Books

An Essay on the Nature & Significance of Economic Science
Lord Robbins, Price: Tk. 1500.00
The slim volume here reprinted nearly a half century after its first appearance, along with Lord Robbins's Ely lecture on the same subject, can only be regarded as a dangerous revolutionary document. It caused an upheaval in the settled habits of thought of professional economists very soon after its appearance and it engendered controversy which has not yet abated—controversy which continues to be created now as it was then. Even those who disagree most strongly with positions taken in this book will readily acknowledge that they are substantial and that they have changed the course of economics by forcing economists to separate out clearly what they can derive from analysis standing firmly on logical and empirical evidence and the conclusions dependent on the observer's personal ethical precepts.

Feelings
On Disability Issue in Bangladesh
Shahidul Haque & Shahnaz Begum
Price: Tk. 200.00
Behind this book a painful story is lying that is not possible to express here within a limited word and space but it can be said that it has come out from a pain and I feel that it was extremely important for me. In 1989 Julian Francis who worked in an international NGO named CUSO opened my eyes to think about myself and what for I am working. Initially his discouraging word regarding my vision came to me as a blessing and later on his encouragement and inspiration in different ways inspired me to write some thing on disability issue that was on 17th April, 1989. So the initiative of this book has been taken in 1989. Now it is 1997. A long time has been passed by this time. I tried my best to present what I have realized during the working period and the problems and pain what I have faced through this book to you. If you find any useful information from this that will be our gratification of this struggle.

Face reality. Be honest about what is happening to the majority of people in Third World countries. The message of this courageous book is that the benefits of development, so long promised over the past fifty years, have not come about for most people. Nor are they going to. The necessary investment is not available and modern technology actually dispenses with labour rather than providing jobs for the growing multitudes in the cities of the South. Many countries, and large parts of their cities in particular, are already collapsing into 'ungovernable chaotic entities' under the control of warlords and mafias.
