AFP, Nottingham

Chris Read believes he is ready to step into Alec Stewart's shoes as England's first choice wicketkeeper.

Read was in fine form in England's recent one-day matches against South Africa and Zimbabwe and has put himself in the frame for a place in the England squad to be named Friday for the first Test against South Africa at Edgbaston.

"I now believe I have got what it takes to play both forms of the game. I know my own game-plans so much better than I did four years ago," Read insisted.

The 24-year-old keeper has three Test caps to his name from the summer of 1999 but now feels that his experience at county level plus 19 one-day international appearances have sharpened his game.

"When I played for England first time around I was nowhere near the complete cricketer and still don't think I am, if there is such a thing. But the fact is I am a far better player now, having learnt so much over those years just through the experience of playing first-class cricket and analysing my own game."

The Nottinghamshire keeper may have to bide his time for a second chance at Test level.

The 40-year-old Stewart is England's second-highest run-scorer behind Graham Gooch in Test history and his country's most prolific batsman at one-day international level, as well as first-choice behind the stumps.

"Alec has been a terrific servant for England all told and I don't dwell too much on how he has done in the past, I just try and do my job as it's required for the team in any given situation," said Read.

"Certainly, having done a lot of batting with Nottinghamshire and the Academy over the last 12 months I am very keen to make a statement with the bat and contribute runs."

King relaxes rules

AFP, Washington

United States Fed Cup captain Billie Jean King, struggling to field a competitive line-up, has compromised the headline rules that chased away Jennifer Capriati and Lindsay Davenport.

The 59-year-old tennis legend said Wednesday she has smoothed over a flap with Davenport and ended a ban on personal coaches attending US workouts in advance of this weekend's quarter-final tie here against Italy.

King, whose hard-line stance on the coaching issue led to Capriati's dismissal from a 2001 Fed Cup squad, allowed eighth-ranked Chanda Rubin and 18th-rated Meghann Shaughnessy to have their coaches attend workouts.

Cagers accorded reception

SPORTS REPORTER

The Bangladesh Basketball Federation (BBF) accorded a reception yesterday to the national basketball team for their achievement in the Asian Basketball Confederation qualifying tournament in New Delhi.

Bangladesh improved their rank bagging bronze medal in the tournament. After losing to gold medalists Uzbekistan and hosts India, the Bangladesh cagers bounced back to secure the third place defeating Nepal and Sri Lanka in the Middle Asia Zone.

The victory over Sri Lanka was their first against the islanders in five meetings.

Federation officials were hopeful the team would do well in the upcoming SARRC tournament which Bangladesh hosts from December 19-24. Nitul-Tata is likely to sponsor the regional meet.

State Minister for Youth and Sports Fazlur Rahman, who attended the reception as chief guest, assured that a modern basketball court in six divisional headquarters would be constructed.

Abdul Matlub Ahmed, chairman of Nitul group, declared cash award for the players. Each player will get Tk 5,000. But declared the amount would be five times better if hosts Bangladesh clinched the SAARC title.

Executive director of Transcom Beverage Golam Quddus Chowdhury, BBF president Major General (ret'd) ZA Khan and other federation officials also attended the function.

Bangladesh team: Fazle Samad, Nesabul Islam, Mizanur Rahman, Rsahed Uzzaman, Sulip Barua, Lutfur Rahman, Kamruzzaman, Mostafa Kamal, Monil Miah, Imran Khan and Arfan Uddin Ahmed.

Head coach: Wasif Ali.

In other matches, Shahid Nabi High School scored a 17-6 win against Islamia Adarsha High School, Ansar & VDP defeated Khilgaon Government Staff Quarters High School 37-18 and Dolaipar High School beat Millat High School 37-18.

UAE targets ODI status

AFP, Karachi

The United Arab Emirates is striving to get a berth in cricket's 2007 World Cup with an aim to achieving one-day international status, UAE's Indian coach Syed Abid Ali said Wednesday.

"I see a lot of potential in UAE cricket and hope that our targets of winning a berth in the 2007 World Cup in the West Indies and getting the one-day status from the International Cricket Council (ICC) are achieved," Ali told this news agency.

UAE featured in the 1996 World Cup co-hosted by India, Pakistan and Sri Lanka but failed to qualify for the next two in 1999 and 2003.

Ali, 61, who is here as coach of the UAE youth team competing in the Youth Asia Cup, played 29 Tests and four one-day matches for India between 1967 to 1975.

"Since we are in ICC's high performance teams, both the ICC and Asian Cricket Council (ACC) are helping us and now it's up to the boys to prove themselves," he said. Under Ali, the UAE retained the ACC Trophy last year.

Ali disputed the idea that ICC has taken a strong stance on giving rights to new countries after Bangladesh's dismal showing since being granted Test status in 2000.

"No, even after what happened to Bangladesh, ICC has been actively helping the other fledgling countries to grow," he said.

The former Indian all-rounder sees good prospects in the resumption of ties between Pakistan and India.

"I feel the more cricket is played between Pakistan and India the more they come close and the relationship is normalised," said Ali, who could play only one exhibition match in Pakistan in 1970 during his career.

India snapped bilateral cricketing ties with Pakistan in the aftermath of an attack on its parliament in 2001 which New Delhi blamed on militants based in Pakistan.

However, the recent peace overtures raised hopes of resumption of cricketing ties in near future.

India A pile on the runs

AFP, London

India A took control of their tour match against Surrey at The Oval on Wednesday thanks to some impressive batting with centuries from Sridharan Sriram, Gautam Gambhir and Ambati Rayudu.

Resuming on 235 for two left-hander Sriram was just eight shy of his century while Gambhir was digging in on 43.

Sriram hit triple figures in 159 minutes from 126 balls with 17 boundaries before being caught behind off the bowling of England one day international Rikki Clarke on 115.

Vijay Bharadwaj only managed seven but Rayudu then swept to 101 in just 103 deliveries with 15 boundaries and two sixes.

By the time the tourists declared at 462 for four, Gambhir was also into treble figures, amassing 130.

Surrey had made 39 without loss from their 12 overs of the second innings in reply with Jonathan Batty unbeaten on 27, but they were still some 250 runs behind.

(27) played positively, while Aaron Laraman's carefully-compiled 41 not out pushed Somerset towards 250.

When they closed five runs short of that figure there was a chance for Gibbs to play himself back into form.

But the South African opener could manage only 17 before edging a lifting delivery from Steffan Jones to wicketkeeper Gazzard.

Kirsten and Dippenaar took the score comfortably to 99 before Kirsten got a leading edge to off-spinner Wes Durston and lobbed a catch to cover.

Dippenaar went on to a half-century off 66 balls with nine fours.

team, but instilled by his successes as coach of Sri Lanka, he sees the Australian tour as a wonderful opportunity for his players.

"When things are tough in international cricket it's the hard things you do rather than the soft options that I'm looking for," he said.

"I'm really interested to see how the players react to difficult periods which is always on when you're playing good sides like Australia.

"You don't get this opportunity very often and this is a great place to learn what it is all about.

"When you're playing really good sides some of our better ones might just come across and that's what I am hoping, but everyone will be taking back with them some little thing where they need to do to improve.

"To me it doesn't matter if you're bowled out for 50 here, as long as they can show me that they can fight and they're not taking the soft options.

"There's no disgrace if you do get beaten against the team like Australia, as long as these boys are keen to improve their own game by going about it in the right way, and that's all I'm interested in."

Australia has reverted to a four-strong bowling attack after playing five bowlers in the April-May series against the West Indies in the Caribbean.

Australia will go in with a fast bowling attack of Glenn McGrath (425 wickets), Jason Gillespie (163) and Brett Lee (119) with Stuart MacGill (114) offering the leg-spin option.

"We thought it was better to go back to the regulation formula of just four bowlers than five bowlers," Waugh said.

"Stuart MacGill has been playing English county cricket so he's ready to go, and the three quicks just needed a break, so they'll be fine."

Australia are going into a Test match in the unique situation of hardly touching a bat or ball for the last month, as they recover from a gruelling playing schedule of 10 months' continuous cricket, but Waugh is far from perturbed.

"I think a month off was good preparation for the guys, mentally and physically, they've been going 10 months straight, you can't keep that up, so I think it will do the team a lot of good having some time off and relaxing and getting away from cricket," he said.

"It's a positive, that the guys have only got back into it a week ago, they'll be fresh for the game and ready to go."

Moya bows out

Tennis

AFP, Stuttgart

Australian Open finalist Rainer Schuettler continued his good form this season here on Wednesday to reach the third round of the 765,000 euro (857,000 dollars) ATP tournament.

Despite playing the final few games in heavy drizzle the German ace recovered from a break in the seventh game to surge through 6-2, 6-4 against younger compatriot Maximilian Abel.

Elsewhere, top seed Carlos Moya crashed out of the tournament at the hands of another German, the unheralded Tomas Behrend.

Moya lost both sets on tie-breakers 7-6 (7/5), 7-6 (7/2) as Behrend needed just one-hour 42 minutes to defeat his Spanish opponent.

Another of the favourites to crash out of the competition was Wimbledon semi-finalist Sebastian Grosjean who fell victim to Italian Filippo Volandri.

Germany's Tomas Behrend celebrates after defeating Spain's Carlos Moya in Stuttgart on July 16.

Wooforde wants Dokic in team

Tennis

AFP, Sydney

Fed Cup coach Mark Woodforde on Thursday revealed he made an indirect approach to Jelena Dokic at this month's Wimbledon championships about playing for Australia again.

Tennis Australia (TA) delayed naming its team for this weekend's Fed Cup play-off against Colombia in Wollongong until two weeks ago - after Dokic ruled herself unavailable.

Australian number one Alicia Molik reportedly was less than pleased with TA's deferred team announcement.

Woodforde's admission confirms TA was keen to have Dokic, a former Wimbledon semi-finalist and world number one junior, back in its fold, despite their well-documented past differences, involving her notorious father Damir.

"I had a word with her coach Heinz Gunthardt," Woodforde said on Thursday.

"Obviously, I'd heard some of the whispers about (her coming back). It was just to find out what's going on. I think he was probably scratching his head a little bit, just as much as we all are back here."

"I can't give you any lead on what her mindset is. He (Gunthardt) confirmed that she has spoken about wanting to play for Australia but it hadn't progressed any further than that."

"He just said that she needed to try to get some wins under her belt at that stage."

"She'd had a few first-round losses. I think her mind really now is on getting her ranking back up."

"I don't think she's thinking about who she's playing for, who she's playing and where she's playing. It's about getting her ranking back up."

Australia's team to take on Colombia in the World Group promotion-relegation tie consists of Molik, Nicole Pratt, Samantha Stosur and doubles specialist Rennae Stubbs.

others guessing."

This is typical of the approach of Dav Whatmore, the enigmatic Bangladeshi coach. He has refused media access to anyone other than captain Mahmud although he had allowed brief access by the Daily Star to Al-Shahriar.

"It is another challenge. I think I'm a little bit toey like any Test match," he said adding that he had his 'special goals'.

"It's not to measure the games as wins or losses, we are really trying very hard individually to become better players, collectively if we can do that then we are going to be more competitive," said Whatmore.

And will there be some surprises?

"I hope so. I would never individualise, we need contributions from right across the board."

"That could come from the least likely area."

"We've been lucky in the warm-up games, we've been playing 12 players as agreed with both teams."

"We've had an opportunity to have a good look at the ability to go in with four quicks as opposed to three and maybe a couple of spinners."

"That might not be a bad combination. That decision will be made together with the captain after we have a decent look at the wicket later on in the practice today."

"The area that differentiates between the good sides and the ones that are learning to be good is the ability to make the right decisions, whether you are a bowler or a batsman."

"The Bangladesh team will do very well to improve their performances if they make more correct decisions, so that becomes a bit

The French fourth seed failed to get going and picked up just three games in a 6-2, 6-1 loss.

Schuettler got caught up in a race against the weather, and looked like achieving that when leading a set and 4-2.

His subsequent break of serve was a stumble he didn't need, but one from which he recovered to end the affair in just over an hour.

"I wanted to finish before the rain," said the world number eight, who is aiming for a top five standing and a place in the year-end Masters Cup in Houston.

"It was a stupid break, but I got it back. I played good tennis, overall, it was a solid performance," added the third seed.

Behrend claimed his second major clay-court scalp of the season as he stunned the top seeded Moya to earn a meeting with big-serving Max Mirnyi of Belarus on Thursday.

Less than two months ago, the 28-year-old Behrend, ranked 98th in the world, beat former world number one Marcelo Rios at the World Team Championship in Dusseldorf.

Moya, ranked fourth, has had a disappointing two weeks on his favoured clay surface after crashing out in the semi-finals in a vain bid to defend his title last week in Baastad.

Behrend said some early luck turned the match his way.

"I feel sensational," he said after levelling his 2003 mark at seven wins and seven losses. "I risked a lot."

"I had to play aggressive or I had no chance against him. I got a little lucky in the first set - at 6-5 his missed some easy forehands."

"I played a great tie-break and that got me thinking that maybe I had a chance to win."

Volandri's victory over Grosjean avenged a loss the 21-year-old took in Hamburg in May.

"When I lost then, I had just come from Rome where I had played a lot of matches," said the world number 60.

"I played a lot better today."

Last week's Gstaad winner Jiri Novak rolled in winning 6-4, 6-4 over Armenian Sargisjan.

But Spain's David Ferrer defeated 16th seed Ivan Ljubicic of Croatia 7-6 (7/3), 6-1.

lost the first three Tests to post the highest winning total in Test history and a 1-0 Test series victory over Sri Lanka.

"We started something with this team in Guyana against the Australians which has worked for us and we will be looking to continue in this vein," he said.

"We want to show the players that commitment and personal responsibility, along with the right attitude, discipline and hard work are the only ways that they can improve as individuals, as a team and in world cricket."

Logie played his Test match cricket between 1983 and 1991, scoring 2,470 runs at an average of 35.79.

His one day international career lasted from 1982 and 1993, gathering 2,809 runs at an average of 28.95.

logistical problems to Cricket Australia.

Darwin's Marrara Oval, where the match will be played, is normally an Australian Rules Football ground, and has never hosted a first-class cricket match, never mind a Test.

Because the ground was not up to Test match standard, a temporary pitch, weighing 36 tonnes, was grown in Melbourne then shipped north and dropped into place by a giant crane.

There were no suitable sight-screens available in Darwin either, so the old screens at the Melbourne Cricket Ground were cut up, transported and then reassembled.

The second Test against Bangladesh will be played in Cairns in tropical north Queensland and Cricket Australia is already looking at playing more winter Tests.

Australia's team have entered into the irreverent spirit of the match by bringing their families with them, taking their children on visits to crocodile farms and nature sanctuaries.

just two or three years into Test cricket.

"The time will come when the Bangladesh people will get more."

Money aside, Mahmud said representing Bangladesh home to more than 130 million was a reward in itself.

"Definitely (there's) a pride," he said.

The Bangladesh basketball team was accorded a reception yesterday for their achievement in the Asian Basketball Confederation qualifying tournament in New Delhi recently.
