Making Parliament Effective

Bangladesh is about to step into its 35th year of being an independent nation. But it is a birthday that gives rise to mixed feelings. Of course we celebrate this day that marks our freedom from a fascist rule but it is also a reminder of all the vows our leaders have broken over these three and a half decades.

Immediately after its independence came the enactment of a liberal constitution under which the first elections were held. But the first four stormy years ended in disappointment, tragedy and disillusionment; the people of this nation faced a stifling period of military rule that had cast an ominous shadow on the glory of freedom. But the restoration of democracy in 1991 after about a two-decade long autocracy and military rule brought back the hope that finally our country was about to become the nation it was meant to be. In those early months of 1991 as the autocratic Ershad bowed down to a popular movement and handed over power to Justice Shahabuddin Ahmed-led caretaker government, political analysts declared what they termed the beginning of a new era, the democratic era. The common people started to have rosy dreams of a prosperous and peaceful future. Over the next 15 years those hopes have grown into a deep-seated disappointment.

Cover Photo: Zahedul I Khan
Cover Design: Manan Murshed

Star inside

- Letters 2
- Voicebox 4
- Chintito 5
- Newsnotes 6
- Straight Talk 16
  From Bangla Beat to Afro Beat
- Event 18
  Reaching for new heights
- Musings 20
  Boredom
  Learning to Cope
- Food for Thought 22
  When Publicity Becomes Propaganda
- Wildlife 24
  To a Tiger's Rescue
- International 26
  From Bagram to Abu Ghraib
- Slice of Life 28
  Who Dares, Wins...
- Time Out 29
  Chess and Festivity
- Fiction 30
  Thinking Out Loud
- Trivia 34
- Health 36
- Sci-tech 38
- Book Review 40
- Books 41
- Dhaka Diary 42
- Jokes 44
- New Flicks 46
- Write to Mita 47
- Globetrotter 48