As the first rays of sun heralded a new day, people from all walks of life welcomed Pahela Baishakh on April 14 (first day of the Bengali year 1414). A festive spirit gripped the capital city as women in red and white saris and men in panjabi or fatua, thronged cultural programmes at different venues.

People, irrespective of religion, age and social background went around Baishakhi mela -- showcasing local handicrafts and artefacts -- in the city. Colourful rallies, music programmes, and piha festivals were part of the celebration.

Thousands gathered at Ramna Park, Suhrawardy Uddyan, Central Shaheed Minar, Dhaka University, Shahbag, Dhanmondi Lake and other venues where mass celebrations took place.

Like every year, Baishakhi celebrations kicked off in the city with Chhayana's Nabobarsho Boron programme starting at 6:45am at Ramna Botomul. Thousands of men, women and children attended the event. Young students of Chhayana started the programme with group presentation of the Tagore song -- Antoro momo bikoshito koro. Nijhor Chowdhury rendered Monomohon gohon jamini, followed by Azizur Rahman Tuhin singing Morey dekey loye jao. Among other artistes Nasima Shaheen, Shahed Imam, Aditi Mohsin, Anup Barua, Ifat Ara Dewan, Chompa Bonik and Laila Afroz performed at the programme. The event mainly featured Tagore and Nazrul songs, along with a few folk songs. The celebration ended with a group rendition of the National Anthem.

Another big event on Pahela Baishakh was Mongol Shobhajatra, the colourful rally brought out by the students of Institute of Fine Arts (IFA) Dhaka University. "The main purpose of the rally is to introduce our youth to our rural traditions," said Md. Kaoser Hassan (Togor), lecturer, Department of Sculpture, IFA.

The rally started from IFA, passed TSC, Doyel Chatter, Matsho Bhaban and Hotel Sheraton and returned to DU campus. Wrishiz Shilpi Gosthi organised a cultural programme at Shishu Park premises. Veteran artiste Fakir Alamgir performed some of his familiar numbers including Antorey gram, O Sokhina, Ma-er ekdhar dudher daam and Bhalobashi Dhaka. The programme was dedicated to the memory of cultural personalities Waheedul Haque, Abdul Halim Boyati, Hazera Bibi and Shefali Ghosh.

Around the DU campus and in other parts of the city several organisations held special programmes to mark the occasion. Sammito Sangskritik Jote staged a cultural programme at Rabindra Sarobar. National Museum organised a cultural programme featuring folk songs by artistes from all over the country.

Among other events on the day, Achin Pakhi, a film on Lalon by Tanvir Mokammel was screened at Shaikat Osman Auditorium, Central Public Library. Bangla Academy, Shilpakala Academy and Bulbul Academy of Fine Arts (BAFA) also organised special programmes to mark the day.

exponent Shamsuzzaman Khan, the programme featured music, dance, recitation and staging of selected episodes from plays.

The event was presided over by M Hamid, president of BGTF. Theatre personalities including Mamunur Rashid, Selim Al Deen, Asaduzzaman Noor and Shah Alam

The convenor of the event, Liaquat Ali Lucky, presidium member of BGTF, said, "Though Choitro Shonkranti is not celebrated through colourful events like Pahela Baishakh in Dhaka or other urban areas, it is a part of our rural heritage. Mela (fair) and social gatherings are arranged in the rural areas to celebrate the day. Since 2002, BGTF has been regularly arranging programmes to celebrate Choitro Shonkranti at Mahila Samity Stage to connect the metro dwellers with their heritage."

Ahkamullah, Laila Afroz and Rafiqul Islam recited poetry at the programme. Cultural organisation Dhruvotan rendered Tagore songs. Tamanna Rahman and her troupe performed group dance. A sarod recital by Shahadat Hossain Khan was also a part of the programme.
