FAYZA HAQ

GULSHAN Hossain's mixed media exhibition begins at the Bengal Foundation today. Gulshan has dealt with the different seasons, especially autumn and spring, calling her paintings 'autumn palette' or 'spring palette' or 'monsoon rain'.

She is now studying fine arts formally at the University of Development Alternative (UDA) under the guidance of Somorjit Rai, Abdus Satter, Shajahan Ahmed Bikash and others. Now that her children have grown up, she has the time for further studies. She hopes to do her masters overseas. She always does a layout before she sits with her canvas. She works whenever she is free, after her university pursuits. She has been doing experimental work for years now, under the guidance of Aminul Islam. 'This year I've done a lot of work. I went to Sharjah for the Biennale. Before that I went to Sri Lanka where 30 countries had participated. My last solo was at Belgium. There is no connection between my creative work at home and my student efforts at the university. However, I'm able to make notes from the books on galleries that I've brought from overseas earlier on,' says Gulshan.

'Now we are getting a lot of pigments in Dhaka. As my husband is a member of an airline crew, I've bought my colours from USA or UK. I get a lot of encouragement and inspiration from the art work around me in the metropolis. From my experience of international art camps, I feel that Bangladeshi artists are progressing well,' says Gulshan.

'However, our artists don't get the financial support that artists overseas get. Abroad, in Europe and the Middle East, BFA students get individual studios to work in. Any amount of patronage would have been welcome by our artists,' she adds.

The paintings in the latest solo express her inner feelings. She brings in autumn, which transports her back to the days she sat with her father, learning about the stars and aspects of art and culture. In the season of mist she feels her colours drift, intertwine and fade away. The gray combines with other colours to give tonal variation. Similarly, when she brings in spring it reminds her of green fields and birds calling in the sky. Gulshan has taken the names of the titles from the poems of Rabindranath Tagore and Jibonananda Das. This is to give the viewer some idea about the painting through words of everyday Bangla literature. Poetry will thus penetrate abstract painting.

Holud ghasher kachchey heem prapapoti depicts a dead butterfly blended in the burnt grass of the fields. The painting is evocative of the poetry of Jibonananda Das, and is in yellow, brown and black. Arsheener jonsa blends fog, mist and the moonlight in shades of blue and

Upcoming ventures Exchanging notes with Debashish

CULTURAL CORRESPONDENT

Debashish Bishwas first shot into fame as an anchor of TV show Pother Pechali on ETV in 2000 and went on to present popular shows like Closeup and Ispahani Pure Snax Quiz Time for various TV channels. He is the director of the well-known Bangla feature film Shashurbari Zindabad and the single episode play Bhalobasha Dot Com. He will soon embark on a telefilm, to be aired on Eid-ul-Fitr.

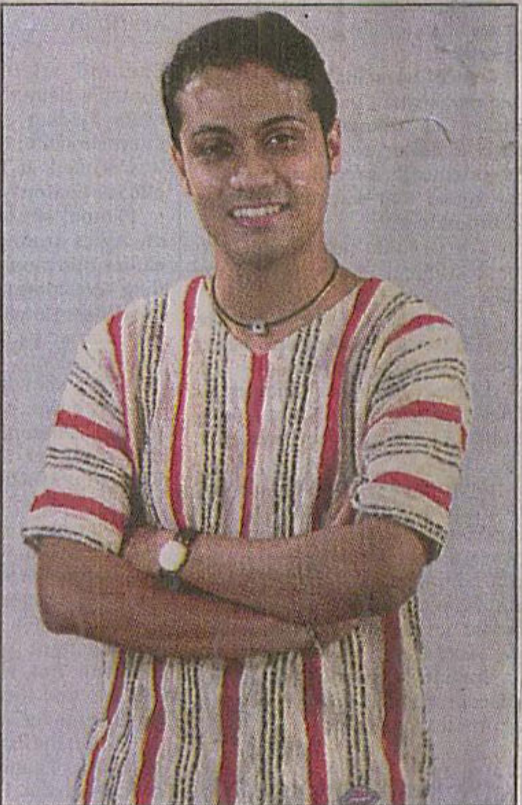

About his first major break as a director, Debashish says, 'It is a natural progression for me. I was an assistant director of my father eminent director Dilip Biswas when I joined the film industry in 1997. Subsequently, I became a director.'

He adds, 'I'm happy with my first film Shashurbari Zindabad, a comedy. Depicting comedy is very tough. I've just finished shooting Tak Jhal Mishiti, which is also based on a light hearted story.'

On his attitude to criticism, Debashish says, 'First, I determine if the criticism is valid or if it's generated by people who are simply on the look out for their self-interest. I've found that there are some of both. Where it is valid, I learn from it. There is no formula for success, except honesty and dedication. I'm completely focused on my work. I have never looked back. I have always taken risks.'

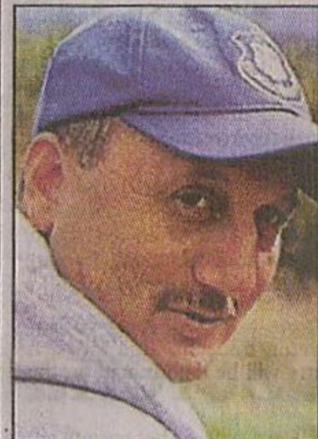

About the factors he always bears in mind when making a new programme, he says, 'I basically prefer programmes that would appeal to the masses. As one can see, the educated young urbanites are rapidly switching over to foreign TV channels such as the Discovery channel and other movie channels. This is because there are no good shows to attract them, apart from a handful of serials. So, I want to tap this segment of the audience and would like to bring out innovative programmes that appeal to them. In fact, I had produced Gop Shop, an entertaining talk show with celebrities, for new TV channel RTV. Television, however, is a medium that requires complete dedication.'

Talking about his plans for the future, Debashish says,

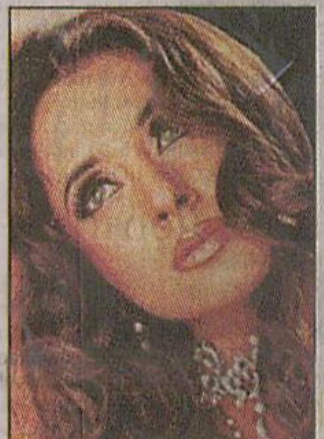

'I enjoy making movies and will continue to do so. There is much room for learning and improvement. I feel an actor or a director needs to keep growing. My first film won plaudits from the audience but no other formal recognition. Frankly, I don't care for awards but just want to do my best as a director. It's time to do versatile roles and good films.'

Anupam's unique campaign for his new film

Every filmmaker these days ensures that his/her film has a unique promotional campaign so that it generates enough curiosity about the film. Anupam Kher seems to have come up with a plan that is sure to turn heads. The promotional campaign for Kher's latest film Maine Gandhi Ko Nahin Maara will be launched at Gandhi's Samadhi in Rajghat, New Delhi. And the event is supposed to start at 5:17 pm sharp, when Gandhi was assassinated. The lead actress of the film, Urmila Matondkar will be present for the event along with Kher. One thinks Kher couldn't have figured out a better way to launch the campaign. The film will be released on September 30.

Joaquin Phoenix plays singer Johnny Cash

Joaquin Phoenix did not have to learn just to sing and play guitar. He had to learn to strum the strings in the distinctive freight-train rhythms of Johnny Cash and sing in his sonorous storytelling style.

The screening kicks off a major Garbo retrospective in which 13 of her films will be featured in three cities, among them Garbo's first Hollywood film, the seldom screened Torrent from 1926.

The exhibition Images of Greta -- based around nine quotations by or about Garbo -- will also be shown at the Sture cinema in Stockholm through the fall. A number of previously unpublished photographs and other Garbo-related objects will also be on display, including a dress she wore in The Story of Gosta Berling, a number of her private letters, her notebook from the Royal Dramatic Theatre drama school and Swedish original film posters.

learned chords, songwriting, Cash's unique way of looping his arm around the guitar and to embody his rich, deep voice. Walk the Line tells of Cash's childhood, his brother's accidental death, his obsession with music despite his pragmatic father's objections and his early struggles to support his first wife and family as a traveling salesman before mustering the courage to audition for Sam Phillips' Sun Records.

The film follows the raucous touring years with Jerry Lee Lewis, Roy Orbison and Carl Perkins among others. The movie opens at theatres in November.

Sweden celebrates Garbo centenary

AP, Stockholm

In life, Greta Garbo did her best to avoid the media limelight. But the reclusive actress will be in focus over the next few months as Sweden celebrates its greatest movie star, who would have turned 100 on Sunday last.

The Swedish Film Institute kicked off the Garbo centenary celebration last Friday with a screening of the 1936 classic Camille, which had its original premiere at Stockholm's Roda Kvarn movie theatre.

'It was Garbo's own favourite and is part of a two-month retrospective of the films of one of the world's greatest film stars ever,' said institute spokesman and Garbo expert Jan Goransson.

'She played a lot of look-but-don't-touch parts,' Goransson said. 'It was rare for her to play simple girls, from ordinary backgrounds.'

Born Greta Lovisa Gustafsson to a working-class family in 1905, Garbo along with her parents and two siblings lived in a small studio apartment in Stockholm. She made her acting debut in an advertising film for the Stockholm department store Pub, where she worked selling hats as a teenager. After being accepted to the Royal Dramatic Theatre's drama school in 1922, director Mauritz Stiller gave her a starring role in the classic silent film The Story of Gosta Berling.

The screening kicks off a major Garbo retrospective in which 13 of her films will be featured in three cities, among them Garbo's first Hollywood film, the seldom screened Torrent from 1926.

The exhibition Images of Greta -- based around nine quotations by or about Garbo -- will also be shown at the Sture cinema in Stockholm through the fall.
