INTERNATIONAL

India, Pakistan to launch second train link by Jan

'Chances of opening Kashmir border slim'

India and Pakistan will reopen a second cross-border rail link by January, more than 40 years after it was severed following a war between the south Asian rivals,  $a\,senior\,Indian\,official\,said\,yesterday.$

The train would connect the Indian village of Munabao in the western desert state of Rajasthan and the small town of Khokrapar in southern Pakistan, Indian Railways Chairman J.P. Batra said in a statement.

The statement did not give details. The neighbours are already connected by a train service through the Wagah border in their northern Punjab

The two countries snapped all transport links amid heightened tension over Kashmir -- at the heart of decades of enmity -- as they were near the brink of war in 2002.

The links were restored after New Delhi and Islamabad launched fresh moves to make peace in 2003. Both countries say they want to open more routes between the two countries to help easier movement of people and boost the peace process.

The Khokrapar-Munabao link was earlier scheduled to reopen this month but it was delayed as new tracks on the Pakistani side were not ready.

Meanwhile, the chances are dimming that India and Pakistan will reopen their disputed Kashmir border after nearly six decades in the wake of the earthquake tragedy, Pakistan's disaster relief chief said

"My concern is that time is running out. If there are long parlays on the modalities then the window is closing. Major General Farooq Ahmad Khan told reporters when asked about the

Pakistani President Pervez

Musharraf offered Tuesday to throw open the Line of Control, which has split the Himalayan territory since 1949, to let families help one another after the quake.

India welcomed the proposal but said it was awaiting details. Indian officials later said Pakistan had not made any concrete proposal.

Pressed on whether Pakistan had submitted a proposal to India, Khan signalled that Musharraf's remarks to the media were enough

"Let me put the question in the correct perspective," Khan said. 'Should the time be wasted ... or should you wait forever that the proposal in "At this time, on the Line of Control, together. That's the bottom line," he India has sent Pakistan three the divided families need to join shipments of aid since the October 8 earthquake but their rivalry has repeatedly stymied cooperation to aid the desperate survivors in Kashmir, which has brought them to war twice. The two countries failed to agree on a proposal for India to send badly needed helicopters after Pakistan said it would only accept the choppers without their Indian pilots. India has in the past been sceptical of Pakistani calls to open the border in Kashmir, fearing that Islamic militants opposed to New Delhi's rule would take advantage of an open frontier. The earthquake killed more than 51,300 people in Pakistan including its zone of Kashmir, Khan said. More than 1,300 people died in the two-thirds of Kashmir administered by India according to Indian police.

A elderly Pakistani man sits by fire outside his tent in Balakot yesterday. With nearly 50,300 dead and 3.3 million people left homeless in impoverished northern Pakistan and Kashmir, the quake is considered the country's worst disaster.

Tetanus kills 5 as Pak quake wounds fester

Five people have died from tetanus in the aftermath of Pakistan's devastatingearthquake and 42 other cases are being treated, the health ministry said yesterday.

Pakistani and international aid workers have launched a massive campaign to vaccinate millions of people who survived the disaster but whose wounds could become infected, it said.

"Five deaths from tetanus have been reported" among people who were evacuated from devastated northern Pakistan and Kashmir to hospitals in the capital Islamabad and nearby Rawalpindi, health secretary Anwar Mahmood said. "We are treating another 42 tetanus cases and they might increase. People who have been recovered late are developing it,' added Mahmood.

In the ruined northern city of Balakot, battalion commander Colonel Saeed Igbal said the World Heath Organisation had informed him of "cases of diarrhoea and a few cases of tetanus"

Foreign tourists play with their children inside a shelter in downtown Cancun Thursday as hurricane Wilma heads toward Mexico's Yucatan peninsula. Wilma, the most powerful storm ever recorded in the Atlantic, is "extremely dangerous" and is expected to roar into a category five hurricane again on the Saffir-Simpson scale by the time it makes landfall in Mexico.

tribal violence 120 homes torched at least nine rebels were killed and 120 nomes torched in tribal clashes yesterday in India's northeastern state of Assam, taking the toll in three weeks of

A police official said heavily armed militants belonging to the Dima Halam Daogah tribe killed nine rival Karbi tribal rebels in the Karbi Anglong district, 295km east of Assam's main city of Guwahati.

"According to preliminary reports 12 armed Karbi rebels were involved in burning down houses belonging to the Dimasa tribe when they were chalenged by a group of militants," a senior police official who did not wished to be identified told AFP by Police suspect the victims were nembers of the outlawed United People's Democratic Solidarity, a rag-tag rebel army fighting for an independent homeland for the majority Karbi tribe in

"Witnesses said the rebels were killed by the rival group with automatic weapons and they managed to burn down some 120 houses before the encounter took place," the official said.

India Thursday said it will disarm two rival tribal groups to end more than three weeks of ethnic clashes that have claimed 80 lives in the restive northeastern state of Assam. A senior home ministry official said authorities in Assam had been given orders to seize weapons from all militants belonging to the United People's Democratic Solidarity (UPDS) and the Dima Halam Daogah "We have decided to disarm rebels of both the DHD and the UPDS immediately in view of the escalating ethnic clashes," Rajeev Agarwal, joint Secretary in India's home ministry He was part of a team led by junior nome minister Sriprakash Jaiswal that visited the violence-hit Karbi Anglong district in eastern Assam Thursday.

9 more killed in Indian Alarm bells ring for 2m quake survivors

REUTERS, Muzaffarabaa

Alarm mounted across the world vesterday for an estimated 2 million survivors of the Pakistan earthquake still awaiting help two weeks after their world collapsed, with a freezing winter looming.

The top United Nations aid official was so incensed by what he saw as a woefully inadequate international response to the most difficult relief operation the world has ever seen he called on Nato to stage a massive airlift to get survivors to safety.

That would mean helicopters, the only means of getting quickly deep into the rugged Himalayan foothills of Pakistani Kashmir and North West Frontier Province where 50,000 people are known to have died, a number expected to rise substantially.

"You must rest assured that Nato fully realises the gravity of the situation," Nato Secretary-General Jaap de But Nato, which was to consider UN emergency relief coordination Jan Egeland's airlift demand in Brussels on Friday, doesn't have many of the kind of helicopters such an operation vould require.

The closest source of helicopters would be India, but it has fought two of its three wars with Pakistan over Kashmir, which both claim. Pakistani President Pervez Musharraf has told India he would accept helicopters, but only if they came without crews given the enormous political sensitivity of the issue. India said no and Egeland called on the two governments to figure out a "These discussions are now holding up a bigger operation and they shouldn't," he said. "I would want them to work out a compromise

The few roads into the high hills were crumpled, buried by landslides. even swept away by the October 8 quake and aid officials on the ground are frightened that countless more people, without adequate shelter, cold and miserable, could die.

The lack of roads means supplies cannot be got to them in any significant quantities by an aid fleet of fewer than 100 helicopters. Pakistani soldiers are using mules, horses and donkeys, even carrying supplies up on their backs. So are villagers. "We went to one village at 1,300 metres and temperatures were dropping to minus five at night and there were old people whose only shelter was plastic sheeting," said Mia Turner of the World Food Programme. "Shelter is crucial and people don't get that soon there will be a crisis of a different kind -- people will start dying

Police on alert as Bihar votes

REUTERS, Patna

on guard in the lawless state of Bihar yesterday for an election for a new state assembly that will influence the fortunes of a key member of the ruling national coalition. About 866,000 of Bihar's 52 million

Hundreds of armed policemen were are eligible to vote on Friday as part of a staggered month-long process, allowing policemen to deploy across the state where polls in the past have been marred by dozens of deaths. "We are on high alert," state police chief Ashish Ranjan Sinha said. Friday's voting is in four constituen cies where left-wing radicals, who say they are fighting for the landless farmers, have called for a boycott of.

The election is a battle for survival for the Bihar-based Rashtriya Janata Dal (RJD) and its maverick leader Lalu Prasad Yadav, who draws support from millions of lower-caste Hindus as well as minority Muslims.

Yadav is also the railway minister a powerful post -- and his party is the largest in the central coalition after the Congress Party.

Syria, Lebanon involved in Hariri killing: UN

AP, United Nations

Top Syrian intelligence officials approved the assassination of former Lebanese Prime Minister Rafiq Hariri and their Lebanese counterparts helped organise it, according to a UN probe that officially linked Damascus for the first time to the slaying of the popular opposition leader. The exhaustive report into the Feb.

14 car bomb that killed Hariri and 20 others was issued to the UN Security Council late Thursday and will almost certainly inflame tensions in the The Security Council is likely to use the findings to renew pressure on Syria to ease its continued influence on Lebanon. The council is expected to discuss the report on Tuesday, and may consider sanctions against Syria.

While the report from chief investigator Detlev Mehlis stopped short of fingering Syrian President Bashar Assad or his inner circle, it accused the regime of failing to cooperate in the probe and alleged Syrian Foreign Minister Farouk al-Sharaa lied in a letter to the Mehlis' commission.

Assad's brother-in-law, who is the Syrian intelligence chief, set up a false Syria rejected the report. The decision to assassinate Hariri

'could not have been taken without the approval of top-ranked Syrian security officials and could not have been further organised without the collusion of their counterparts in the Lebanese security services," the report At the time of Hariri's assassination, Syria had about 14,000 troops in Lebanon and essentially controlled the country along with its Lebanese government allies.

Mehlis was careful not to assign blame but cites witness testimony that strongly implicates several officials suspected of conspiring to assassinate

Hariri. Lebanon has already arrested four of them, all Lebanese generals close to Syria The report also raised questions

It also cites one witness as saying about Lebanon's pro-Syrian president, Emile Lahoud, who received a phone call minutes before the deadly blast from the brother of a prominent member of a pro-Syrian group. The same man also called one of four generals arrested, Brig. Gen. Raymond Azar, who at the time was head of Lebanon's military intelligence.

> Lahoud's office said it "categorically denies" that the president received such a phone call.

The 53-page report outlines Hariri's worsening relationship with Syrian officials and said the motive for his killing appeared to have been political. Hariri had fallen out with Syria and eventually resigned in October 2004, a month after a decision to change Lebanon's laws and extend Lahoud's

Iraq scrambles to fix Saddam trial glitches

Embarrassed US and Iraqi officials are working overtime trying to fix technical glitches that disrupted the globally-televised opening day of former president Saddam Hussein's trial.

spokesman David Culkin.

"They spent 75 million dollars and had months to prepare, and this is the best they could come up with?' shouted one television reporter in a fit of exasperation when the audio

Sri Lanka beefed up security for the island's two main presidential candidates on Thursday, mindful of a Tamil

Tiger suicide bombing that nearly killed outgoing President Chandrika

Kumaratunga ahead of her re-election

Sri Lanka's two-decade civil war was halted by a 2002 truce, but relations between the government and the rebels are at their lowest ebb since then amid continued violence in the island's east which is piling pressure on the Kumaratunga lost an eye in the 1999 bombing, which political analysts say stirred a sympathy vote that helped her defeat main opposition leader Ranil

Wickremesinghe, who is set to go head to head with Prime Minister Mahinda provided a contingent of trained and experienced personnel from the Presidential Security Division,"

"The Prime Minister has ... been Rajapakse in a Nov. 17 vote.

ceasefire.

ahead of election

Both reporters and a gallery of 25 some witnesses, which included big names such as Deputy Prime Minister Ahmed Chalabi and speaker Hussein Sharastani -- imprisoned during Saddam's regime -- had similar probushered journalists and guests into large machines for a full body X-ray room visitors had to walk into another

When the trial finally opened and Saddam entered into the courtroom, some 25 reporters from around the world witnessing the historic event from behind a glass partition could  $not \, hear \, the \, defendants.$

As Saddam lectured presiding judge Rizkar Mohammed Amin on the legality of the court and there was still no audio, reporters became agitated.

Palestinian President Mahmud Abbas (C) speaks with Senate Majority Leader Bill Frist (R), R-TN, and Senate Minority Leader Harry Reid (L), D-NV, during a visit to the US Capitol to meet with Congressional leaders Thursday in Washington, DC. Abbas met earlier with US President George W. Bush at the White House.

PALESTINIAN STATEHOOD Lanka boosts security Hamas slams Bush for #### dropping timetable Rajapakse has pledged to take tough line on the Tigers if elected and has ruled out their demands for a separate homeland and self-rule, the Tigers' No.1 foe. Sri Lanka is already under a state of emergency following the August assassination of Foreign Minister Lakshman Kadirgamar, which the government blames on the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam. The European Union last month which political analysts say makes him condemned Kadirgamar's murder and barred the Tigers from visiting its member states, saying it was considering listing the group as a terrorist organisation. How to forge peace with the Tigers is ceasefire to hold, and say that any return to a full-scale war that killed more than 64,000 people and displaced hundreds of thousands more from their homes is unlikely.

Palestinian state, but without a timetaa central election issue that is overshadble," Hamas spokesman Sami Abu Zuhri owing efforts to jumpstart stalled told AFP in Gaza City. efforts to convert the truce into perma-"He went back on his last promise," Abu Zuhri said, referring to comments However, observers expect the made by the US leader when he was re-> elected last November. Standing next to Abbas on the lawn of the White House, Bush said he believed his two-state vision was slammed US President George W.

> The radical Islamist movement Hamas

Bush vesterday for dropping any concept of a fixed timetable for the creation of a Palestinian state and warned against pressure to disarm

a day after he hosted Palestinian leader

Mahmud Abbas at the White House for their first meeting since Israel with-

"Bush said he wanted to see a

 $drew from \, the \, Gaza \, Strip \, last \, month.$

Hamas said Bush broke his promise

"resistance" factions possible but acknowledged he did not know if a Palestinian state would be created by the time he left office in lanuary 2009 "I can't tell you when it's going to happen. It's happening," he said of the state he had once said would come into beingbythe end of this year. "If it happens before I get out of office. I'll be there to witness the ceremony. And if doesn't, we will work hard to lay that foundation so that the process becomes irreversible," Bush

His comments were at odds with remarks made in November 2004, when he said: "I would like to see it done in four years. I think it is possi-on the Palestinian Authority to confront the factions. This is dangerous,' Bush had been widely expected to

The internationally drafted Middle East peace roadmap, which was push Abbas to do more to rein in launched in June 2003, laid out steps militants following a weekend shootfor the creation of a Palestinian state by ing attack which left three Israeli

However, Palestinian officials in

"It is the first time that President

Ramallah played down Bush's reluc-

Bush has said he would use his influence for the formation of a Palestinian state," chief negotiator Saeb Erakat told AFP. "The deadline is not impor-

The Hamas spokesman also took a swipe at Bush's call for Abbas to crack down on "armed gangs", and urged the Palestinian Authority to resist international interference in Palestinian

"Bush focused on putting pressure tant when he uses such strong words.

tance to adhere to a timetable.

Taliban bombs kill 2 Afghan officials AFP,Kandahar

Bombs planted by suspected Taliban rebels killed a top policeman and a senior intelligence officer in the latest attacks against the authorities in Afghanistan, officials said yester-The police director of southwest-remotely detonated car bomb tore through their vehicle as they were going to evening prayers, an interior ministry spokesman said. Haji Nafas Khan was the secondern Nimroz province and a guard were killed late Thursday when a most senior policeman in the prov-

Another policeman and four  $civilians\,were\,wounded\,in\,the\,blast\,in$ the provincial capital Zaranj, ministry spokesman Yousuf Stanizai said.

He blamed the attack on the "enemies of peace and stability", a term officials use to refer to loyalists of the Taliban regime ousted in late

A South Korean protester holds a placard during an anti-US rally in front of Kumaratunga's office said in a statement, adding that both candidates had the Defence Ministry in Seoul yesterday protesting Rumsfeld's trip. been given additional security and Rumsfeld is in Seoul for the annual security talks with South Korea

An intermittent courtroom audio signal, an informal English translation that constantly broke up, and the inability of reporters and witnesses to see the defendants' faces -- just some of the problems that bedevilled the

But by the time the trial reopens on November 28 the most pressing issues should be fixed, said US embassy

Washington allocated 75 million dollars in May 2004 to help fund court security and building infrastructure, as well as train Iraqi judges and collect evidence of abuses during Saddam's lems following the proceedings. US marshals and Iraqi security guards with automatic weapons scan before entering the complex. To enter the fourth floor courtfull body X-ray machine.