Letters will only be considered if they carry the writer's full name, address and telephone number (if any). The identity of the writers will be protected. Letters must be limited to 300 words. All letters will be subject to editing.

letters@thedailystar.net

Bangladesh and 17 September, 2005 is the 35th anniversary of Bangladesh being given the membership of the United Nations Organisation as the 136th member country. After a nine month long war, it was freed on 16 December, 1971 from Pakistan. After the liberation, the new-born country Bangladesh had to face many problems, especially in the international forum. The US, China and the socalled Muslim solidarity loving Middle East countries didn't recognise Bangladesh instantly. Even the Maoist-China exercised 'veto' in the Security Council against the proposal for the membership of Bangladesh in the UNO in 1972.

Anyway, Bangladesh achieved its membership in 1974 and as the head of the government Sk. Mujibur Rahman delivered his speech in Bangla on 25 September, 1974 at the 29th General Assembly. It was a glory and victory, I think for a nation. After that, Bangladesh didn't have to look back. What's the position of today's Bangladesh in the international forums? It is a leading peacekeeper under the UNO. As a result, it is earning a huge amount of foreign currency as well as brightening

The process of advancement and development started by Bangabandhu is still going on. We should acknowledge his contribution to this nation without any hesitation.

the US legislators he became rather supportive of the existing curtailed independence of the judiciary in Bangladesh and skipped the need for and importance of the independent judiciary.

To fill the lacuna the well known columnist might write one sentence more asking our honourable law minister why the process

If the judiciary is not free it won't always goes awry.

Roney

damental rights of people.

Negative approach

The government's negative approach to the Tuesday Group's meet on poll practices has puzzled us immensely. Tuesday Group, a club of foreign diplomats in Bangladesh, had a scheme to arrange a conference on "International Electoral Best Practices" in Dhaka provide us with necessary technical assistance to make sure the next general election is held in a free and fair manner. Perplexingly, the government has not permitted them to arrange such kind of brainstorming on the pretext that it is tantamount to meddling in domestic politics. The argument of the government is totally baseless.

It is true that the election proce-

MAH Nazim, University of Dhaka

Inclement Nature

The hurricane Katrina in New Orleans has shown us how small we are to Nature's power. From day one I am watching the warning. Water, wind, fire, -- Nature has shown all its might in one instance. The world's superpower can boast of its power, but Nature surpassed

I am a housewife. I have enough time to watch all the current happenings in the world. These things

Let's have a look at the recent bombings in London, Dhaka, Sylhet. The fanatics claimed that it is their duty to unite people, to show the right path, but I strongly feel that it is they who are tarnishing the image of Islam more than any other nation or the followers of different religions.

To me, belief is something personal. You can't impose it. It comes from within. Muslims, Christians, Jews, Buddhists all believe in their own religion. It is not right to claim next November. They wanted to that one's religion is better than others', and why they try to do so is beyond my understanding.

To the War Lord, to the Fanatics, to the Extremists, to the Terrorists, I have a point to make. You can try to destroy everything but you will not Islam is a religion of peace and understanding; be an ideal Muslim - preach by being a leader!

In the recent years, we have seen the Gulf War, destruction of Iraq, wrath of Nature in the form of Katrina & Rita, the London bomb attacks, and also various terrorist attacks in Bangladesh - in every instance, after every crisis/ disaster, people have survived!

Our Creator has timed our lives and despite crisis / disaster / terrorism, we all will "serve our time". Syeda Maleka Parvin Purana Paltan, Dhaka

Independence of Judiciary I read the article "The mystery of the letter to Dr. Rice" by Dr. Fakruddin Ahmed.

In relation to a comment 'the lower courts (in Bangladesh) are under the authority of the executive and they lack independence" by US legislators he wrote, "the degree of political independence of the judiciary varies from country to country." He went on reiterating "and it is fascinating that the US legislators would take such keen interest in the working of Bangladesh's lower courts!" He drew an example, "let us recall that in 2000, it was not the American voters, but the US Supreme Court which in a 5 to 4 decision installed George W. Bush as the President of the United

In his chee fulness to oppose dure in Bangladesh is not wholly foolproof, rather it is very much flawed. And if we adopt the ideas of the developed countries in this regard, we can update the process massively. If the group could hold the conference, Bangladesh could get technical expertise to hold the next general election smoothly. Molla Mohammad Shaheen Dept of English, DU Savage amusement!

We have been watching lots of sports through the cable channels. We love to watch live cricket, football, lawn tennis, golf and some other games and sports. But when you happen to watch certain bizarre activities called sports you might get appalled. Furthermore, when you watch wrestling, awesome and brutal actions on the stage might upset you.

More appalling is the fact that, nowadays, you'll see some women wrestlers barely clothed, fighting with their gigantic male opponents! Isn't it savage amusement? Rafiqul Islam Rime Agrabad, Chittagong

Fifteen years of democracy

Our forefathers fought for liberation because they wanted us to live in a free and democratic country. In reality, the democracy remained elusive for a long period. Finally, it triumphed in 1990. Since then we have plucked some fruits of it. At least once in five years politicians have to face the people. And the verdict of mass people can be very ruthless, as both the major political parties learned the hard way. They learned that no matter what they show on TV, people are not fools.

They know. Another fruit of democracy is that newspapers, a pillar of democracy, are a lot freer in expressing their views and publishing news.

However, a lot of expectation still remains unfulfilled, which makes the achievements look

1. Parliament remains ineffective because of opposition boycott. The government shows little interest in creating an environment for their participation; the opposition also seems more comfortable in avoiding the duty voters have given

2. Politicians still depend on thugs and goons to further their political goals. It is not clear why they do so despite the fact that it is mass people who vote them to power 3. The black laws like Section 54 still remain a big hindrance on the way to asserting people's rights 4. An independent judiciary is a must for proper functioning of democracy. Despite repeated promises by political parties, the udiciary has not been separated from the executive body be able to give verdicts against the 5. Electronic media is not yet free government and protect the fun- enough in their broadcasting. Since they reach a wider audience than print media, they should be allowed to do their job without interference.

Ashish Ahsan Uttara, Dhaka

Seats in halls

Being a student of the country's premier university, I am not at all satisfied due to the absence of adequate facilities at the university. Since the beginning of my university life I have been watching students facing seat crisis due to student politics. Recently, the hall authorities have taken some timebound measures to solve the problem of seat allocation. The young house tutors are searching the vacant rooms and they are allotting the rooms to bona fide students. It is a praise worthy move, but it is not an unmixed blessing for all. Due to the untimely visit by house tutors at their respective floors and negligence of hall officials, some genuine students have been deprived of seats. The illegal occupants are not allowing the students to enter the rooms. Some of them have been assaulted by the political goons presenting themselves as stu-

Is the university not in a position to take stern action against violators of law? In most of the cases the criminals are supported by the student wing of the ruling party. When will this come to an

Bazlur Rahman Dhaka University

Lawlessness

To run a human society law is essential. That is why we see no civilised country running without law. It is needless to say, as a civilised country we have laws in every sector. But the people of our society are violating the laws. Consequently, our society is going to turn into a lawless one. Muhammad Shahabuddin

Political double standard and terrorism

Mirpur-6, Dhaka

I applaud your newspaper for the ample coverage you gave to the story regarding the opinions of the prominent Asian Islamic scholars. Needless to say that I completely agree with them.

Terrorism and extremism are not inherent in Islam, as some people want us to believe. This is a very recent phenomenon. Worldwide mass media is throwing the world events on our face every day and what we see is not pretty. Especially the Muslims all over the world are finding that most of them are not in control of their own destinies. Most of them are governed by corrupt, with a few exceptions, governments, who do not show any concern for the well being of their own citizens. Social injustice is rampant and the mounting undercurrent of frustration is giving way to extremism.

Until we stop glorifying the system, which endorses this prevalent idea of social Darwinism, we will not be able to understand this henomenon of terrorism and extremism. That is true, both in national and international arena. Only fairness and justice can address this scar of violent extrem-

M.A.Islam

Is it nationalism?

Some days ago in a dinner party with the Bangladesh cricket team in Sri Lanka, our state minister for sports quoted from a speech given by Field Marshall Ayub Khan (during the 1965 Indo-Pak war) to inspire the Bangladeshi cricket team where there was a dialogue "Pakistan Payendabad". Now in our country the Bangladesh Nationalist Party (BNP) is in power and our honourable minister is a lawmaker of that party. From the name of this party it is clear to us that the motto of the BNP is to uphold nationalism.

The movement, engineered by the great minds of the then East Pakistan, to oust the military government headed by Ayub Khan is a milestone in our history of independence. But is it the definition of Nationalism that a minister of this free nation would quote from a man's speech who was one of the masterminds of Bengalee bashing? This speech thus has revealed the deviation of our leaders from their own political motto.

we saw in the newspapers that the

My grandfather passed away on Monday and my uncle left for Dhaka from the United States with his family to attend his funeral. Due to the Biman strike he was stranded in Dubai for an extra 24 hours. Would you please ask the government and Biman officials about the painful experience they are delivering to parties have issues, but shouldn't there be some guidelines for such service industries to stay out of "hartal/strike"? I bet this is another reason for us to get Avictim I understand that both the such bad name around the exports, these strikes serve no purpose but only enforce the rule of hired thugs and demonstrate the munist philosophy, I am forced to ask; who would you trust more to shoulder the responsibility of leading the country a party that one-track record, whose response

I congratulate Athar Ali, the commentator and ex-cricketer for his courageous role in the commentary and discussion sessions. I think many of our cricket lovers will appreciate his rational voice at the international level. We feel

I would like to draw your attention to the letter titled "Indian TV shows " (DS 9/9/05). The writer pointed out some limitations of Bangladeshi TV channels. Actually the main drawback is "our mentality". Recently, the private TV channels of our country have come up with many talent shows. Among

And we are watching such talents like Beauty, Rumi, Mehrab.

Obviously, they can compete with Indian talents. Why are we not responding well to this programme? Because, we don't love our country. We don't love

Let's love our country & give good response to the good things produced here. We have to have confidence in our ability.

Faujdarhat Cadet College

Abolition of death

proud of him. Thankyou, Athan.

Dr. Mohsin U. Ahmed

Crescent Road, Dhaka

Recognise them

them ntvis doing well.

anything local.

Cadet Elias

Chittagong

to every situation is hartal?

A rational voice

Raquib Shamsad

As much as I disagree with Comopposition's power to destroy.

May Allah bless us. That's all we can pray for, because our leaders are not helping us.

ministers and the big-wigs of the ruling party made this type of statements several times, even while conversing with foreign

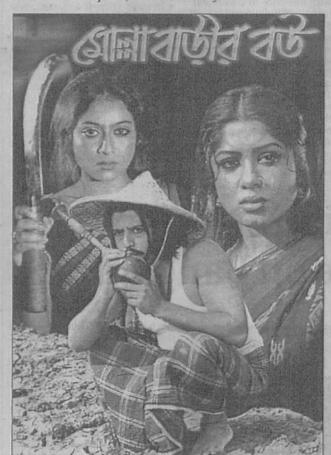

If our national leaders think like that, then how can we expect anything from them for the benefit of protest against government neglect that has let the local roads become a sea of mud. By planting paddy in the road, they made their point in an amusing manner, while avoiding inconvenience to the local population, destruction of property or disruption to the local plans its tactics with imagination and flair, for maximum impact with minimum inconvenience to the public, or the dinosaurs with a

Our cinema is going from bad to worse day by day . "Molla Barir Bou" is a good movie that will help change the impression about our films. Perhaps, the viewers are now ready to come back to the deserted halls. The charming story of the film is picked up from village life of our country. The mischief of the so-called 'Molla' who has no knowledge except fanatic sentiments perturbed all. His home is the seat of an oppres-

The film is a flicker of hope for the industry as a whole. Abdullah-al-Mujahid, Dhaka University

'Mollah Barir Bou'

the country? Kamrul Hasan, BUET

Aunique protest This is not the first time; earlier I am writing to commend the CPB on their imaginative and worthy economy. Their cause and means of protest deserve widespread publicity and recognition.

Designed to cause maximum disruption to people's lives, to weaken the economy and damage penalty Bertrand Russell, the philosopher, said in his book "Power" that the clear difference between the human being and the animal is instinctive rationality, by which the former creates dominion over the date we have been wrangling over whether to abolish death penalty for good-- an issue that deserves and creates repugnance is in spite of our intellectual fecundity and profundity, we, in the name of justice, deliver the verdict of ending a life. So, the moral or moot question is " Does anybody have any right to sentence a criminal to death when s/he can't create a life? This is cruelty that we don't notice even in the animals, why should it be continuing in human societies for the sake of justice?

Life is a very valuable possession in the animated universe. If we look back to the rudimentary stage of civilisation, we become awestruck to peruse the horror of decapitation in France before the Renaissance.

Presently, Amnesty International is running a campaign to abolish this noxious practice in the name of justice. They need support from the people of intellect and intelligence. Let's support their campaign and stand by their logical demand.

Sulav Chowdhury London, England

Dr. Ahmed's revelation I enjoy reading Dr. Fakhruddin Ahmed's column "Letter from America." Dr. Ahmed never forgets to mention that he is from Princeton; the idea is probably to impress the readers with his Ivy League connection. Dr. Ahmed is a person of all seasons and a storehouse of all knowledge. Sometimes he lectures on the racial discrimination and Islamophobia that is gripping the United States, his opted homeland. Sometimes he introduces us to his nephew who, notwithstanding racial discrimination and Islamophobia, became the second Rhodes Scholar of Bangladeshi origin, Dr. Ahmed being the first. When he came on holidays to Bangladesh, Dr. Ahmed wondered why the natives were complaining of high costs of living when things were so cheap and a journey by rickshaw cost only a few cents. Once he even gave some tips to Tiger Wood on how to improve his golf swing although he admits never to have hit the

On 23 September 2005,

he appeared with a number of new and brilliant hypotheses. According to him, 16 Senators and Members of the House of Representative, who petitioned to US Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice to raise Bangladesh's human rights issues in the UN, were duped into signing the petition by a group of influential Bangladeshis from Boston area. He wants us to believe that such stalwarts like Senators Edward Kennedy, John Kerry or Patrick Leahy can be duped or persuaded to sign a paper that was extremely strong and sensitive in its content. He argues that the signatories, all except one from New England states, had eyes on Bangladeshi vote bank. For this to be true, there must be thousands of voters of Bangladeshi origin in those states and they by and large support the petition. The fact is on the contrary. Outside the big metropolis of New York and LA, the Bangladeshis are too few to be counted or considered as "Vote Bank." Moreover, most Bangladeshi immigrants are too busy to be bothered about what Senator Kennedy or such bigwigs do. If these were not enough, Dr. Fakhruddin had another conjecture - some Bangladeshi immigrants, with a view to embarrassing the government of Bangladesh, might have forged the petition. He requested the Ministry of Foreign Affairs to get it verified from the US

State Department. This is not the first time Dr. Ahmed had tried to smokescreen the issues. The fact is that persons such as Senator Kennedy are a genuine and trusted friend of Bangladesh. How can one forget the very positive role played by the Senator in our War of Liberation in 1971? Air Cdre Ishfaq Ilahi Choudhury (Retd)

Baridhara, Dhaka

Tourism

In the article "Tourism", placed September 7th, Sujan Ghosh expresses a few widely accepted, though false statements. I am a tourist from Holland, I have travelled 25 countries and this is my second visit to Bangladesh. Tourists aren't cattle, which you can lead over every road you want as long as it is nicely paved. The modern tourist is spoiled and knows what he wants. The modern tourist has a lot of demands and wants the whole package. A lot of countries make the same mistake as Sujan Ghosh and wonder why the tourists aren't coming. To make your tourist policy work you have to, before all, do research to what visitors want. Bangladesh has the Arnhem, Holland longest sea-beach. That's nice but who cares? The question should be: "Why do tourists visit the beach and can we offer the same or better?" "Why do tourists take a 15-day trip through India and not through Bangladesh?"

I'll give you a few hints: 1) India can be reached by direct flight from most European countries, Bangladesh can't.

2) India promotes itself through media and stands, Bangladesh doesn't. 3) Travel agencies have trips to India in their shop window, not to Bangladesh. Conclusion: Do research prior to investment and save yourself a lot of money.

Twin van Leeuwen whole animal kingdom and the others. Despite instinct, sensitivity and rationality in human beings to > immediate attention. Death is an inevitable reality of life-- for both the biped and the quadruped. But, what is repellent