

Pahela Baishakh celebrated amid festivity

SHAHIDUL ISLAM

The port city has its own style of celebrating different traditional festivals specially the Pahela Baishakh, the first day of Bangla year.

The celebration, however, in the last few years was far below its enthusiasm and distinct character due to uncanny feelings, panicky situation and sense of insecurity among the citizens against the backdrop of Ramma Batamul incident and the subsequent ultra militant-led series of bomb attacks across the country.

Once that phase is 'almost' over and sense of security well assured, this time, the Pahela Baishakh celebration has swung back to life again in Chittagong with much more colour, festivity, enthusiasm, vivacity and spontaneity. People from all ages and strata of life welcomed the first day of Bangla year 1414 on Saturday. Attired in colourful dresses the people, including women and children, thronged the DC Hill premises, the focal point of all festivities, and at different city points.

Unlike Dhaka, where colourful masks and portraits of elephant, tiger or other giant animals made by fine arts students predominantly marked the celebrations, the port city concentrated on cultural programmes, dance performance and Baishakhi Mela depicting the glories of Bangla culture, tradition and heritage.

Sammita Barsha Biday O Baran Parishad organised the main programmes on DC Hill premises, the main venue of all Pahela Baishakh celebrations in Chittagong, to welcome the new year where many cultural organisations took part. The dawn of 1414 began with folk songs by noted singers Abdur Rahman Boyati and Farida Parvin.

The beautiful DC Hill premises was in festive look throughout the day and it became more vibrant for its Bishakhi fair.

"This is a great privilege for me to attend the Pahela Baishakh celebration outside Dhaka and I'm quite impressed the way it is being celebrated here," said singer Farida Parvin on Saturday morning.

The district administration this year also came up with much enthusiasm and organised a day-long programme on the Shilpkala Academy premises.

Concord Amusement Park

authorities organised colourful programmes at Foy's Lake and Zia Smriti Complex premises. Thousands of children enjoyed the programmes in these amusement centres where the authorities offered them different rides with special discount.

Fulki, a non-traditional educational institution, came up with a surprise pack of attractive arrangements that included Baishakhi fair, pantomime show, science fair, book fair, painting exhibition and cultural programmes.

"We always strive to do something different while celebrating Pahela Baishakh and children usually are our main point of attention because we believe that the more they know Bangla culture and tradition the better it would be for the nation," said Shila Momen, principal of the institution.

Chittagong Press Club also organised a day-long programme titled "Press Club-e Katuk Baishakher Natun Din." The programme included art and pitha competition attended by the children and wives of club members.

Some advertisement firms had covered the green hills alongside the Tiger Pass area and Lalkhan Bazar Road with the help of a

31 YEARS AFTER BUDGET ALLOCATION

CU sports complex is yet to see light

NUR UDDIN ALAMGIR

Chittagong University (CU) authorities are yet to set up the proposed sports complex after 31 years of budget allocation, causing problems to the students under Physical Education Department.

The department is unable to arrange facilities for practice of indoor games for lack of a gymnasium.

Having glory of winning several competitions, the players of the university are to face serious problem in practising indoor games due to absence of a gymnasium mainly in the rainy season.

The participants on many occasions fail to win events as they are to participate in competitions with other universities without proper practice, said the players.

There are more than 500 students having knack for indoor and outdoor games like football, hockey, cricket, handball, volleyball, athletics, badminton and table tennis at the university.

The participants now practise either at the CU central ground or at the Physical Education Department room, sources said.

The university authorities are indifferent to the problems as they have failed to set up proposed sports complex after 31 years of sanctioning budget for it.

The government approved a project worth Tk 1.25 crore to set up a sports complex in the university in 1976 along with two other projects for Dhaka and Rajshahi universities.

Rajshahi University authorities set up a full-fledged stadium and Dhaka University a sports complex, including a swimming pool under the projects while the CU authorities did nothing.

It is learnt that the then vice-chancellor and the engineers of the university responsible for implementing the project were punished at a court marshal during the autocratic regime of HM Ershad for corruption relating to the project.

Besides, the University Grant Commission (UGC) allocated Tk 4.98 crore in 1995 to set up a allocated Tk 8 lakh for the department for 2006-2007, which is too meagre to run the department.

Participation in the events at another university is very expensive while a good amount of money is to be spent for holding annual sports of the university, sources said.

Meanwhile, the Physical Education Department, the lone place for practice of indoor games, also doesn't have any building of its own for practice.

Rajshahi University authorities set up a full-fledged sports complex at the university.

But the authorities did not start the construction, saying the allocation was not sufficient to set up a sports complex, sources said.

On the other hand, participation of the university teams in the next inter-university handball at Gazipur, swimming in Dhaka and football in Rajshahi has become uncertain due to fund constraint as the allocation has already been exhausted.

The university authorities only the printing press of the university.

AMM Raquib Quoraishi, director of the department, said, "It needs Tk 14 to 15 lakh to participate in all events where we get only Tk 8 lakh."

A gymnasium is necessary to improve quality of the players and arrange indoor games, he said.

"We have sent a reviewed proposal to the ministry concerned last month that will be implemented in three phases at a cost of Tk 8 crore", he added.

Players of Chittagong University carry out their practices of indoor games here for lack of a gymnasium in the university.
