The indigenous tradition of 'Patachitra'

CULTURAL CORRESPONDENT

TO mark the Golden Jubilee of the European Commission (EC), an exhibition of Pata or scroll paintings by Shambhu Acharya is being organised at the Alliance Francaise, Dhaka by the EC Delegation to Bangladesh.

Originally from a family of Lagnacharyas (those who match pre-wedding horoscopes) and idol makers, Shambhu Acharya belongs to the 9th generation of Pata artists, practising the tradition for 450 years. He started painting at the tender age of three and was blessed with talent from both sides. His parents Sudhir and Alpna Acharya, and maternal grandfather Radhagobindo Acharya greatly influenced his work.

Patachitra has historically been used to depict both Hindu and Muslim folklore. Popular subjects of Pata include Ramayan, Mahabharat, Rash Leela, Muharram and Gazi-Kalu-Chompaboti. Associated with the Gazi Pata are Gazir Gaan, sung in his praise, recounting his exploits. Shambhu is especially pleased with his Muktijuddho Pata comprising 24 pieces, detailing historic events starting from the Battle of Plassey in 1757 to the Liberation War in 1971.

Locally available, natural ingredients are used when working on Patachitra. Shambhu fixes the "marking cloth" canvas with tamarind juice and brick powder. The colours are prepared using egg yolk, bel seeds, kapila tree gum, sagudana (sago), shindur (vermilion), shish kali (soot), neel (indigo), ela and tilak mati (different kinds of earth). "My art is free hand; I draw directly on the canvas from memory," says Shambhu. The subject of women is close to his heart and his paintings are increasingly dominated by their presence. "The best of all worlds resides in women, which is why I like to incorporate them into my art," Shambhu says. Other favourites are scenes from everyday life in vibrant colours. Palanquins, birds, musicians, kamar (ironmongers), kumar (potters), jele (fishermen), taanti (weavers) and more, also make regular appearances.

It was in November last year that Stefan Frowein, EC Ambassador to Bangladesh visited Shambhu in Munshiganj. What he saw impressed him profoundly and he wished to help preserve this art form. The idea of building a Patachitra school at the site of Shambhu's ancestral home was born, and the Ambassador arranged for two BUET architects to draw up plans.

Inaugurating the exhibition, Ambassador Frowein said he was "extremely pleased to be able to help Shambhu Acharya make this ancient techniques known to a wider public". He said the paintings looked "even more beautiful, now that they are here altogether. I am happy that enthusiasts will have a chance to enjoy the quality of art presented by Shambhu. Patachitra is indeed the living testimony of the diverse culture of Bangladesh". Jonatan Henriksson, the EC Delegation's cultural officer, felt that such a tradition deserved to be supported.

Ramendu Majumdar, president of the Bangladesh Centre of International Theatre Institute, who has always encouraged Shambhu, spoke about the EC's role as Bangladesh's development partner, emphasising cross-cultural interactions. Shambhu himself felt extremely fortunate that his chance meeting with Ambassador Frowein had culminated in this exhibition. "I wish to be able to teach others the techniques of Patachitra, so that the art form thrives," he said. The ceremony ended with a Gazir Gaan.

Shambhu made his first trip abroad in 1995 as part of a Bangladeshi delegation, to Indonesia's National Club Council. In 1999, Shambhu was taken to The London Art World Gallery in east London by Mahzabin Khan, poet Abu Zafar Obaidullah's wife. "It was unbelievable! Folk art was truly appreciated and pieces were sold to the British museum and various cultural centres," Shambhu remembers enthusiastically.

Naturally, Shambhu's children have artistic leanings. His son Abhishek, now six, is quite advanced already. Shambhu brims with fatherly pride as he recalls an incident when the toddler, looking at the crescent Ekdashi moon, outlined the shape of a boat with a fisherman in the air.

Shambhu's main concern is the preservation of this valuable art form. All he wants to do is to impart his knowledge to the next generation, to promote Patachitra and keep it alive. It is heartening to know that his dream of having his own art school will be a reality in the not too distant future. The exhibition is on until 16th May.

Indian films to be celebrated at Cannes

PALLAB BHATTACHARYA, New Delhi

The 60th year of Indian cinema will be celebrated at the Cannes Film Festival in France beginning next week with the screening of eight films including acclaimed director Rituparno Ghosh's Dosar and Bollywood super star Amitabh Bachchan's debut English film The Last Lear.

Dosar, which won several awards of Bengal Film Journalists' Association, will feature in the 'Cinema of the World' section at Cannes -- considered to be the most prestigious in the international festival circuit.

Among other Indian films to be screened at Cannes are Mani Ratnam's Guru starring Abhishek Bachchan and Aishwarya Rai and last year's blockbuster Lage Raho Munnabhai starring Sanjay Dutt, Arshad Warsi and Vidya Balan.

The Last Lear also featuring Preity Zinta and Arjun Rampal, is expected to unfold Amitabh to the international audience in a big way although the film will be shown for promo. The film is likely to be commercially released later this year, said Chairman of Planman Motion Pictures Arindam Chaudhury, producer the film.

Planman has lined up four other of its productions this year including Rituparno Ghosh's much talked about Sunglass -- starring Konkona Sen Sharma, Jaya Bachchan and R Madhavan. The film is tipped to be Ghosh's first attempt at a comedy.

Palakar to celebrate Tagore's birth anniversary

CULTURAL CORRESPONDENT

To celebrate the 146th birth anniversary of Nobel laureate poet Rabindranath Tagore, theatre troupe Palakar has arranged a five-day studio theatre festival at its lab. Five shows of Tagore's allegorical play Dakghar will be held, starting from May 8. Eminent theatre personality Ataur Rahman will inaugurate the festival.

Convenor of the festival, Shahriar Khan Rintu, informed that the festival would be one of its kind; where, throughout the festival only one play by Tagore will be staged to celebrate Kabiguru 's anniversary.

The universal urge to be free' is the theme of Dakghar, where every character is symbolic. The play is full of narratives and imagination. A young boy, Amol, is condemned to seclusion and immobility because of poor health. Using his overactive imagination, he creates a world around himself. To him, the passers-by are the link to the real world. When a new post office opens in the village, Amol believes the King of the land will send him a letter.

Director Shamim Sagor aims to present his own interpretation of the play. Aminur Rahman Mukul is the stage designer of Dakghar.

Small Screen 'Ontoral-er Kotha': Gritty tales of crime

A scene from tonight's episode of Ontoral-er Kotha

CULTURAL CORRESPONDENT

Women's issues take centre stage in the TV series Ontoral-er Kotha, aired on Channel-i. Produced by United Network Limited, the latest episode will be aired tonight at 6:20pm.

The story is a case study of Jaigun who is deprived of parental care and falls prey to deception by her husband. This inevitably compels her to get involved in illegal activities such as prostitution and drug trafficking. Though initially she manages to get away with the crimes, she is eventually arrested by the law enforcement agencies.

Shirin Sheela, Sultan Selim and Rubi have played the central roles in Jaigun's case study.

'Spider-Man 3' breaks one-day record

Spider-Man 3 has set a new box office record for first-day takings, earning US $59 million in North America last Friday, according to its film studio Sony.

The movie beat the previous record of $55.8 million, set by Pirates of the Caribbean: Dead Man's Chest last year. And it is on course to set a new record for an opening weekend. But it has reached that mark with mixed reviews.

"That's why they call him the amazing Spider-Man," said Paul Dergarabedian of box office tracker Media By Numbers. "Just five years ago, these are numbers we thought we'd never see."

The $59 million haul would be a good result for an opening weekend, let alone a single day, he told the Associated Press.

The reaction from fans may have been overwhelmingly positive -- but the critical response has been less than glowing.

The Washington Post said the film was "plain awful", while The New York Post called it "overly long and complicated".

The more favourable reviews included Newsweek magazine, which said it was "nothing if not eclectic, but somehow this ambitious mishmash works".

The third instalment in the series sees Peter Parker, played by Tobey Maguire, battle the darker side of his personality and try to hold on to his love interest Mary Jane Watson, played by Kirsten Dunst. Variety magazine said it was also showing on more screens than any previous film, playing in 4,252 cinemas.

Spider-Man 3 was also released in the UK last Friday and has already broken box office records in Asia.
