

Globetrotter

Photo shows a mummy found by a research team from Japan's Waseda University in an unrobbed tomb believed to date back to more than 3,500 years ago in the archeological site of Dahashur North in Egypt.

A man carrying take-out bags from a restaurant trudges through heavy snowfall in New York's Tribeca district. Forecasters expect 10 to 20 inches (25.4 to 50.8 cm) of snow in the city. A blizzard warning is in effect until the morning.

A US soldier speaks with a young Iraqi boy during a break in a patrol in small shop in the notorious Haifa street, a haven of the insurgency in central Baghdad. Al-Qaeda's frontman in Iraq, Abu Musab al-Zarqawi, declared war on the elections which he said were aimed at bringing the country under Shiite control, in an audiotape posted on an Islamist website.

A girl who sits on her friend's shoulders dances and waves ribbon of "orange revolution" during firework and rock concert to mark Viktor Yushchenko inauguration at Independence square in Kiev.

The combo shows girls presenting fashion of the Monnalisa winter 2005/2006 collection during the Pitti Immagine Bimbo fashion show in Florence. Until 23 January 2005, 342 international companies give a preview of their clothing and accessories collections for children and teens, maternity wear, and childcare products for the fall-winter 2005/2006 season.