Squad to be finalised today

Official announcement tomorrow

SPORTS REPORTER
Dav Whatmore will sit with the national selectors today to finalise a 15-man Bangladesh squad for the tour of Australia.
The meeting will be a test of Whatmore's observation power as the 49-year-old got very little time to have a good look at his 21 probables after taking over as Bangladesh coach. It will also be important for the Australian to forge a balanced combination from the available resources before embarking on the gruelling assignment down under.
Bangladesh will fly to Australia on June 22 for their maiden series against the world champions. They will play two Tests and three one day internationals.
The former Sri Lankan coach got only a week to work with his boys and that too was hampered by rain. But despite the shortcomings, Whatmore said on Monday that he had made up his mind regarding the final fifteen.
Although the squad is more or less predictable, still the formal announcement on Thursday might spring one or two surprises.

It is almost certain that three players, dropped after the World Cup in South Africa, are set to return.

The man from Rajshahi has remained the country's number one wicketkeeper for the past twelve years.

Free stroking batsman Al-Shahriar is also expected to make a comeback to national duties after being dropped from the TVS Cup and the GrameenPhone Test series following a poor World Cup. But even if he returns, his batting position might change. He has been regularly made to open, although many feel his style is more suited for the middle-order.
Hannan Sarker is likely to partner opener Javed Omar in the testing conditions of Australia although there are two other candidates to fill the opening slot. They are young Moniruzzaman and former national opener Shahriar Hossain.
But the general feeling is that it's not wise to expose Moniruzzaman, the highest run scorer in domestic cricket this season, to the hostile conditions in Australia as the 27-year-old has no previous international experience.

Flower plays Pakistan

AFP, London
Andy Flower showed Zimbabwe what they were missing as he hit a unbeaten 115 in Essex's 50 run victory over Pakistan in their one day match on Monday at Chelmsford.
The former Zimbabwe skipper - who retired from international cricket after the World Cup following his black armband protest against the regime of President Robert Mugabe's regime - proved the impetus behind the county's total of 284 for six.

However Pakistan can take little consolation from even getting to 50 runs of the total as they were facing a below strength Essex outfit, for whom wicketkeeper James Foster scored 56 to boost his claims to play in the upcoming one day series should Chris Read not recover from his broken thumb.
The only Pakistan batsman to make a fight of it was Yasir Hameed, who took advantage of being dropped on nought to go on and make an attractive 82 off 89 balls including nine fours.
Flower had put on 90 with Foster for the second wicket and 95 with Ravinder Bopara for the fourth.
He played patiently throughout before accelerating at the end to reach 115 not out from 128 balls with 11 fours for his first century of the season.
While the world's fastest bowler Shoaib Akhtar is set to complete his ban for ball-tampering in the first one day international on June 17, he was able to play here and the 'Rawalpindi Express' took two wickets.
There were also two wickets for his opening partner Mohammad

Sami and spinner Shoaib Malik, including Bopara after a brisk 46.

Hall to quit as WICB boss

CRICINFO, Barbados
The Reverend Wes Hall will step down from his role as president of the West Indies Cricket Board (WICB) on health grounds within the next few days, according to a report in Barbados-based Sunday Sun newspaper.
Hall is understood to have advised all the various members of the board of his decision, and the timing of his decision means that a new president can be chosen at the board's AGM in Dominica next month.
Hall, 65, took over in July 2001 at a time West Indies cricket was suffering from infighting. His predecessor, Pat Rousseau, had resigned following a decision to reinstate team manager, Ricky Skerriit, who had been fired.
It is unclear who will emerge as Hall's likely successor. Val Banks, the current WICB vice-president, is not thought to be interested. Some reports have indicated that Tony Marshall, a former president of the Barbados Cricket Association and a WICB director, might throw his hat into the ring.

Woolmer slams Smith

CRICINFO, Pietermaritzburg
Bob Woolmer, the former South African coach, launched a scathing attack on Graeme Smith, in response to his disparaging comments about Lance Klusener a week ago.

BOB WOOLMER

Speaking at a benefit dinner for Dale Benkenstein in Pietermaritzburg, Woolmer said he was deeply hurt by the present state of affairs in South African cricket, before going on to point a finger at Smith, who had questioned Klusener's team ethic in a breakfast interview.
"I can't really believe that Lance has not been selected to tour England," said Woolmer. "It was because of him that we got to the semifinals of the 1999 World Cup in the first place. That man wins games for South Africa and then someone had the temerity to attack him at a breakfast."
Smith is the youngest man ever to lead the national side, and Woolmer was incensed by his lack of respect for a man who has been a mainstay of the team for over half a decade. "Graeme Smith has not been playing long enough and after five Tests has no right to criticise someone whose track record for South Africa is so good," he said.

ACB's appreciation

BBC ONLINE, Sydney
The Australian Cricket Board (ACB) is to honour the country's 199 living Test cricketers at a special function in Sydney on Wednesday.
They will each receive a commemorative baggy green cap and an official Test number, recognising each individual's place in the list of players to have represented Australia.
"The 385 players who have worn the baggy green cap have collectively contributed to a sporting tradition that in turn has helped develop our distinctive Australian national culture," said ACB chief executive James Sutherland.
Bill Brown, who made his debut against England at Trent Bridge in 1934, is Australia's oldest surviving Test player.
His commemorative cap will carry the number 150 while Queensland batsman Martin Love will be 385 following his first appearance against England last winter.

"The foundations of the game today and the commercial success that it now enjoys are a direct result of the efforts and achievements of all players who have earned the right to wear the baggy green," said Tim May, head of the Australian Cricketers Association.
"This function represents an ideal opportunity to not only recognise those players who have contributed to Test cricket's great history, but also to remind us of the depth of such foundations."
Australia recently beat West Indies 3-1 in the Caribbean to confirm their place as the world's top Test side.
Steve Waugh's team will return to action next month for two home Tests against Bangladesh.
It will be the first time Test cricket has been played in the northern Australian cities of Darwin and Cairns.

MSC to boycott GrameenPhone ceremony

SPORTS REPORTER
Mohammedan Sporting Club will boycott today's prize distribution ceremony of the GrameenPhone Premier Division Cricket League.
They took the stand to protest CCDM's (Cricket Committee of Dhaka Metropolitan) decision of declaring the Motijheel based club joint runners up along with City Club.
Although both clubs finished in equal second behind champions Victoria Sporting Club, Mohammedan maintained their claim that they have a better net run rate than the Mirpur-based club.
In a letter to Bangladesh Cricket Board president Ali Asghar yesterday, Mohammedan said the decision to announce make both clubs joint runners up was a clear violation of the by-laws of the league.

Anderson relishes it

SPORTINGLIFE, London

If there was one defining moment in the astonishing rise of James Anderson from Lancashire second team seamer into an international star it would have been the last time he faced Pakistan's awesome lineup during last winter's World Cup.
Encountering a side which included the glittering talents of Inzamamul Haq, Wasim Akram, Saeed Anwar and Waqar Younis, 20-year-old Anderson could have been forgiven for shrinking in the limelight of the spectacular Newlands venue in Cape Town.
Instead he provided one of the first glimpses of his aptitude for the big stage with a stunning display which excited a crowd packed with England supporters and established Anderson as the emerging star of English cricket.

That has since been followed by his first senior hatrick for Lancashire against Essex at Old Trafford with England captain Nasser Hussain becoming his middle victim before he claimed five wickets on his Test debut against Zimbabwe, the first English bowler to achieve such a feat since Dominic Cork terrorised the West Indies in 1995.
For all those achievements, though, Anderson will particularly welcome the return of Pakistan to England for a three-match one-day series starting at Old Trafford on June 17 if only because it is a team he already has a psychological edge over following his World Cup exploits.
"The highlight of my winter was definitely the match against Pakistan in the World Cup," he admitted.
