Govt to introduce ADR to ensure justice: Moudud

UNB, Dhaka

The government has decided to bring fundamental changes in the country's judicial system by introducing Alternative Dispute Resolution (ADR) mechanism to ensure justice.

Disclosing the decision, Law, Justice and Parliamentary Affairs Minister Moudud Ahmed said delays and expenses are the biggest hurdles in getting justice and if these could be squeezed by introducing ADR mechanism, smooth delivery of justice could be guaranteed.

Explaining the new judicial mechanism to a group of journalists at his office yesterday, he said it would help settle a case through mediation pending court hearings.

He said this mechanism, which was earlier introduced in family courts in 15 districts, proved successful and now it would be introduced in all the remaining 49 district family courts within this year. It would require amendment to the CrPC.

Moudud, also a noted lawyer, said that introduction of ADR also became imperative in civil justice administration to bring an end to delays and high expenses, which include fees of lawyers for repeated appearances in courts for hearing of cases.

"Through a proper mediation cases could be resolved in the shortest possible time and expenses could also be limited," he said explaining the ADR which he said has already been introduced in many a developed and developing countries.

By amending CrPC, India introduced this system in 1985 and Pakistan in 1991, he told the reporters.

To this end, a daylong national

37 listed criminals arrested

UNB, Dhaka

Police arrested 1,580 people, including 37 listed criminals, from different parts of the country during their on-going drive in the last 24 hours ending at 6am yesterday.

Police also recovered 13 firearms, 11 other weapons and nine rounds of bullet during the period and filed three cases against four people under the Arms Act, said a press release.

workshop titled "Alternative Dispute Resolution (ADR): In Quest of a New Dimension in Civil Justice Delivery System in Bangladesh" will be held today.

Former Chief Justice Mostafa Kamal will present a keynote paper in the workshop. Representatives of different professional groups, including lawyers and business community, will participate in the workshop.

About introduction of the new system in the other cases, apart from family dispute matters, he said this would be extended to cases of money matter in phases.

About Tk 6,000 crore worth of financial matter-related cases have been pending with the courts for last three to 12 years.

And cases of dispute over bank loans amounting to Tk 1300 crore are pending with the Artha Rin Adalat, he said, adding that this financial cases could be disposed of in the shortest possible time through mediation.

He said the new system would not be introduced in the criminal jurisdiction, but minor offences can be settled through such arbitration.
