Polls sans grand alliance won't be acceptable

Says Adviser Ruhul

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Adviser Ruhul Alam Chowdhury yesterday said if Awami League-led grand alliance does not take part in the January 22 election, it would not be acceptable to all.

"I think the poll would not be acceptable to anyone in the world. But the election must be held within 90 days to act in accordance with the constitution," viewed Ruhul while talking to reporters at his food ministry office.

According to the adviser, consensus between the major political parties is the best way to resolve the present political crisis.

In this regard, Ruhul gave example of the 1991 elections and said consensus among the major parties allowed the constitution to be amended after the elections.

Chronology of keeping off polls

The Daily Star publishes a chronological account of the political events that took place in the last two months leading to the Awami League-led alliance's latest decision to boycott the January 22 general election.

OCTOBER 28, 2006

At least 12 people were killed and about 2,000 wounded, many by bullets, as activists of BNP-led four-party alliance and Awami League-led 14-party combine clashed in an escalation of violence across the country. The political activists vandalised and set fire to offices and houses of rivals as they came out on streets with vengeful programmes a few hours after curtain fell on the coalition government.

Former Chief Justice KM Hasan decided to stay away from

RESISTING ELECTION Hasina asks party men to make door to door visit

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Awami League (AL) President Sheikh Hasina yesterday instructed her party leaders and workers to initiate door to door campaign to make the people aware about a free and fair election to resist vote rigging and holding of a 'farcical' election.

The armed forces --- army, air force and navy --- on election duty for 20 days from January 10 to help maintain law and order.

Besides, the home ministry is

"But when we understood that a farcical election is going to be held without a proper voter list, we stepped back and decided not to participate in any farcical election," she added.

Voter list is the main prerequisite for holding a fair election but the caretaker government and the Election Commission are trying to hold a parliamentary election without a proper voter list, she said at a view exchange meeting with the leaders of her party's student wing Bangladesh Chhatra League

Wildlife makes a comeback after community's involvement in conservation

PINAKI ROY

Community participation in the conservation process of the Lauachhara forest has seen a remarkable improvement in the overall condition of the forest including an increase in wildlife.

The illegal practice of tree felling is now strictly controlled in the forest.

The significant increase of wildlife indicates an improving forest health since the Nishorgo Support Project of the Forest Department started some two years back.

In addition, less human intrusion in the forest also contributed a lot in the process, people concerned with the forest told The Daily Star during a recent visit there.

A small patch (only 1250 acre) of evergreen and semi-evergreen forest in Srimangal, Lauachhara is noted for its rich flora and fauna.

While conducting a bird census, Dr Monirul Khan of Jahangirnagar University found
