Birthday Remembrance of Farah

Farah said "Remember me when I am gone away into the silent land.
When you can no more hold me by the hand."
And now, I an unfortunate father sit alone lingering here
With sad thoughts glowing and glittering in my cloudy breast
Like stars upon some gloomy grove.
You were laid to rest in heavenly bliss on March 29th '00.
Let your grave with rising flowers be ornamentally dressed
The green, serene turf lie lightly on your heart.
You are not alone
I am always here with you
Time will roll and shadows fall
But love and remembrance for you outlasts all
Bereaved & bemourned father

'Supply safe drinking water to contain health hazards'

BSS, Dhaka

Speakers at a seminar yesterday called for supplying safe drinking water to the people of all strata to contain water-borne hazards.

The seminar on "New drinking water quality management systems that could be applied for arsenic mitigation" was attended by representatives of the government, World Bank, UNICEF, Department of Public Health Engineering and other agencies interested in arsenic and water quality.

The Bangladesh-Australia Centre for Arsenic Mitigation Project organised the seminar at Dhaka Community Hospital.

The new management framework is based on the principals of 'hazard analysis' and 'critical control' points used internationally in the food industry, and the international quality management system (ISO 9001).

Dr Nadebaum, a technical director of Bangladesh-Australia Centre for Arsenic Mitigation, said, "The new approach uses a risk-based approach and ensures that the major risks in any water supply system are identified and controlled at the most appropriate point in the system."

The new framework was developed in Australia to provide for best practice management of drinking water supplies, and the systems are already in place in some of Australia's water authorities. Australia is working in close coordination with the World Health Organisation in this regard.

The aim is to apply the principles of this management approach to the selection and management of appropriate community-based water supply systems in Bangladesh within the Arsenic Mitigation Project.

Dhaka Community Hospital has been implementing the programmes across the country.

Dr Quamruzzaman, Chairman of the Hospital Trust, said, "the centre is carrying out important research to determine the most effective way of providing water free of arsenic to villages throughout Bangladesh and determining whether residual arsenic in soils and food crops could be a problem."
