International Ibsen conference and theatre festival, hosted by CAT, ends in the city

HARUN UR RASHID

THE week long conference and theatre festival on world-acclaimed Norwegian playwright Henrik Ibsen's A Doll's House came to a fine end through a seminar and free discussion at the 'Jaishaghar' of Hotel Purbani on November 13. Organised by Centre for Asian Theatre (CAT), the seminar focused especially on the play's influential aspects on the theatre of Bangladesh and other parts of the South Asian region by means of translation and adaptation.

At the two sessions of the concluding day of the conference, both Bangladeshi and foreign Ibsen- and theatre-scholars presented three papers and discussions on them. Moderated by Professor Knut Brynhildsvoll, in the morning session Norwegian theatre-expert Astri Ghosh presented his paper 'When Nora wears a sari: dilemmas and choices while translating Ibsen to South Asian languages. In his essay Ghosh pointed at what may occur 'when a drama intended for recipients in one language is translated into another, when the cultures are as far apart as the Norwegian and the South Asian.' Ghosh cited three examples of adaptations of A Doll's House by Azad Teatret, Masood Munawar and the graduating class of National School of Drama of India. Ghosh said that he had noticed dilemmas faced by the directors and also the choices adapted for overcoming the dilemmas, in the translations.

On the last day of the weeklong theatrical festival and conference, Professor Dan Olsen, a guest speaker from Denmark speaks at the concluding seminar at Hotel Purbani

Professor Naheed Quayyum pointed in his paper 'Shombhu Mitra's adaptation of A Doll's House: a comparative study, that there is a certain difference between translation and adaptation of a literary work. He said that a translator does not have the freedom of making any contextualisation generally enjoyed by a director who adapts a literary work. Quayyum's paper showed that freedom of contextualising

Ibsen's play by legendary theatre master Shombhu Mitra while producing the adapted version Putul Khela.

Professor Shafi Ahmed discussed on the transformation of a particular character in the play, namely that of Nora--the protagonist. Ahmed's essay 'Nora: the translation of the image on the Bengali stage' showed the importance of Nora's character in the academic field. It also depicted the transformation of the character on Bengali stages by various directors, being 'artfully Bengalicised and domesticated', and often being strengthened by presentation of her 'in transfixed contexts'. Ahmed opined that this very presentation of Nora on Bengali stage in Bengali manner prompts us to scrutinise the views that lie behind such transformations of the character. 'The Noras in Bengali theatre again prove the vigour and variety one woman is capable of demonstrating', said Ahmed.

In the open discussion session, participated Professor Jette Lundbo Levy and Professor Dan Olsen from Denmark, and famous actor Khairul Alam Sabuj. Theatre personality and Joint President of CAT Masud Ali Khan presided over the concluding ceremony. In the evening renowned Baul-singers of the country presented a lively musical concert at the Dikhusa Mancha of the city hotel in honour of the foreign delegates who stayed there over the week.

Tagore in Paris

ANN, New Delhi

THIS exhibition of Rabindranath Tagore's paintings will be one of the biggest ever, in India or abroad.

About 300 paintings and sketches by Tagore will be displayed in Paris for three months, probably in the autumn of 2004, as part of an Indo-French initiative to strengthen cultural ties. The exhibition has been planned by the School of Fine Arts in Paris in collaboration with the National Gallery of Modern Art and Visva-Bharati University, Santiniketan. Some works from private collections will also be displayed. "There has never been such an exhibition of Tagore's paintings. We need a long time to put it together," said Mr Guy Sorman, author, and member of the Indo-French Forum, co-chaired by Mr MK Rasgotra, former foreign secretary, and Mr Jean Francois-Poncet, former French foreign minister. The "deal is done", said Mr Sorman, but the authorities are still searching for the right gallery for an exhibition of this size. The Museum of Fine Arts in Paris is a possibility.

Along with the exhibition, there will be discussions on his poetry and his music, but the main focus will firmly be on his paintings. The initial idea of a Tagore exhibition reportedly came from Mr Pierre Henri Cousseaux, director, School of Fine Arts, Paris. There is a possibility that other painters from the Tagore family, Abanindranath and Gaganendranath, may also be represented, but the emphasis, Mr Sorman said, will firmly be on Rabindranath Tagore. As part of the show, Fayard, the French publishers, will translate some of Tagore's works into French. "The original translations sound a little archaic. Fresh translations are necessary," he said.

A similar exhibition is being planned for Gupta Art in 2005. Sculpture that has never been sent outside India will be on display. The exhibitions are part of a huge effort to increase Indo-French cooperation in the fields of culture and other areas, including industry and technology. Cultural "bridges" are being planned between Indian and French cities and importantly, works of 20 Indian writers will be directly translated into French from Indian languages.
