NE doesn't have to go far to get signed paintings by Showkutuzzaman and Farida Zaman. Right in the heart of the city is "Saranga" where you can find these and more and they are being sold for a song, so to say. These same paintings could have sold for astronomical prices by the owner, Situma Zaman Nadi, who happens to be the daughter of the two well-known artists mentioned above. Although having won many prizes for her art work earlier, at 21, Nadi wanted to do something for which the comment would not be a harsh "See-- nepotism!" Nadi is now doing her BBA in Finance and Banking and realizing that her father who. literally gives away painting for a clod of earth, decided to take matters in hand as regards the financial backing of the house, and opened up this boutique. Here you will find wrap around shawls with exotic and soothing "kantha" stitches with their flowers and twirling, gliding and caressing entwining leaves and flowers in matching colours to potpourri which can fetch bargains if

Here too the local bourgeoisie too could do their shopping for the special occasions, for their homes and their loved ones living here and overseas. The items sold here contain subtle and gorgeous hand painted and signed cards which would hold the imagination and interest of any art connoisseur anywhere in the world. Moreover, there are large, medium sized and small cushions with "kantha" stitches and cross stitches in black and white with other complimenting colours. Items which could be bought for similar prices maybe obtained at "Pollywog" (Gulshan) but the range of items that one can obtain here are far more mindexpanding.

Coming to the paintings, there are flowers and leaves along with a hovering dragon fly and semiabstract portraits of women in buovant but gentle colours done by Sahawkutazzaman and Farida queen or the prince seated on the "haudah" with accompanying soldiers with their royal colours weapons and horses. These are done in a geometrical manner with a range of burnt sienna and pale beige with more accompanying geometrical designs where required. The dolls follow the heritage holding basic designs and patterns and so do the masks and burnt clay birds. All the terracotta bric-a-bracs have been fired in Jinjira, Old Dhaka, with the designs and motifs being given by the two eminent artists, Shawkat and Farida.

There are then the exotic cushion covers with their delicate and carefully executed motifs. Such items, sold at incredibly low prices any bourgeoisie budget and not necessarily those of the upper echelons of our society. The backgrounds are basically off-white or white or even black with gorgeous colours that would win anyone's approval. There are what could be the prized possession in any home-- the "nakshi" stitched items which could be used either as bed covers or worn even as shawls; they have scintillating coloured tassels which match the gorgeous work combination work which any lover of "nakshikantha" which one would be hard put to find anywhere else in the city, including "Arong", specially for only Tk. 1,500. Sure, there are more subtle and bigger ones in the city say as found say, at "Arong" but those would be for a steep Tk 5,000 in comparison.

Again , here the soft hued "shalwar-kameez" sets done in blue, pink, white ,jade, mustard with muted pastel work on them in "kantha" stitches are surely rare commodities in the local haute couture scenario. After catering to the slim ladies and the teenaged young women, one can move on to examine the saris such as the burnt sienna and turquoise blue ones with matching borders and "anchals" with their wonderful patterns and motifs done with neat and precise flowers or geometrical patterns. There are then the silk saris with block motifs such as the tal rectangle juxtaposed with the others. Moreover, there are gliding bars, almost like Shelly's clouds, traversing the "anchals" of the saris. Perhaps for the evening occasion, the black saris with their mix of back body with tiny motifs. the border that appears like rows of leaves on their twines, in pinkish gold and blue with dividing vermilion lines and the "anchal" with sophisticated accompanying motifs in yellow-ochre, black and pink gives one the desirable, graceful, finishing effect. In such a sari you could look like the moon in the sky that poets rave about and artists include in their paintings.

The Baily Star

The men's wear include "punjabis" with minute cut gem -like neat stitches with design down the front and on the sleeves on dramatic black cotton where the beige and white motifs delight your eves . The "fatuas" in silk and cotton with batik print with bending mushroom designs complementing the mushroom and "alpana" motifs on the sleeves, neck and bottom in beige and bottle green should be adequate and "cool" to wear around at casual occasions or even when entertaining guests at home. The intermingling Aztec motifs -found even in Bandladesh -- as simplified and modified abstract forms of waves and boats, in turquoise blue and beige done against a white background ; complete with a high rounded neck and neat pockets would win the approval of the picky young ones.

Last but not least are the children's in pastel shades of baby blue, soft pink and contrasting gray with hand embroidery and lace are something to gaze at and probably buy for your favourite niece or nephew

Shawkatuzzaman explains the origin of the name "Saranga" that was chosen for the shop: it comes from the elements the go into the making of Indian classical art, such as"drupodh"(elementsofart),"akar"(shape), "ghet" (differences) "bhab," (friendship),"labonno"(glamour)," shadrishan"(similarities) and "borna"(colour)
