Over 52,500 acres of khas land recovered from grabbers

UNB, Chittagong

Over 52,500 acres of khas land grabbed by influential people in five districts of Chittagong division were recovered in five months (till May 30).

Of the total land, 46,275 acres were recovered in Chittagong while 6,132 acres in Cox's Bazar, 120 acres in Chandpur, 59.21 acres in Comilla and 10 acres in Laxmipur districts, official sources here said.

According to the officials, there are 61,335 acres of khas land in eight districts - Chittagong, Noakhali, Brahmanbaria, Comilla, Feni, Chandpur, Laxmipur and Cox's Bazar.

The highest of 52,700 acres of khas land are in Chittagong of which 6,488 acres, mostly in Rangunia, Fatikchhari and Mirersarai upazilas, have been grabbed by the influential people.

Some 595.68 acres of khas land have gone under the grip of illegal occupants in Noakhali, 108 acres in Brahmanbaria, 137 acres in Feni, 45.40 acres in Comilla, 26.84 acres in Laxmipur and 98 acres in Chandpur districts.

Nearly 7,500 acres of uncultivable khas land in the division have been grabbed by politically influential people who change their colour with the change of government so that legal action cannot be taken against them.

Of the total khas land in the region, some 243.42 acres have been leased out properly while 60,092.26 acres are yet to be leased out.

Although there is no khas land under the possession of land grabbers in Cox's Bazar, there are disputes over the ownership of 62.35 acres of land in the district, the officials said.

They said cases had been filed to recover 16.60 acres of occupied land in Chittagong, 9.22 acres in Laxmipur, 1.32 acres in Feni and 98 acres in Chandpur districts.
