'Create awareness to end violence against children'

Speakers tell seminar
STAFF CORRESPONDENT
Speakers at a seminar yesterday called for creating social awareness to eliminate all forms of violence against children.
They also called for strict implementation of laws to safeguard the child rights in the society.
The seminar on 'Confinement of children and juvenile justice in Bangladesh' was organised jointly by Brac Advocacy and Human Rights Unit and Save the Children UK at the Brac Centre Inn at Mohakhali in the city.
The speakers said mere enacting of new laws cannot ensure the child rights. Only public awareness through mass campaign can achieve the desired goal, they added.

The speakers also urged the affluent section of the society and NGOs to come forward for the rehabilitation of the distressed children.
"The government should amend the laws framed by the British colonial rulers in view of the present situation," said Afsan Chowdhury, director of the Brac Advocacy and Human Rights Unit.
He said poor children are most vulnerable to crimes and some people are using them for anti-social activities.

"Children arrested for anti-social activities become terrorists in later life because they spend their life in jail with professional criminals," said Advocate Habiburnessa of Save the Children UK.
Many abused children also spoke on the occasion.
Later, a publication titled 'My Childhood in Chains' was launched.
According to the publication, around 2513 incidents of torture and violence against children took place in 2003.

Allow NGOs to publish report on HIV/AIDS
Speakers urge govt
JU CORRESPONDENT

NGOs and other private sectors working on HIV/AIDS should conduct yearly surveys to make the reports on HIV contracted people public with a view to focusing the picture of HIV/AIDS in our country, speakers at a seminar said.
The seminar was held at the National Press Club yesterday.
Bangladesh Manobadhikar Sangbadik Forum (BMSF) and Bandhu Social Welfare Societies (BSWS) jointly organised the seminar titled "HIV/AIDS in Bangladesh: Role of Media and Civil Society".
"The Government should allow the NGOs and private establishments to publish reports and prepare list on HIV/AIDS contracted people as the government conducted research, this year, identified fewer HIV/AIDS affected people than the experts believe," they said.
Representatives from NGOs and electronic media, journalists, sex workers, hermaphrodite (Hizra) and students attended the seminar.
According to a government survey, the number of people carrying this virus is only 465 while experts estimate it to be five to six thousands. Neighboring countries like India and Myanmar got about 51 lakh and 33,300 people respectively, carrying this virus.
"The journalists could play the most important role in making people aware enough to understand the negative effects of AIDS epidemic," said Elizabeth Ridge, an HIV/AIDS consultant.
"If preventive measures are not taken immediately, we would find it impossible to get rid of this impending disaster", said Dr Fatema Parvin Chowdhury, head of National AIDS/STD Programme.
