Network Solutions for a Wider World

Huawei believes modern communication is for all the world citizens, and it is as important to create the connections that bring the simple necessities of rural development as it is to help to transform a complex economy. We realize both by offering a complete package of telecommunication system for core, transmission and access layers. It's based on a range of cutting edge products built to uncompromising quality standards which covers all types of fixed, mobile and data communications networks – from local to global for voice, data, video and internet connections. On the service side, we offer consulting, design, financing, after-sales support and full Turnkey project solution. With an eye on the future by investing fully 10% of all our revenues in R&D, we always keep our ears and minds open to our customers' saying. Come and talk to Huawei, you will get some fresh thinking about telecommunication, and network solutions that can widen the world for everybody.
