

WINTER'S FIRST BITE

WINTER has finally invaded the brick city. People are experiencing its first bite of the season. A cold spell is currently blowing across the country claiming dozens of lives in the last few days. Mercury fell below 10 degrees Celcius in the capital. Squatters and day-labourers are the worst victims of cold spell. Children and elderly people suffer from cold-related diseases. But of course, the street-side sellers of cakes and warm clothes are making some brisk business!
