (Tale of the Darkest Night), from August 29 to 31, at the auditorium of the Russian Culture Centre in the city.

has already earned appreciation of viewers and film critics. Now with some changes, the film aspires for more interesting aspects. The 'tale' of the film is of those who survived the brutal genocide operated by the Pakistan Armed Forces on the people of then East Pakistan on the night of March 25, 1971.

Reconstructed scene shows the alien forces' heinous acts the film, Kawsar tells about a candle procession that was initiated by the Late 'Shaheed Janani' Jahanara Imam in 1993 as homage to the martyrs, who died on the fateful night. Kawsar had the opportunity to be one in the procession. There he met a woman, Nazia Zabin, with her little daughter by her side, both bearing candles in their hands.

A mother wails for her son who was killed in '71

Regarding how he got the idea of the film, Kawsar tells about a candle procession that was initiated by the Late 'Shaheed Janani' Jahanara Imam in 1993 as homage to the martyrs, who died on the fateful night.

Concert

Nescafe' Unplugged Plugs in Chittagong

CULTURE DESK

NESSCAFE' the world famous coffee brand has always tried to quench the thirst for music. Nescafe's stylish and unplugged approach towards music has always set aside from any other concerts in Bangladesh.

clock struck seven the auditorium was filled with the energy of the young audience who were impatiently waiting for the music to begin.

The musicians were jamming with Nescafe' audience where loud and cheerful and the coffee aroma filled the room with the sweet air of coffee. As the time wore on, the excitement mounted and continued even after the concert ended.

TODAY'S HIGHLIGHTS

STAR MOVIES: 5:00 p.m. Being John Malkovich. The story concerns a puppeteer, Craig Schwartz (Cusack), who discovers his office has a secret portal that leads directly into the brain of one of America's most popular actors, John Malkovich. When the journey ends fifteen minutes later, the participant is spewed onto the side of the New Jersey Turnpike.
HBO: 10:00 p.m. Buddy. A gentle, family-oriented dramatization of the autobiography of daffy Gertrude Lintz, a softhearted, soft-headed 1920s New York socialite who transformed her upstate mansion into a personal menagerie containing cats, dogs, birds, chimps, and the titular baby gorilla, all of whom were trained to wear clothing and behave as humans.

PICK OF THE DAY

Night of the Creeps
On HBO at 2:45 p.m.
Horror/comedy film about two college students, Chris and J.C., who try to fulfill their fraternity initiation by stealing a dead body. Unfortunately, when they do so, they unwittingly release "the creeps" -- large, slimy, wormy beings that can transform an unfortunate person into the walking dead once they enter the body. Can Chris and J.C. save the town before it's too late?
