'80 pc criminals go unpunished'

BNWLA prepares draft law to protect victims of crimes

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Bangladesh National Women Lawyers' Association (BNWLA) has prepared a draft law with an aim to protect and promote the rights of victims and witnesses of crimes.

The law titled 'The Victim and Witness Protection Act' was presented at a roundtable in the city yesterday to share it with the experts for further consultation.

About 80 percent of criminals in the country go unpunished due to lack of security of the victims and witnesses, said the speakers at a roundtable organised by the BNWLA.

In most cases, the victims withdraw the cases and witnesses do not appear before the court following threats issued by the criminals, they said.

Also, the criminals sometimes force the victims to settle the case outside the court, they added.

The judicial system is in question today as it cannot ensure safety of the victims, said Salma Ali, executive director of BNWLA.

"The poor and helpless people are losing their trust on the judicial system. People are being deprived of justice everywhere, from shalish to police station and court, due to lack of security," she said.

The victims and witnesses feel a sense of insecurity due to threats by criminals, lack of provision for compensation and safe shelter and offensive attitude towards the victim at thana court, she added.

Advocate Sharmeen A Farouk read out the draft law at the roundtable.

The draft act provides clear definition of victim and witness and describes who can apply for the protection.

Former attorney general AF Hassan Ariff said the crime has reached such high level that the country needs elite forces like Rapid Action Battalion to control it, although the action of Rab is tantamount to disrespect to criminal justice system.

Senior Research Officer of Law Commission Mahmuda Khatun, Women and Children Repression Prevention Tribunal Judge Monwara Begum, Special Public Prosecutor Rezaul Karim Mizan and Asif Nazrul of Dhaka University also took part in the discussion.
