At least one tonne harmful waste dumped in the open daily

MIRZA SHAKIL, Tangail

At least 89 private clinics and nursing homes out of 114 in Tangail district are illegal.

In Tangail town, there are 29 clinics, 17 of them illegal. Three of the illegal clinics have applied to the health directorate for permission, according to sources at the Civil Surgeon's office.

Most of the clinics, legal or illegal, are doing brisk business defying laws as regards treatment facilities and dumping clinical waste, polluting the environment and causing serious health hazard.

According to a survey by Shuvo Unnayan Sanghtha, a local NGO, the clinics dump over one tonne harmful wastes in the open daily.

But the authorities are yet to take any step to stop pollution of land, water and air by the clinics.

Some of the illegal clinics are located close to Tangail General Hospital and upazila health complexes.

Of the illegal 89 clinics, 23 have applied for license through the Civil Surgeon while 66 are operating without bothering for any sort of official permission. Of the 89, 14 each are in Madhupur (Madhupur-Dhanbari) and Ghatail upazilas, 13 in Mirzapur, 12 in Tangail Sadar, 10 in Sakhipur, 8 in Kalihati, 5 in Basail, 4 each in Gopalpur and Nagarpur, 3 in Bhuapur and 2 in Delduar.

Most of the clinics are operating without required numbers of doctors, qualified nurses and qualified technicians.

Harmful clinical wastes dumped near a private clinic in New Bus Stand area in Tangail town.

Owner of a licensed clinic in Tangail town seeking anonymity said that all unlicensed clinics are doing business allegedly by managing local authorities and officials at the health department.

This correspondent while visiting some clinics in Tangail town saw clinical wastes were dumped in open spaces nearby.

Dr Ratan Chandra Saha, a chest diseases specialist, said clinical wastes are very harmful and spread fatal diseases like Hepatitis B.

Mir Jalal Ahmed, an official of Bangladesh Environment Lawyers' Association (BELA), said the clinics are doing a crime by knowingly dumping wastes and polluting the environment.

"We (BELA), on several occasions, drew attention of owners of the clinics and health department officials about harmful effects of clinical wastes and requested them to dispose them properly, but no result," he said.

Talking to this correspondent, engineer Shahidul Islam, a resident at Zila Sadar Road in the town, said a clinic in the area has been dumping wastes beside the road despite repeated protests by local people.

After declaration of the state of emergency, they are dumping wastes behind the clinic, he added.

A private clinic owner in Old Bus Stand area in the town however said local health department is yet to give them any suggestion on how to dump or dispose of wastes properly.

When contacted, deputy civil surgeon Dr Firoz Khan said steps will be taken against illegal clinics and improper disposal of wastes.

'Emergency treatment not available for time being'

Govt doctors spend less time at clinics as diagnostic labs raided

MUKLESUR RAHMAN LITON, Kishoreganj

Most private clinics in Kishoreganj town have hung signboards: Emergency treatment not available for time being.

Patients are taken aback by the unusual gesture because earlier they used to get a cordial reception at clinics, mostly manned by government doctors employed at public hospitals.

The situation has changed because government doctors are spending less time at private clinics than before after proclamation of emergency and recent raids on some diagnostic centers, sources at the clinics said.

Earlier government doctors spent hardly two to three hours at Kishoreganj Sadar Hospital and then came to private clinics.

Employees at receptions in some clinics said government doctors do not come to the clinics during their official working hours at Sadar Hospital since February 9, when a mobile team led by a magistrate raided a good number of diagnostic centres.

"Government doctors now have to attend public hospitals full time and so we can not give emergency services", said an employee at a clinic.

"Now we send patients to doctors at Sadar Hospital", he said.

This correspondent during a visit to a modern clinic at Kalibari crossing in the town yesterday noon did not find any doctor. Around 15 government doctors used to work there during office hours earlier, employees there said.

On February 7, joint forces led by First Class Magistrate Abu Sayeed Ahmed detained 21 pharmacy owners on charge of keeping sex stimulating banned medicines and date-expired ones.

On February 9, joint forces led by the first class magistrate sealed 'fully or partially' 28 diagnostic centers out of 31 in the town as these were illegal and had no proper waste management system.

Some doctors at the Sadar Hospital seeking anonymity said, government doctors who are permanent residents of the town are mainly involved with private clinics and they are influential.

Hospital authorities can not take action against them even if they remain absent for days as they have backing of local political leaders.

When contacted, Civil Surgeon Sayij Uddin said, steps will be taken so that government doctors work full time at public hospitals in the district. He however said there is no rule to bar doctors from private practice.

DEATH OF KUSHTIA FARMER IN CUSTODY Family files case challenging police claim of 'crossfire'

AMANUR AMAN, From Kushtia

Family of a 'crossfire' victim lodged a case with a magistrate court in Kushtia yesterday against three police officials of Islamic University (IU) police station. In the case, compliant Romecha Khatun, wife of farmer Abu Daud, alleged that her husband was tortured to death in custody and the body was shot later to show the incident as a crossfire death.

The accused police officials are Officer-in-charge (OC) of IU police station Anwar Hossain and Sub Inspectors Jalal Uddin and Faruk Hossain.

Mmagistrate Kabir Mahmud ordered to send the case to home ministry, seeking directive for judicial inquiry, court sources said.

According to case, Abu Daud Hossain, 35, of Kirtinagar village in Kushtia Sadar upazila, came out his house along with several hundred villagers at about 2:30 am on January 11, hearing a hue and cry on nearby Kushtia-Jhenidah road. The hue and cry was raised as a robbers attacked a rice-loaded truck and stabbed its driver.

As the incident created a traffic jam on the road and drew a large number of people, a police team from Islamic University (IU) police station rushed there.

At one stage, police arrested three villagers-- Babul 42, Azizul 45 and Abdu Daud.

As local people instantly protested the arrest police released

Babul and Azizul and took Daud to the police station at around 3.30am. After about two hours, bullets-hit body of Daud was found on a field at Kirtinagar village.

The incident triggered more protests by villagers, who also put up a barricade on Kushtia-Khulna highway halting transports for two hours.

Police tried to disperse the mob charging batons but failed. Around 30 people were injured. Police also beat Daud's brother Sanwar when he went to the field to see his brother's body.

Army led by Maj Ahmed from Kushtia rushed to the spot and brought the situation under control, saying the incident will be properly probed. The army officer also asked the villagers to submit a memorandum to authorities concerned.

Later, police claimed to local journalists that Daud was killed in a 'crossfire'.

Police said Daud's accomplices ambushed them at the field when they were returning to the police station taking Daud into custody.

Odhikar, a human right organization, after investigation in the area also claimed that Daud was killed in torture, not in crossfire.

Local people also claimed that Daud was an innocent farmer.

Odhikar also quoted Kushtia General Hospital sources, who said marks of injut were found on Daud's body.
