Italy offers help to CG

UNB, Dhaka

Italian Ambassador Dr Pietro Ballero yesterday offered his country's assistance to the caretaker government whenever needed.

The Italian envoy came up with the offer when he called on Foreign Adviser Dr Iftekhar Ahmed Chowdhury at his office yesterday, said a Foreign Ministry handout.

The envoy also expressed satisfaction at the steps being taken by the caretaker government.

During the meeting, they also discussed matters of mutual interest, including the possibility of enhancing cooperation in the field of development.

Italy is also ready to support Bangladesh for power generation, the Ambassador said.

The possibility of taking a greater number of manpower from Bangladesh to Italy also came up at the meeting.

Iraq as hundreds of thousands of Shiite pilgrims observed an annual mourning ritual that culminated on Tuesday.

With Shiites marking the final day of the 10-day Ashura ceremony -- Shiite Islam's holiest dates -- dozens came under bomb attacks, mainly in the restive provinces of Diyala, northeast of Baghdad.

Twenty-three Shiite pilgrims died when a suicide bomber blew himself up in a mosque as they were marking Ashura in Dur Mandali, near the town of Balad Ruz in Diyala, security sources said. A further 57 were wounded.

In another attack, 12 Kurdish Shiites, known as Faylis, were killed when a bomb stashed in a roadside bin exploded as they headed to a local husseiniyah (religious hall) in Khanqin, also in Diyala near the Iranian border.

Police Colonel Azad Issa said the dead included a woman and a child, and that another 38 people were wounded.

In a third attack, a sniper killed three Shiite volunteers as they served traditional meals to pilgrims near the Diyala provincial capital Baquba.

Shiite Muslims observing Ashura have become a frequent target of Sunni militants.

Later Tuesday, several mortar rounds slammed into the Baghdad Sunni district of Adhamiyah, killing at least 10 people, police said.

BARRED FROM TRAVELLING TO INDIA

Sohel Taj demands probe

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Tanjin Ahmad, a former Awami League lawmaker, yesterday called for an investigation into why he was barred from travelling to India.

Immigration officials at Zia International Airport prevented Tanjin, also known as Sohel Taj, from boarding an India-bound plane on January 28. He was due to attend a global conference in New Delhi.

Sohel Taj, son of Tajuddin Ahmad, the first prime minister of Bangladesh, submitted a letter to Chief Adviser to the caretaker government Dr Fakhruddin Ahmed yesterday seeking his intervention in the issue.

"I demand corrective measures and an adequate explanation for this horrendous and humiliating incident which has greatly tarnished my and my family's image," he said in the letter.

Talking to reporters at Dhaka Reporters' Unity (DRU) yesterday, Sohel Taj also demanded that the caretaker government arrest criminals and their godfathers, corrupt people and corrupt politicians.

He also urged the government not to harass innocent politicians and people.

The AL leader said though there is no allegation against him, he was barred from travelling to India when he was representing the AL.
