

Humayun Faridee Image of an actor

ERSHAD KAMOL

AN accomplished actor Humayun Faridee is a name to reckon with. He has contributed immensely to several media.

Currently he is performing in the movie Momotaz, which is slated for release around Eid. Faridee says, "I performed in the role of Baul Abdur Rashid Sarkar, the first husband of popular singer Momotaz, who made a great contribution to her career. Previously I performed in the role of a Baul in commercial movies. However, the character of Baul Abdur Rashid Sarkar is different from the other Baul characters that I had enacted earlier. This character is much more realistic than other Baul characters, as Abdur Rashid Sarkar is a real Baul not a fictional entity."

Faridee is, however, reluctant to continue performing in any mainstream movie. To quote him, "I had high hopes that our film industry would flourish. On the contrary, the scenario has deteriorated gradually. Nowadays the mainstream cinema is replete with vulgarity. Against this backdrop, it is not possible for me to carry on in such films."

Faridee also directs a quiz programme titled Medhabi, which is regularly being aired on ntv. Why is he directing a quiz show? Faridi has a ready answer, "I have a passion for quiz programmes. Moreover, in our country there is lack of non-fiction entertainment on the TV channels. That is why I'm making Medhabi.

"It is the second slot of the quiz show. After the successful completion of 26-episodes of the first slot, we managed to draw 25,000 applicants to participate in the second slot of Medhabi. We selected 200 people on the basis of a written piece titled 'Bad impact of computer technology'. These interested persons had to sit for other tests. Finally 80 were selected to contest for the quiz show. The final round of the quiz show will be held next month. The winner of the quiz show will receive Taka 50,000 prize bond."

On the future plan of Medhabi, Faridee says, "In February 2006, we hope to arrange the third slot of the programme, which we will continue as long as the viewers respond positively. Currently, Faridee is performing in the popular drama serial Kachher Manush, directed by Afsana Mimi. Moreover Faridee is the cast member of two tele films, which will be aired over the Eid holidays.

Comparing the quality of present TV plays with that of the '80s, Faridee says, "Technologically present day TV plays are far more developed than those of yesteryears. We have got a few quality directors and camera crews. However, with a few exceptions, the script of the plays is mediocre. I believe that the current package drama has a huge potential. But a

Silver Screen Social comedy Tak Jhaal Mishti ready for release Debashish's dream project comes true

CULTURAL CORRESPONDENT

Director and scriptwriter Debashish Bishwas once again presents a social comedy film, Tak Jhaal Mishti, produced under Global Media banner. The film will be premiered on Eid-UL-Fitr at 02:40pm on ATN Bangla. The film has an impressive star cast with Riaz, Purnima, ATM Shamsuzzaman and Shahidul Alam Shachchu heading the list. Other artistes are Dr Ejazul Islam, Shaju Khadem, Ratan Khan, Shawon Ashraf, Rasheda Chowdhury and Shajan, among others.

Tak Jhaal Mishti is the story of two hotel owners. One of them owns a three-star hotel and other an ordinary roadside hotel, which is akin to a slum. The ambitious owner of the three-star hotel, Feroz Chowdhury (ATM Shamsuzzaman), is apprehensive about the smaller hotel. To further complicate matters, the owner of the low-grade hotel, Raja (Riaz) loves Priya (Purnima), Chowdhury's only daughter. Priya is a vivacious and confident city girl. While Chowdhury gets anxious about these developments, Raja is in no mood to compromise. What happens to the rivals at the end is the ultimate attraction of the movie.

A lighter scene from Tak Jhaal Mishti

Suffice it to say that the movie has a happy ending.

"The film Tak Jhaal Mishti film is designed to elicit laughter from the audience. It has very good acting and a compelling story. The glamorous and vivacious Purnima adds spunk and glitter to the film. Emon Shaha's music is quite appealing. The producers are making all out efforts to ensure that the film lives up to its hype. I wanted to make a film that will reach out to people, not something that's profound and not understood by anyone. Let's hope that this movie lives up to people's expectations," says Debashish.

Shehzad Noorani Grooming shooting stars

CULTURAL CORRESPONDENT

A workshop on documentary photography is on at Drik Gallery. This is a part of the ongoing documentary photography exhibition, titled Tales from a Globalising World, at the same venue. Starting on October 22, this five-day workshop is conducted by Shehzad Noorani, one of the 10 photographers showcasing their work in the exhibition.

Supported by the Swiss Agency for Development and Cooperation (SDC), this workshop provided food for thought and a common ground for young and upcoming photographers most of them third year students from Pathshala-and photographers working with daily newspapers.

The objective of the workshop was to create a stronger base for documentary photography and also to discuss how to make a photo story. Altogether 16 photographers split up in four groups to portray four issues water, slums, local trains and Eid shopping. The workshop also featured lectures and slide shows of photographs by three internationally renowned photographers from Bangladesh Abir Abdullah, Shahidul Alam and Shehzad Noorani himself.

During the shooting session, four members of each group documented the given topic with a view to integrated story telling in the final photo project. Each group was allotted only one day to shoot the entire project the seemingly inadequate time slot was designed to help photographers learn how to choose important aspects and finish a job efficiently under severe time constraint. Concrete planning before shooting and good team effort ultimately paid off, as the final photo projects revealed a closer look at contemporary urban issues.

Speaking about the workshop, Kakoli, a participant commented that lack of state-of-the-art equipment often discourages young photographers here, especially because their peers in developed countries can easily afford them. Having Shehzad as the instructor turned them into optimists as Shehzad has been able to carve his own niche in the international arena even though he is a Bangladeshi and comes from a humble background.

Film Roman Polanski's new oeuvre

And now comes an all new cinematic version of Charles Dickens' classic tale Oliver Twist. The director is none other than the formidable Poland-born Roman Polanski, known for films such as Rosemary's Baby, Chinatown, The Tenant, The Holocaust Drama and The Pianist. Explaining his empathy with the young orphan of Dickens' work, Polanski pointed out that while he fled Krakow's Jewish ghetto during the Nazi liquidation of the ghetto in 1943, his parents were incarcerated at concentration camps and his mother died at Auschwitz.

In an interview with the French monthly Premiere, he asserts that the film's first half hour "had echoes of my own childhood. I remember that when I ran away from Krakow during the Nazi invasion it was not hunger nor life's hardships that made me suffer the most, but my parents' absence."

Polanski's Oliver Twist, based on Dicken's timeless story, tells the tale of a penniless orphan who wanders from a workhouse into a gang, searching for a niche in the world. The film was aired at the opening of the Third World Film Festival, mid-October in Bangkok. Speaking on the occasion, Polanski said, "It's a real pleasure to see a room full of children watching this film because it is so different from what children are offered on the cinema screen today."

Polanski said that he intends for the movie to air at schools. He pointed out that in France, film screenings were held for teachers who now want to include it in their curriculum. He describes Oliver Twist as "the kind of film that makes children think a little bit after they have left the cinema."
