Ramayan Gaan staged at Guide House in the city

SAIFUL ISLAM

A simple and lively performance by Shree Bimal Sadhu of Kotalipara, Gopalganj presented a vivid portrayal of the famous story of Ravan Vadh at the Guide House auditorium on October 15 in the city. The lyrical play was staged as a part of the celebration of the twelfth anniversary of Natyakendra.

Ramayan Gaan or The Song of Ramayan is a predominantly lyrical folk-drama. It is said that Kritibash's Ramayan, written in the panchali tradition, is performed in congregations, at the time of religious festivals, in villages. It is a trend that dates back to the Middle Ages. In Bangladesh in Mymensingh, Jessore, Dhaka, Khulna, Faridpur, and Cumilla this type of myth based folk-drama is performed even in any occasion which is worth celebrating. This type of play is known by different names in different places, such as Ram Kirtan, Ram Lila, Ram Mangal. It is believed by many Hindus that by listening to the songs that tales of the greatness of the lord Ram and the great prowess of the Ram bhaktas, and watching the performers on stage portraying the conflict between the Lankan army and the apes that fought in favour of Ram one can earn God's grace. That is why, in different auspicious occasions like marriage ceremonies and Thakur Pujas this play is performed.

It is the story of Ram, who is expected to have succeeded his father, the king of the country, to throne in the near future, but one of his stepmothers remembers to have a privileged right to ask for anything from her husband. She asks for the throne in favour of her own son, and Ram the eldest son to be banished. Ram, along with his wife, Princes Sita and younger brother Laxman, leave for forest to spend fourteen years. In the forest, Ravan, a king of demons, who has is the mightiest king on the earth in his time abducts Sita being enchanted by her beauty. Incidentally, Ravan was very learned and accomplished person. He was great devotee of Lord Shiva, and had obtained the boon that he would not be killed by anyone other than Lord Shiva himself. He was well-versed in Vedas, and other scriptures.

Ram with the help of monkeys such as Hanuman, bears and other animals and tribals fought victoriously against Ravan, killing many of Ravan's army, and came back to Ayodhya, the capital of his kingdom. Apart from this brief story line, there are many facets to the epic. The play Ramayan Gaan is primarily based on the Vadh or murder of Ravan, who had even ignored the gods and goddesses, by lord Ram, and thus it is a celebration of the victory of good over evil. The performers began with invoking the gods and goddesses and praying for the piece and prosperity of the country.

American studio meets fresh fate

Japan's Sony to put historic Hollywood movie studio on the block

LOS ANGELES, AFP

Japan's giant Sony Corp. is planning to sell a historic Hollywood movie studio where classics such as "Gone with the Wind" were filmed, the industry press said Wednesday.

The electronic giant's Hollywood unit, Sony Pictures Entertainment, is in exclusive negotiations with a group of private investors outside the entertainment industry to sell the Culver Studios for between 80 million and 90 million dollars, Daily Variety said.

The move to sell the studios -- an annex to Sony's main Hollywood base in the former Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, also in Los Angeles' Culver City area -- comes after it cut down dramatically on its network television productions.

But Variety said the Tokyo-based giant's Tinseltown arm would likely continue to use Culver Studios -- which are working to 100 percent capacity -- by renting space from the new owners.

The more than 80-year-old studio's 14 soundstages, which are fronted a colonial southern-style building that houses executive offices, were opened by Joseph Kennedy, the father of a future US president, and spawned some of Hollywood's most famous movies.

The Clark Gable and Vivienne Leigh classic "Gone With The Wind" began shooting there in 1938, when producer David O. Selznick set fire to a quiver of old sets to re-enact the movie's famed scene depicting the burning of Atlanta.

Before Selznick used the studios as his base, Tinseltown greats such as producer Cecil B. De Mille used the lot for his grandiose movies of the 1920s.

RKO Radio Pictures took over the lot from Selznick and controlled it for nearly 30 years, bringing stardom to Bette Davis, Robert Mitchum, Cary Grant, Katherine Hepburn and Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers.

During the 1930s and 1940s the studio was home to productions such as 1937's "A Star Is Born" Alfred Hitchcock's 1940 classic "Rebecca" and "Spellbound" in 1945 and one of the most acclaimed movies of all time, 1940's "Citizen Kane."
