Saudi health minister arrives today

Saudi Health Minister Dr Hamid Bin Abdullah Al-Manea arrives in Dhaka today on a three-day official visit.

He will lead a high profile official delegation, says a press release.

During the visit, the Saudi delegation is expected to meet with President Iajuddin Ahmed and Prime Minister Khaleda Zia. The Saudi health minister will also hold a meeting with his Bangladesh counterpart Dr Khandaker Mosharraf Hossain.

Export of quality medicine and taking doctors and trained nurses from Bangladesh will come up for discussion in their meeting.

destroying the education system and politicising all educational institutions.

The government has "rehabilitated inefficient partisan people trampling all rules and regulations, policy and ethics," he told a meeting marking the Education Day.

Education and Human Resources Affairs sub-committee of the Awami League organised the meeting at the party's Dhanmondi office, with Prof AK Azad Chowdhury in the chair.

Jalil said the immediate-past Awami League government had started to implement a 'pragmatic, scientific and secular education policy' it formulated in line with the report of Dr Qudrat-e-Khuda Education Commission formed by Bangabandhu Sheikh Mujibur Rahman.

But the government was engaged in deep conspiracy to introduce an anti-people, backward and communal-frenzy creating education system in the name of so-called Moniruzzaman Education Commission.

"All higher seats of learning are now affected with session jam, making the future of new generations uncertain. The government has pushed the education system towards ruination through politicisation, terrorism, corruption and plunder," he said.

The AL general secretary called upon people of all strata, including teachers and students, to unite against Khaleda-Nizami alliance government to overcome the mismanagement prevailing in the academic arena.

AL Education Secretary Nurul Islam Nahid, Dr AAMS Arefin Siddique, Dr Harun-or-Rashid, M Shahe Alam, Bahadur Bepari and Khalid Mahmud Chowdhury also spoke.

RESERVED SEATS FOR WOMEN

'Bill to be passed in next JS session'

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

A bill providing for the reserved seats for women will be passed in the next session of the Jatiya Sangsad, said Deputy Speaker Akhter Hamid Siddiqui yesterday.

The Jatiya Sangsad most probably will see women members in the reserved seats by January as they should be elected within 45 days from the passage of the bill, he said at the concluding session of a workshop.

The British Council and Khan Foundation jointly organised the five-day workshop on 'Women in Parliament: Empowerment and Effective Participation' in the city.

The bill seeking 45 reserved seats for women in parliament has already been placed in the House and sent to the parliamentary standing committee for scrutiny, said the Deputy Speaker.

Although women are competent, the political parties do not nominate them for general seats as they could not work hard for winning the election in face of various social obstacles, Siddiqui said.

He hoped that such obstacles would be removed soon and women could be able to become lawmaker through direct election.

Women participants in the workshop called on the political parties to earmark 10 percent nominations for women in the national election.

Speaking as chief guest, British Council Director Dr June Rollinson said it is absolutely important for optimum progress to have equal participation of men and women in the decision-making process.

Marry-Anne Stephenson, consultant and trainer of Women Empowerment in Politics, and Advocate Rokhsana Khondker, executive director of the Khan Foundation, also spoke.

About 40 women politicians from across the country took part in the workshop.
