Editor's note

We are highly encouraged by the tremendous response our readers have shown to the first issue of Star Campus. The number of emails and telephone calls both from students and teachers amply suggest that we are on target in our mission to fill a void that has been there in the academic arena of the country. In Star Campus students and teachers have found a common platform to interact and express their minds.

The positive response has only doubled our responsibility to assimilate quality reading materials for our readers. Wider participation of students and teachers and other writers would further enrich the publication in the near future. We hope readers will find the current issue equally interesting and informative.

Mahfuz Anam
Editor & Publisher

