Iranian paintings at Shilpakala Academy

Works by Forouzan Farzam (L) and Shahla Mahjoubi

ERSHAD KAMOL

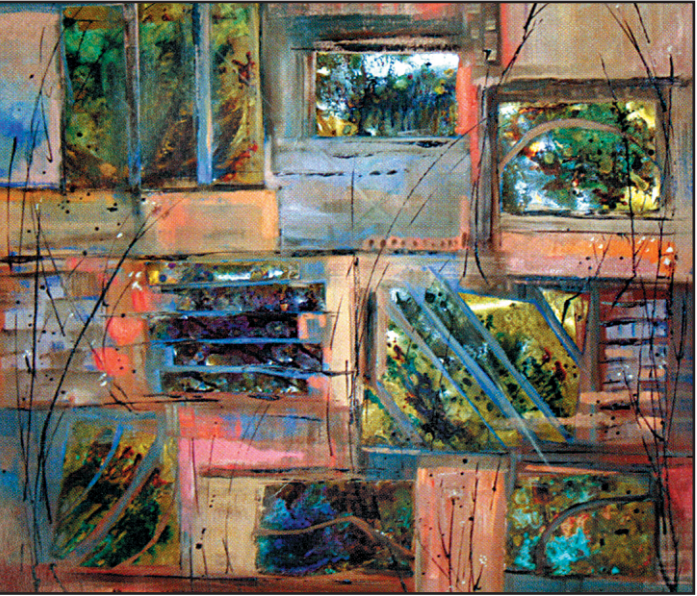

THIRTY-six art works by seven Iranian female artists -- Mahvash Soheili, Marayam Mohseni, Nasrin Mahmoodi, Mojgan Hosseini, Fereshte Moghtader, Forouzan Farzam and Shahla Mahjoubi -- are on display at the National Art Gallery of Bangladesh Shilpakala Academy. Using acrylic and mixed media, the artists have presented fauna and flora, interrelationship between humans and nature, emotions and others in their distinctive styles at the group exhibition.

Mahvash Soheili in her five acrylic paintings has symbolically depicted sadness using different shades of blue, grey and black. Specialties of her works are using of casual colour brush of black on the background of either grey or burnt sienna. Another aspect of her work is the use of golden 'square' with delicate lines to represent hope in the midst of pathos.

Four mixed media works of Marayam Mohseni are on display at the exhibition. Black, blue, burnt sienna, ash and red are the prominent colours in her works. Mohseni has drawn delicate lines to create the texture of 'fossil' on the burnt sienna to symbolically represent the barren earth.

The Singer, If I Live Once More, The Impossible Flowers and others are the titles of Nasrin Mahmoodi's six paintings of acrylic medium.

Using human figure and animal forms, she has depicted the serenity and harmony of the countryside.

In the case of Mojgan Hosseini's mixed media works, female figures and symbolic colour have been used to represent the interrelationship between humans and nature. Interestingly Hosseini has used a mono-colour background on half of the canvas. On the rest of the acrylic paintings, she has used bright colours like golden, red and blue.

Mother, Mother and Child, Mother and Daughter and Paverther are the titles of Fereshte Moghtader's canvases. Mother and Child is a series of three paintings. Portraying the figures of 'women' and 'womb and child'

Moghtader has used bright colours such as red and blue.

Forouzan Farzam's three acrylic paintings have been done with bright colours. She has used bold and colourful figures of the 'legends' to represent the inner spirit and purity of human souls. She has used pebbles, seashells and other elements to create the texture of fossil in her mixed media composition titled Untitled IV.

Four mixed media works of Shahla Mahjoubi are on display, in which she has used painted copper plate and bright colours. In doing so, she has created the wonderful fauna and flora such as wild flowers in the hill tracts and others.

Begun on July 6, the group exhibition will end on July 21.

Up-close with Sharmin Lucky

CULTURAL CORRESPONDENT

"My quality time is for my son, husband and home. I just don't have the time one needs to invest as a film actress. I'm satisfied being a model and don't wish to pursue acting as a career," says Sharmin Lucky, when asked about the recent rumours that she would star in telefilms.

She stepped into the cultural arena with recitation through a group in Maghbazar, led by eminent actor, Asaduzzaman Noor. During the time of floods (between 1988 and 1993), the group did a lot of social work, while taking the art of poetry recitation to the heart of the villages. They had eminent personalities like Naren Biswas and Pradip Ghosh with them. At school she always took part in chorus singing and recitation. The maternal side of her family also encouraged her towards cultural activity. Through her contacts with an advertising firm, she went into doing voice overs for TV commercials. In this field at that time were well-known names such as Tropa Majumdar and Afroza Banu.

"I worked in quite a few TV commercials under the guidance of Sara Zaker and Asaduzzaman Noor.

Among them, the ad for Square's Jui Narkel Tel where I was playing the piano with the jingle Megh kalo, andhar kalo, became quite popular. Then I had to complete my studies and got married. Consequently, I was not in the media for eight years," said Lucky.

Asked if modelling took a lot of her time, Lucky said, "I do selective work, so that it does not hamper my routine at home at all." Talking about how she got into the Siddiqua Kabir's widely popular cookery show, Siddiqua Kabir's Recipe, she said that Sara Zaker got her involved in this show. After 2002 she went into ads again in brands such as Surf Excel, and Lifebuoy.

Touching on interesting experiences linked to her work in Siddiqua Kabir's Recipe, she says that when she goes out shopping or to weddings, children clamour after her and call her 'RecipeAunt'.

Her latest work is the ad for Ovaltine apart from the programme on Banglavisian, which deals with career-related inquiries for youth such as photography, modelling and filmmaking. She also does a minute-long programme on ntv, providing cooking tips.

Sci-Fi King Cameron plans extravagant comeback

Nine years after the launch of his last feature film, James Cameron is targeting a summer 2008 release for his next project, 20th Century Fox's Avatar, and he hopes to start shooting a cast of unknown actors in February.

Cameron (of The Terminator, Aliens and True Lies fame) is plotting a high-concept comeback film for his return to mainstream features, well in the wake of his king-making helming of 1997's Titanic. His new project follows a paraplegic war veteran who is brought to another planet inhabited by a humanoid race at odds with Earth's citizens.

"Believe it or not, the shooting is a very small part of it," Cameron says. "It's a very, very big project where the shooting is like a month and a half -- not really very much. There's just so much CG (computer-generated), and the visual effects are a huge component. A lot of it is performance capture."

Cameron takes pains to make a distinction between his use of performance capture versus the more popular motion-capture techniques that often heavily modify recorded gestures in post-production.

"With performance capture, you're capturing exactly what the actor does and translating it to the CG character without the interpretation of animators," he says. "So it's not performance by committee, it's performance by the actor. I'm an absolute stickler about this, and I wanted to make a director-centric performance-capture process. We've spent literally since August of last year creating this and now we're ready to go."
