Forms and colours to usher in unity of the new millenium

Joint exhibit of "Charcoal"'s four artists at Alliance Francaise

FAYZA HAQ

Exhibition

SHOK Karmaaker, Hironmay Chanda, Mokhlesur Rahman and Zahid Mustafa are four friends who, coming from different parts of the country to study art in 1979 became friends. Now they are all professional artists. At the end of 1999 there was the excitement of beginning a new millennium with the prospect of shaking off the dust of the past century and beginning something afresh. They then decided to form a group and they called this "Charcoal". The first exhibition of this group is called "Unity for peace and progress" in which they wanted to break through the ugliness that surrounded them as they advanced to progress and beauty. On 1st January 2000 the four of them got together to paint a single painting. This was somewhat difficult but spontaneous.

"If I worked on one section the others worked on the others and one artist's work could overlap that of the other -- such was the freedom with which they worked," says Ashok. "The painting had figures and circular forms. The present subject as you see at La Galerie, Alliance Francaise, could not be expressed in a realistic form and the artists wanted their own freedom. Each of us were involved in other individual work so that it took us two vears to have the exhibition. Normally I work with installations. beginning as a student of Print making. Since 1996 it has been installations that I was mostly involved in. I felt that if I moved on to abstractions I would be able to express myself.' Ashok continues to say," I have brought in the land and sky along with the circular form to indicate the moon. The blossoms that are rising up to the circle. There is land found in two sides of the painting brought in hazes of indigo blue. The moon brings in the element of peace. Blue. red and brown are used in the rest of the painting. The lines are dark while there is blue around the moon. In another of my painting is the form of an eve and around it are blue and black. There are circles within the circle to concentrate on the element of peace. Around are splashes of vellow, green and black Hiranmay adds," We are not around her and is calling out for that. forcing people to believe in what we In another painting the river is ourselves think and we are happy to brought as an element of unity as it be together and work together. The washes shores and brings thing to work is not illustrative but is one single flow." expressed in art form. We all have a

He continues to say," I've similarity in that we have worked on brought in a tree in one of my paintings and around it are birds The tree colour while others for acrylic or is in green and yellow ochre and it could also be seen as the mother figure around which fly the tiny white no frames as frames sometimes birds. The horizontal part in another painting combine the abstract forms found the two portions of the painting. There is a lot of tonal variation in the work."

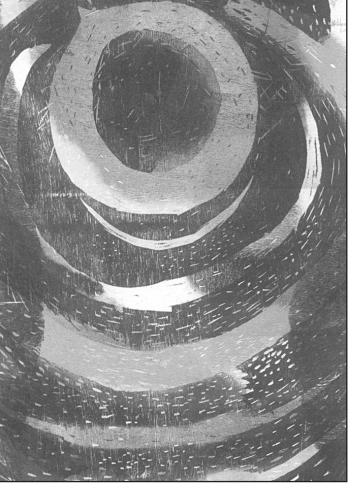

Zahid Mustafa says," I have worked mostly in watercolour although there is one in acrylic and another in mixed media. Our sociopolitical circumstances have led to me paint what I have done. In one of my paintings there is a mother on the upper half of the painting and the child in the lower half. Throughout the painting words from a poem of mine about the subject of mother is found scattered. This poem has appeared in a book edited by Joy Gwasmi and Rafique Azad. I believe that a mother is the highest element of peace and progress for us. I personally feel my mother's driving force behind the fact that I'm a painter today. The mother has outstretched her hand while the child below her might only have been conceived and not born. Another painting of mine brings in the waves of water in a river which also stand for the elements of peace. It has touches of green, blue yellow, pink and brown seen against a blue background. We have tried to avoid the phenomenon of darkness around us and move on to light and beauty.

Mokhles, speaking about his work says," This is woodcut print and I've brought in the circular form and other parallel segments of circles in red, blue , beige and black to represent unity. These are designs which would have been formed if we held hands and formed circles. Thus you see one circle surrounded by many portions of circles. The specks are brought in to bring in the woodcut texture. In another painting of unity one finds forms some being ovular and others rectangular which have all joined in the centre. This is done in black paper so that the artist has moved on to the lighter shade from the dark. I have brought in green as I have a weakness for this colour and it came automatically as I put yellow on the black background. I have purposely left the woodcut forms, which are obvious, as the red from the bottom peeps out. Thus you see the affect of transparency as I've worked with texture and form. My other work deals with progress and here you find round forms in the main body and the balancing sweeps. This is in blue, purple and green shades of sweeps. Ashok Karmakar has participated in more than 15 joint exhibits as in "Shikor O Phool", Fukuoka Asian Triennial, Japan, the Asian Biennale of 1991 to 2002, and young Artis' Exhibition 1981-1995. He has won prizes form Moscow, Kobe and Dhaka. Hironmoy Chanda has taken part in over 15 joint exhibits such as the 14th National Art Exhibition, Bangladesh Shilpakala Academy, "Art for Amnesty 1996", and exhibitions at Germany organised by the Deutsche Bank. He has three awards for painting including the 1984 poster competition by UNO, Dhaka. Mokhlesur Rahman has taken part in over 15 joint exhibits including the painting show on Tagore song organised by Gallery 21, and the 9th, 11th and 12 Young Artists' Exhibition arranged by the Shilpakala Academy. He has also taken part in the 6th, 7th and 9th Asian art Biennial. He has won two awards at the Saju Art Gallery in 2001 and at the 10th Asian Art Biennale. Zahid Mustafa has taken part in over 10 group exhibits such as the Grand Group Exhibition arranged by Saju art Gallery and the Group Art Exhibition organised by Shilpangan paper. Some have gone for water-woodcut print. The paintings bear limit the vision. All the works bear the same title 'Unity for peace and progress' but are numbered differ-ently. We have used the element of nature and mother to evoke the feeling of unity. In one of my work a mother bird has her chicks all over her as she controls the happiness of her young ones. In another painting the trunk of a tree is seen as a girl.

She wants nature to be green Champion's trophy. A relatively new and weaker side, Bangladesh would try their best in coping the Aussie attacks with both, willow and cherry. Though none hopes high of Bangladesh against Australia, yet the Bengal tiger fans hope a result that would be free of humiliation

Earth Pulse

Run the wild fields On Hallmark at 10:00 p.m. This is the compelling story of a mysterious drifter who comes to a small North Carolina town looking for work and is ostracized by the local people because of rumors that he refused to serve in World War II. He ends up boarding with a woman named Ruby, who fears that her husband may never return from his duty in the war, and her daughter Pug.
