Saifur tells JS

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Finance Minister M Saifur Rahman yesterday said he asked Bangladesh Bank and Security Exchange Commission to investigate into the allegations of foreign currency being smuggled out by James Finley Limited as the company changes hands.

"I don't know anything about it but I am worried like you going through the newspaper reports," Saifur said responding to a query made by Awami League lawmaker Enamul Haque in the parliament yesterday.

Enamul said the company is smuggling billions of dollars out of Bangladesh in the name of selling property. "For this, Bangladesh is facing dollar crisis," he alleged and wanted to know whether the finance minister was aware of it.

Meanwhile, responding to lawmakers' queries in parliament, Saifur expressed his dissatisfaction

BARAPUKURIA COAL-FIRED PROJECT

Faulty power plant fails to take off yet

First unit inoperative, trial run of the second starts today

KONGKON KARMAKER, Dinajpur

Due to hundreds of technical faults, the fate of the Chinese built Barapukuria 250 MW coal-fired power plant remains uncertain, sources said.

The 125 MW first unit of the highly over-priced two-unit power plant went out of operation soon after its trial run last month. The authorities are now trying to start test operation of the second 125 MW unit today.

Problems of the first unit have been addressed. But we will not launch this unit till we see the performance of the second unit. If the second unit runs well, we will then try to re-start the first unit," says a Power Development Board (PDB) official, expressing lack of confidence in the plant's technology.

Project Director of the power plant Md Fazlul Haque says he expects both the units to start commercial operation by April. "But in many countries, coal-fired plants take more than 4-5 years to go into commercial operation. So, if it takes that much time in our case too, it may not be very unusual," he said.

But some officials of the project expressed doubts whether the first unit would go into operation at all. Initially, the plant was scheduled to start operation in 1998. But due to poor progress of the Chinese-built coal mining project, the power plant has also been delayed. Consequently, the plant was scheduled to start operation in 2004, then in 2005 and now it is due to operate from April this year.

A new problem for the power plant that emerged recently is that coal being extracted as raw material for it has 20 percent moisture instead of the expected 10 percent.

The first unit was earlier scheduled to start trial run back in October last year but it started in November. And then it had to be shut down due to technical

Defiant Iran starts nuke enrichment

AFP, Vienna/ Tehran

Iran has started putting uranium feedstock gas into centrifuges, defying the West with actual enrichment work on making what can be nuclear reactor fuel or atom bomb material, diplomats told AFP yesterday.

Uranium enrichment is seen as a red line by the United States and European Union in the long-running international standoff over Iran's nuclear programme, as it is crucial to making atomic weapons.

Putting uranium hexafluoride (UF6) gas into centrifuges, which distill out enriched uranium, appears a major escalation by Iran in its face-off with the West over a nuclear program which the United States claims hides secret atomic weapons development.

Iran said Monday that it would

Feuding SQ Chy family wanders in legal maze

Cousins battle over business interests

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

A multilateral family feud has given rise to a bitter legal battle among cousins and has resulted in a split in the joint family of Salauddin Quader Chowdhury, parliamentary affairs adviser to the prime minister.

Salauddin's cousins Salman F Rahman and Sohel F Rahman filed a case against three directors of the QC Container Line Ltd, who are also Salauddin's brothers.

Significantly, Salauddin's name is not among the accused though he is a member of the board of directors.

It was learnt that Salauddin's relationship with his three brothers has deteriorated to such an extent that he did not even invite them to the wedding of his eldest daughter Farzin Quader Chowdhury.

On the last Eid-ul-Azha,

Salauddin said his Eid prayers and sacrificed animals separately from his brothers, making an exception to the long-held family tradition of doing those together with his brothers.

Family sources close to the younger three brothers said it has become almost impossible to keep the joint family intact and they now want their father's property divided among them.

Late Fazlul Quader Chowdhury was a speaker of the erstwhile East Pakistan Assembly and president of the Pakistan Muslim League. He was also an acting-president of Pakistan for a few days. He left behind a huge amount of property including land and houses in Rajan and Rangunia, a house in Chittagong city named Goodhill, and another house in Dhanmondi, Dhaka.

WHAT CAUSED THE CONFLICT AMONG THE BROTHERS

A number of reasons soured the relationship between Salauddin
