Coniunctivitis or inflammation of the membrane lining the inner surface of the eyelids is widely reported in the country.

The infectious disease is caused when the conjunctiva, the cause conjunctivitis too. thin laver of the evelids, is exposed to bacteria, virus, fungus or other irritants

Usually, tears help protect the conjunctiva by diluting bacteria and washing it away and contain enzymes and anti-bodies, which kill bacteria.

The commonest symptoms of the disease are itching and redness of the eyes, inflammation and often blurred vision. But all are not necessarily the cause of the same type of illness

There are many causes of conjunctivitis. Viruses are the most common cause of the infection in the sub-continent this time of the year

Pink eye refers to a viral infection of the conjunctiva. These infections are very contagious, especially among children.

The virus is similar to the type that causes the common cold. "The key to preventing this virus spreading any further is handwashing," a doctor said.

He said. "Bacteria are an uncommon cause of conjunctivitis but the commonest cause in Bangladesh now is viral which most of the time lasts for a certain period of time, two to three weeks, before the infection disappears."

Many physicians will give a mild antibiotic eye drop for all cases of pink eye to prevent bacterial conjunctivitis. Other causes are allergies and chemical exposure but allergies can be from anything from flower pollen to fumes. Bacteria in the birth canal or deems that necessary. It is also the latest conflict between intelligence agencies and the committees that oversee them. The panel and its House counterpart are conducting a joint inquiry examining intelligence failures leading to the Sept. 11 attacks.

Inquiry staff have pointed to a series of missed clues which, if taken together, might have pointed to the attacks. CIA officials have suggested those clues became obvious only with the benefit of hindsight and say their personnel did the best they could with the limited resources provided by Congress.
