ACSU to ensure fair World Cup

PTI, Port of Spain

The International Cricket Council's Anti-Corruption and Security Unit (ACSU) will ensure the World Cup in the West Indies next month is free of match-fixing or other corrupt practices.

ACSU members will be present at the event venues as a precautionary measure as per ICC's zero-tolerance policy regarding corruption in the sport.

"There will be "stringent measures in place to deal with any suggestions of corruption during the tournament which begins in three weeks with Warm-up matches," ICC Chief Executive Malcolm Speed said.

"The ICC Anti-Corruption and Security Unit will be here in force. Its members, both the investigators and the Regional Security Managers, attend events such as this. They don't seek to attract attention to themselves but they will be here," he said told reporters in Trinidad.

The ACSU, which is staffed by former senior police officers from around the globe, will be monitoring any inappropriate activity surrounding CWC matches and following up on anything that appears to contravene the ICC Code of Conduct.

"That will be their focus throughout the Cricket World Cup," said Speed, revealing that millions and even as much as USD 1 billion in worldwide bets could be at stake per match if certain teams clash in ICC CWC 2007. PTI

Mashud not lost

MOHAMMAD ISAM

Khaled Mashud welcomed the decision when he was asked to sit out the last two matches of the Zimbabwe series at home. Without asking too many questions, he let a young turk play. Again, just before the Scotland series in December, the same was asked of this man.

You are not indispensable, so take 'rest', the Bangladesh team management told him at that time.

For a man who has been standing behind the wicket for the past twelve years, even to ask him in this manner was unjustified. But Mashud did not ask any questions, rather thought that it was quite logical since it was wise to give young Mushfiqur Rahim a chance to play at the top level so that the baby-faced cricketer from Bogra can fit into his gloves.

But he never thought that his unconditional loyalty to the selectors would bring so much pain that he had ever endured in his luminous career.

"When I was injured during that league match against Biman (last month) at BKSP, I thought that it would be a big risk (to play in Zimbabwe) since I was assured of going to the World Cup," said Mashud while bearing his soul to a few reporters at a tranquil Dhanmondi Cricket Academy ground yesterday, a day after the selectors omitted him from the World Cup squad.

"The biggest surprise for me was that I was rested from playing at home just so that a young player could get acquainted with the international scene. Now, I am not going to the World Cup.

"I must say that whoever has held my league performance against me, does not cover domestic cricket. When I play for Abahani, I cannot use those premier league matches just as my springboard to get into form. Playing for a big club like Abahani is very important so I just cannot play at four or five to get a big innings under my belt. I prefer playing for my team rather for myself," said the 31-year-old while responding to criticism that his domestic performance was not up to the mark.

Chief selector Faruque Ahmed and Co. might have considered his non-performance or to say the least his non-appearance as an excuse to chop him. But forget his recent form.

Just like every team he has represented so far in his career, he has added more than just the physical self. He knows how to motivate players in different situations and also is a master at distracting the opponent. Experience of playing against all international teams could have been handy but the selectors decided otherwise -- they went for a plus-minus approach when it came to carrying experienced players.

"Honestly, calling up Javed (Omar) is somewhat correct but he should have been given time to settle in. There was ample opportunity for the team to test him out once more, over the last two months," said Mashud.

He however said that he was shocked to learn that Rajin Saleh was being considered as a second wicket-keeping option. He refused to be drawn into any other talk about the selection.

Despite all the pain he is going through at the moment, he said that he felt victor after the support he received from former players and the people of the country, particularly in his hometown Rajshahi, ever since news broke that he is not going to the biggest cricket tournament.

"The support from former players and captains has given me a lot of hope. They are all on my side and the amount of support I have received from the public has made me realise, over the past 24 hours, that I am not lost yet," he admitted.

"I am not lost to cricket. I am not lost as a cricketer."

But three former cricketers decided to disagree with the rest of the country and that has nailed his exclusion from the national side.

Was it a personal issue with chief selector Faruque then? Whispers are that Faruque's role in the Reebok commission affair back in August is in the root of all the trouble. Apparently, Faruque solely blames Mashud for blowing up the secret.

Decency was also missing when only coach Dav Whatmore informed this big name about his omission.

"Dav was kind enough to inform me that I was not considered for the Faruque lied!

It is a mystery for seaming all-rounder Mohammad Sharif why he is not in the World Cup squad that was announced on Tuesday.

"I was extremely hopeful even last (Monday) night that I was going to the West Indies. But the chief selector (Faruque Ahmed) called me in the morning to tell me that I was not in the side because of my injury," said Sharif, who had been recalled to the national side after five years for the just concluded Zimbabwe trip.

"Actually right now I have no injury problem at all. I had a hamstring cramp in the second ODI and that healed the same day. Team physio Paul (Close) had also given me green signal about my fitness," he claimed.

Middle-order batsman Tushar Imran was more forthright about what he thought regarding the views of the selectors that he has been given enough opportunities.

"I agree that they gave me chances but those games were mostly against Australia and England in England. In the last series (in Zimbabwe) I got one match and was out first ball. But I went to the crease at number seven which is not my position."

"They (the selectors) did not want me in the team. I think it would have been better had I not been picked for Zimbabwe. Then I could have played in the domestic league and maybe a hundred or two here would have got me a World Cup ticket like some of the others," said Tushar.

Despite the feeling of frustration, the 24-year-old refused to allow disappointment to get the better of him. "I take this as a challenge. I will try to perform well for the Bangladesh A team against England A if I am selected and hopefully I will make a comeback for the national team sooner rather than later."

Mehrab Hossain, the 19-year-old opener, took his exclusion sportingly but admitted that it was unexpected.

"I could not perform in the last series but before that I though I had formed a good opening pair with Shahriar Nafees in the home series against Zimbabwe and Scotland. So it came as a shock to me. But I believe the selectors chose the squad for the greater interest of the country. Now my job is to concentrate more on my work and hopefully I will return shortly," responded the left-handed opener.

Pollock wrecks Pakistan

AFP, Johannesburg

Shaun Pollock took the first five wickets as South Africa bowled out Pakistan for 153 in the fifth one-day international at the Wanderers Stadium Wednesday.

Pollock bowled unchanged with the new ball and took five for 23 in ten overs with a masterly display of controlled seam and swing bowling.

On a pitch with the most bounce seen in the series, Pakistan were in trouble from the first over when Pollock had Mohammad Hafeez caught behind.

Imran Nazir went on the attack to make 22 off 22 balls. He hit Pollock for a six over midwicket before an attempted repeat sent the ball high in the air for Pollock to take a return catch.

Pollock followed up with the wickets of Pakistan's three senior batsmen. He bowled Younis Khan, trapped Mohammad Yousuf leg before with a ball which swerved back into the batsman, and had Pakistan captain Inzamamul Haq caught at second slip.

Kamran Akmal fell for 22 when he pulled powerfully against Charl Langeveldt and Ashwell Prince dived to his right in front of the square leg umpire to hold a reflex catch. At that stage Pakistan, who won the toss, were 83 for six.

The rest of the bowlers were not as impressive as Pollock but only Shoaib Malik, who made 43 not out off 70 balls, provided sustained resistance to the South African attack.

Pakistan, needing to win to level the series, made two changes to the side that was beaten by ten wickets in the fourth match in Cape Town Sunday.

Mohammad Hafeez and seam bowler Rao Itfikhhar replaced Abdur Rehman and Azhar Mahmood.

South Africa, leading the series 2-1, picked the same team for the third successive match.

Rain ruins NCL resumption

SPORTS REPORTER

The sixth round of the Ispahani Mirzapore Tea 8th National Cricket League began yesterday without a ball being bowled on opening day of all three four-day matches due to unexpected rain across the country.

The country's only first-class competition resumed after over two months' break due to the staging of the first-leg of the Premier Cricket League in Dhaka.

Hosts Rajshahi are taking on Chittagong, Barisal facing Sylhet at the Fatullah Cricket Stadium and Dhaka are pitted against Khulna in their away match.

India captain Rahul Dravid sets off for a single after playing the ball to square-leg during the third one-day international against Sri Lanka in Goa yesterday.

10K-up Rahul drives India

AFP, Goa

Rahul Dravid became the sixth batsman in history to reach 10,000 one-day runs as he steered India to a series-levelling five-wicket win over Sri Lanka on Wednesday.

Dravid hit a match-winning 66 as India overcame early setbacks to surpass Sri Lanka's 230-8 in the 47th over of the third one-day international at the Nehru Stadium here.

The hosts hit 233-5 to level the four-match series 1-1 with the decider to be played in Visakhapatnam on Saturday. The first match in Kolkata was abandoned due to rain and Sri Lanka won the second in Rajkot by five runs.

The series is the last for both teams before they head to the Caribbean for the World Cup starting on March 13.

India's victory was set up by left-arm seamer Zaheer Khan who grabbed a career-best 5-42 after Sri Lanka won the toss and elected to bat in good conditions.

Zaheer reduced Sri Lanka to 6-3 in the fifth over before the tourists, electing to take first strike, fought back through the lower order to post a challenging total.

Russel Arnold (66 not out) and Tillakaratne Dilshan (42) put on 89 for the sixth wicket after half the side was back in the pavilion for 91 by the 24th over.

India, in reply, slipped to 35-2 by the fifth over as Virender Sehwag was caught off Dilhara Fernando for 12 and Sachin Tendulkar was bowled by Nuwan Kulasekara for one.

Sourav Ganguly made 48 to boost the score before Dravid and Mahendra Dhoni (67 not out) sealed India's win with a fifth-wicket stand of 133.

Dravid was unlucky to be run out four runs short of victory when bowler Malinga Bandara deflected a hit from Dhoni on to the wicket
