POWDERED MILK
15pc suppl duty cut

STAR REPORT

The government has withdrawn 15 percent supplementary duty on imported bulk powdered milk in a bid to slash its prices, a National Board of Revenue (NBR) statement said yesterday.

The duty will now come down 22.43 percent to 56.5 percent from 78.93 percent, the statement added.

The government also reduced supplementary duty on imported energy-saving light to 15 percent from 40 percent to promote its import, as it provides light four times the electricity consumed.

The NBR also said the government decided to cut 7.5 customs duty on imported soyabean and sesame in an attempt to encourage entrepreneurs to set up such industries.

Authorities created a separate lane for rickshaws along Mirpur Road by the New Market, but that has never been in use and garbage and shops block it now. It summarises the age-old story of bad planning and waste of funds.

Law, order improvement, curb on graft key to fighting poverty: Saifur

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Poverty alleviation measures can never witness success without improved law and order and curb on corruption, Finance and Planning Minister M Saifur Rahman said yesterday.

"All the initiatives towards poverty alleviation will fail if improvement in the country's law and order and an end to corruption can not be ensured," the finance minister told an assembly before a meeting organised for suggestions before preparing the Poverty Reduction Strategy Paper (PRSP).

The Planning Commission, the assigned body to prepare the PRSP, organised the meeting, first of its kind at national level. Academics, policy makers, government and private sector officials and non-governmental organisation (NGO) members, among others, took part at the discussion.

"If a trader has to face extortion on the street while bringing rods for his economic operation or if a dishonest businessperson spends Tk 100 crore for a work of Tk 50 crore, how can you expect a better economy?" Saifur said, resenting the country's overall situation.

He also urged participants to help make a paper that will ensure employment opportunities for the people.

"We need employment-generating economic growth for poverty reduction. Providing the poor with microcredit can only help reduce poverty momentarily.

Saifur said ensuring good governance at all administrative levels is required to raise the present economic growth to a satisfactory level.

He asked the Planning Commission to put emphasis on proper allocation of resources to different districts.

"Our experience shows that areas having a number of influential persons receive more funds for development works than those having less or none, which causes deformity to the country's limited resources."

He also stressed continuation of

The tape, along with the arrest of three Moroccan and two Indian suspects, provided the strongest indication yet of an Islamic link to the attack on one of Washington's staunchest allies in Iraq. The Spanish government, however, said it could not confirm the tape's authenticity.

The announcement came just hours before polls were to open

Indo-Pak peace, nuke proliferation and hunt for Laden on agenda

REUTERS, Washington

The hunt for Osama bin Laden, Pakistan's nuclear proliferation, Indo-Pakistani peace talks and Afghanistan's nascent democracy top Secretary of State Colin Powell's agenda as he visits South Asia this week.

Powell, who was scheduled to leave Washington yesterday, makes his first trip to India and Pakistan since July 2002 as the United States has begun a spring offensive in Afghanistan to try to catch the accused Sept. 11, 2001 mastermind.

Given Pakistan's porous border with Afghanistan, the help of Pakistani President Pervez

Musharraf is thought vital if the United States is to catch bin Laden and defeat his al-Qaeda network and their former Taliban supporters in the region.

"They want bin Laden and they want Musharraf to survive because they think it's the only chance of getting bin Laden," said Jim Steinberg, a foreign policy analyst and a former deputy national security adviser under US President Bill Clinton.

While pressing Musharraf for every possible assistance in the "war on terror," Powell is also expected to privately seek maximum information on the activities of Abdul Qadeer Khan, the Pakistani scientist who has admitted selling nuclear secrets to Iran, Libya and North Korea but was pardoned by Musharraf.

The United States has chosen not to criticize Khan's pardon partly out of fear that a public trial could implicate many in the Pakistani elite and undermine Musharraf's rule. But it also wants every scrap of information about what Khan did.

"If I were asking ... I would say where did he go, when did he go there, who did he see and what did he share?" said Karl Inderfurth, a former assistant secretary of state for South Asian affairs who expected the issue to be raised in private.

She was addressing the soldiers at a 'darbar' in Maghida Cantonment here on the occasion of flag raising ceremony of the newly raised 26 Infantry Brigade and foundation of the brigade headquarters.

the role of the armed forces in various social-welfare activities apart from their duty of safeguarding country's independence and sovereignty.

"Their roles in disaster management, relief operation, embankment building and making houses for the rootless are laudable," she said.

Khaleda, who is also in the charge of defence ministry, appreciated the role of Bangladeshi troops in different peacekeeping missions abroad by saying, "The role of the armed forces in UN peacekeeping missions has brightened the image of the country."

GOC of the 11 Infantry Division Maj General Fazle Elahi Akbar also spoke on the occasion, while Chief of Army Staff Lt General Hasan Mashhud Chowdhury was on the dais.
