The price is at the top of a band of 680 to 750 rupees announced before the public offer and a 5.3 percent discount to the share's current trading price of 792.15

The Coca-Cola is going to make fresh investment in Bangladesh to bring in new products and strengthen its sales and distribution system.

"Within the next three to four months we are going to introduce new products such as Vanilla ice cream and Vanilla coke," said Sanjiv Gupta, president and chief executive officer of Coca-Cola India, in an interview with The Daily Star on Monday

For further growth and aggressive sales the company intends to bring in new people to Bangladesh to upgrade its sales and distribution network, added Gupta, who arrived in Dhaka on Monday on a threeday visit.

With a huge population of 130 million Bangladesh's market has high potential, felt Gupta. Within a short time, it is possible to turn Tk 600 crore Bangladesh market into Tk 1000 crore one, Gupta observed. "We need to offer right packages at right prices," he said

Citing examples, Gupta mentioned that Coca-Cola is maintaining double-digit growth in some Asian countries including India and China.

"We want to expand the business of returnable glass bottle (RGB) which is under exploited," he said, adding low-cost and eco-friendly RGB generates more employment and provides best value to consumers

Scheduled to leave Dhaka today, Gupta hopes to visit Bangladesh every quarter to execute his mission of becoming aggressive to promote the sales here.

Oil prices surge as Opec looks set to cut output

AFP, London

Oil prices rose on Monday as Opec looked set to defy calls from oilimporting nations for the cartel to reverse a decision to cut output next month.

The price of reference North Sea crude oil for April delivery rose 64 cents to 32.88 dollars per barrel in late deals.

New York's benchmark light sweet crude April contract surged 71 cents a barrel to 36.90 dollars in early trading.

Several Opec ministers gathering at an energy conference in Cairo insisted that the oil market was well supplied, and that a weak dollar and the recovery of the global economy justified recent prices.

Venezuela's Energy Minister Rafael Ramirez told reporters: "Are you expecting us to change our decision in April? No. We have the consensus to cut in April.

HP to sell Linux-based PCs in Asia

AFP, Tokyo

US technology giant Hewlett-Packard Co. (HP) plans to start selling several models of Linuxbased desktop personal computers in 12 major Asian countries this June, a Japanese news report said Tuesday.

Shipments could reach one million units in the first year in regional markets including Japan, China, South Korea, Indonesia, Thailand and India, the Nihon Keizai Shimbun newspaper said, citing sources close to the firm.

The operating system and application software, including spreadsheet, word-processing and other business applications, will be procured from Japanese companies, the Nihon Keizai said.

Because the PCs will use Linux instead of the more costly Windows platform, they will likely be priced around 400 dollars to 1,500 dollars -- or 44,000 yen to 165,000 yen -- making them 20,000 yen to 40,000 yen (180 to 360 dollars) cheaper than comparable Windows-based PCs, the newspaper said.

"It certainly indicates the economic recovery is sustainable at a strong pace. It should only be a matter of time before factories start to hire again," Guatieri said.

The economy produced a meager 21,000 jobs in February, government data showed, meaning the nation has gone through a record 44 months without a single month of job creation exceeding 250,000.

The unemployment rate was stuck at 5.6 percent.
