Power disruption hits Savar

JU plunges into darkness

JU CORRESPONDENT

Academic and administrative activities of Jahangirnagar University (JU) came to an abrupt halt as power and telephone connections remained snapped for the last 48 hours until yesterday due to continuous incessant rain.

The university plunged into darkness after two transformers went out of order on Monday night because of the gusty wind.

It may take one or two more days to restore power, sources said.

The students are also facing food crisis as inclement weather forced most hotels and shops on the university campus to keep the shutters down.

The power disruption also caused severe loss to business establishments in Savar. Production in different industries dropped to 50 percent as power remained snapped since Sunday night, leaving them dependant on electricity generators.

Most shops at Andha, Chourangi Super Market, Razzak

Plaza and other markets also kept their shutters down.

"We would not be able to operate our power houses until the rain stops as a power house in Manikganj was badly damaged on Sunday night," said an officer of Savar Palli Bidyut Samity.
