41 killed as bus goes up in flames

OUR CORRESPONDENT, Comilla

At least 41 people were killed when an overloaded bus fell into a ditch and burst into flames at Suwagazi in Comilla on the Dhaka-Chittagong highway yesterday.

The overcrowded bus, belonging to SR Paribahan, a transport company, was speeding towards Chittagong when it lost control 20 kilometres from Comilla town and veered into a ditch around 1:15pm. The bus instantly burst into flames when its fuel tank ruptured and the diesel caught fire.

Comilla's Deputy Commissioner (DC) Mohibul Hossain Chowdhury told The Daily Star last night, "We have recovered 41 bodies from the wreckage. We do not think there are any more bodies

Blockade CG orders army, law enforcers to show zero tolerance

UNB, Dhaka

The caretaker government yesterday ordered army, BDR, Rab and police to show zero tolerance in dealing with a three-day blockade programme, according to a police source.

The Awami League-led grand alliance will enforce the blockade across the country for three days starting from today to press for a fresh election schedule after preparing a correct voter list and resignation of President Iajuddin Ahmed from the office of chief adviser.

The source told the news agency that the law enforcers, including army, would be posted at different strategic points in the capital to ensure smooth movement of traffic and peace and safety to public life.

He said some 10,000 to 12,000 police will be guarding the streets

Grand alliance's 72-hr blockade begins today

Massive security measures, Bangabhaban siege on Jan 9, alliance may go for continuous blockade from next week until election day

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Awami League (AL)-led grand alliance's countrywide 72-hour blockade starts today amid the caretaker government's resolute and elaborate plan to thwart the demonstration for electoral reform 'at any cost' short of a negotiation.

The blockade slated to be a 48-hour one was stretched by another 24 hours last night by the grand alliance. It has threatened to lay siege to Bangabhaban, the office of the president, on the extended day of the blockade.

Sources said the government, if necessary, will use the army along with other law enforcement agencies to foil the demonstration as the army was already used to face a hartal on December 21 for the first time in the last 15 years since restoration of democracy through a mass upsurge in 1990.

Ignoring repeated urges from different corners, President and Chief Adviser (CA) Iajuddin Ahmed till yesterday did not initiate any step to resolve the political crisis centring the parliamentary election set for January 22. He rather assumed a tough posture against the grand alliance's planned demonstration.

Instructed by the home ministry led by Iajuddin Ahmed, Dhaka Metropolitan Police, which had launched blanket arrests on Thursday to foil the blockade, yesterday imposed an indefinite ban on rallies, processions and other forms of demonstrations which might create obstacles to vehicular traffic on the streets of the capital, and informed the city residents about the decision using megaphones.

The grand alliance comprising AL-led 14-party Jatiya Party (JP), Liberal Democratic Party (LDP), a faction of Islami Oikya Jote and Islamic Front Bangladesh called for the blockade demanding resignation of Iajuddin Ahmed from the post of chief adviser, and announcement of a new election schedule following 'proper updating' of the voter list.

Poll preparations in a mess

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

With only 15 days in hand, preparation for the next parliamentary election is still in disarray as the Election Commission (EC) Secretariat is yet to specify the number of voters, ballot papers to be printed, polling stations, and contesting political parties.

In an unprecedented way, the EC Secretariat officials kept giving estimated information on these issues.

"I cannot exactly tell at this moment the number of polling stations, contesting candidates and political parties," Deputy EC Secretary Mihir Sarwar Morshed told reporters yesterday.

According to the deputy EC secretary, the number of voters is around 9.33 crore while the number of polling stations is about 34,000.

Mihir, however, said they published the list of polling stations in an official gazette on January 4 in accordance with the electoral laws that require publishing of the list at least 15 days before polling day.

Polls to be held on time: Iajuddin

UNB, Dhaka

President/ Chief Adviser Iajuddin Ahmed yesterday reaffirmed that the parliamentary elections would be held on schedule due to constitutional obligation, although a major political camp withdrew from the race.

In a statement, on the eve of the 14-party-led grand alliance-sponsored two-day blockade across the country, he said nobody can impede the constitutional provision for holding the general election.

"I'm committed to handing over power to an elected government through holding election in time. I seek cooperation from all in protecting the constitution."

Referring to the Election Commission (EC) announcement for holding the election on January 22, the president noted that the EC had already taken all measures for holding the election.

"My government has ordered the law enforcers to take stern measures so that no quarter can disturb law and order in a planned way to thwart the upcoming elections," the president said.

'CA's statement comes from Hawa Bhaban'

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Reacting to President and Chief Adviser (CA) Iajuddin Ahmed's statement last night Awami League (AL)-led grand alliance leaders said the CA wants to bring back BNP-Jamaat-led coalition back to power through holding a one-sided election on January 22.

"The president has become the chief adviser by violating the constitution. He became the chief adviser to bring back the BNP-Jamaat coalition back to power and he has made that clear through his

EU poll mission may not go ahead if crisis persists

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

The European Union yesterday said their Election Observer Mission for the upcoming general election in Bangladesh might not proceed as expected, if political stakeholders fail to resolve the ongoing crisis.

The international credibility and economy of Bangladesh would suffer a major blow if the current electoral process fails, the EU further observed.

"The EU calls on all political parties and stakeholders in the Bangladesh election process, including the Caretaker Government and the Election Commission, to work urgently and cooperatively towards a solution which meets the rights and expectations of the people of Bangladesh and which satisfies international democratic standards," says a press statement released by the local EU presidency.

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

The European Union Election Observer Mission (EUEOM) yesterday said they could not find the source of the observations made by BNP Chairperson Khaleda Zia on Friday, when she said the EU in 2000 suspected the then voter list contained 13 million false voters.

"We have not been able to establish the source of the figures attributed to the EU election observer mission," said Graham Elson, deputy chief observer of the

Fog, transport crisis disrupt post-Eid return to Dhaka

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Thousands returned to the capital yesterday despite immense transport crisis and misty weather after celebrating Eid holidays outside the city.

The onrush of vacationers headed back to Dhaka was triggered by the January 7-8 blockade programme called by the Awami League-led grand alliance and a speculation of the blockade programme turning into an indefinite one.

Apparently, the demand for Dhaka-bound tickets outnumbered available means of transport that enabled the unscrupulous ticket-sellers to skyrocket the ticket prices.

Besides, dense fog that had been continuing to blanket most part of the country for the third consecutive day greatly disrupted road and river communication throughout the country. This hazardous condition caused many passenger vessels, buses and trains to be delayed for hours and added to the passengers' sufferings.

Trains coming from the northern part of the country were more or less five to six hours late due to the heavy fog and overloaded passengers, said Ashok Kumar Dey, station manager of Kamalapur Railway Station, adding, "We had to delay all trains coming from the northern region as nothing was visible and tickets were not available either."

Cry for fertiliser in North Farmers take to streets, block roads

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Facing crisis of urea fertiliser at the peak season for Boro cultivation, the farmers brought out processions and created blockade on the highways at different places, especially in the northern region.

Hundreds of vehicles remained stranded for about four hours on Rangpur-Lalmonirhat and Rangpur-Kurigram roads due to the blockade by the farmers.

While the farmers are demanding smooth supply of fertiliser, many dealers in those districts increased the price exorbitantly on the pretext of short supply, reports say.

Bangladesh Fertiliser Association (BFA), however, claims that there is no shortage of urea fertiliser in the country as nearly four lakh tonnes of urea is in stock.

"We have sufficient stock and supply of fertiliser and there is hardly any chance of a crisis till the end of January," said BFA Chairman Kofiluddin Ahmed.

Asked about farmers' agitation for fertiliser in different districts, the chairman said there might be some shortage of supply in remote areas as there was transport problem for more than three days during the Eid holidays.

Besides, the supply was hampered as the movement of trucks on the highways was slowed due to thick fog for the last couple of days in the northern districts, he said. He further said that the delivery of urea from the BCIC factory was hampered as the authority issued a circular asking every dealer to come at the factory gate for getting supply.

Earlier, dealers used to get supply by the transport agency through authorisation letter,

Other business bodies yet to endorse call
