

This week's Star Campus spotlight is on the photography clubs of various universities and institutes. The members of these clubs are taking part in competitions at home and abroad and winning prizes. The educational institutes that are providing necessary support to such clubs deserve special mention.

In this issue we have covered the activities of some of the photography clubs. We intend to cover activities of clubs of other educational institutes and photography institutes in one of our future issues.

So long it was unknown to us how much of good work the talented students have done in the past years. Star Campus endeavours to let the readers have a glimpse of some of the work.
